

Contents

Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xv
Introduction	xvii
1. Playspace: A New Mind-Set for Success	1
When organizations reclaim play as a key dynamic for success, they make space for all to develop their capacities for innovating, learning, and changing.
2. Playspace Is Relational Space	39
By developing relational intelligence and tapping the power of relational space, organizations are innovating, learning, and changing by engaging and expanding social and relational networks.
3. Playspace Is Generative Space	69
Organizations that consistently engage their generative core make space for intrinsic motivation and passion.
4. Playspace Is Safe Space	95
Innovating, learning, and changing can be risky, uncomfortable, and disorienting processes. Playspace is safe for fresh perspectives, new discoveries, and positive change.

viii CONTENTS

5.	Playspace Is Timeful Space	129
	Organizations and work groups that negotiate the demands of the clock and make playspace for the possibilities available in the present moment create timeful space.
6.	Playspace Is Provocative Space	165
	Provocative space stretches our familiar ways of thinking, being, and doing setting the stage for innovating, learning, and changing.
7.	Sustaining Playspace	197
	Organizations that consistently bring playspace to life share common themes and best practices.
	Epilogue: Living (and Playing) the Questions	209
	Playspace lives in the questions and thrives on continued discovery.
	References	211
	The Author	221
	Index	223

For you and the playspace you create

