1. The Cultural Context of Family-Peer Linkages in Adolescence 1
B. Bradford Brown, Nina S. Mounts
To introduce the volume, the editors explore how researchers have defined and measured ethnicity, as well as how peer and family worlds can intersect in adolescence. Integrating these two issues, they propose six general principles to guide future research on ethnic or cultural influences on family-peer linkages in adolescence.
2. Parental Goals Regarding Peer Relationships and Management of Peers in a Multiethnic Sample 17
Nina S. Mounts, Hyun-Soo Kim
Using qualitative and quantitative data from three ethnic groups, the authors examine the goals and concerns that parents have in regard to peer relationships. The authors also explore how these goals are related to parental management of peer relationships.
3. Exploring Adolescent Perceptions of Parental Beliefs and Practices Related to Friendships in Diverse Ethnic Communities 35
Niobe Way, Melissa L. Greene, Preetika Pandey Mukherjee
Using qualitative and quantitative data collected from a multiethnic sample, the authors explore adolescents' perceptions of parental peer-related beliefs and practices and how these beliefs and practices change over time.
4. Mexican-Origin Parents' Involvement in Adolescent Peer Relationships: A Pattern Analytic Approach 51
Kimberly A. Updegraff, Sarah E. Killoren, Shawna M. Thayer
Focusing only on the experiences of Mexican-origin families, the authors explore how cultural and ecological experiences are linked to variations in parental roles in adolescents' peer relationships within the Mexican ethnic group.
5. Sharing Information About Peer Relations: Parent and Adolescent Opinions and Behaviors in Hmong and African American Families 67
B. Bradford Brown, Jeremy P. Bakken, Jacqueline Nguyen, Heather G. Von Bank
Case studies and quantitative data from two distinct American ethnic groups indicate how the information about peers that adolescents disclose or parents try to discover depends on the groups' respective opinions about what parents have a right to know, as well as cultural norms on adolescence and parent-child relations.

6. Adolescent Family and Peer Relationships: Does Culture Matter?	83
Rachel Seginer, Shirli Shoyer, Rabiaa Hossessi, Hyam Tannous
The authors examine the cross-cultural variability of the interrelations between adolescents' perceived parent, sibling, and peer relationships in a sample of Israeli Arab, Druze, and Jewish adolescents.
