

Contents

Contributors		ix
Prologue		xi
PART I	Planning the research	1
Chapter 1	‘Going exploring’: The nature of qualitative research Linda Finlay	3
Chapter 2	Mapping methodology Linda Finlay	9
Chapter 3	Strategic choices in research planning Barbara Steward	30
Chapter 4	Ethical and governance issues in qualitative research Claire Ballinger and Rose Wiles	46
PART II	Doing the research	61
Chapter 5	A grounded theory of the wellbeing of older people Mandy Stanley	63
Chapter 6	An ethnography of physiotherapy culture Barbara Richardson	79
Chapter 7	Investigating invisible groups using mixed methodologies Barbara Steward	93

Chapter 8	Communication practices in physiotherapy: A conversation analytic study Ruth H. Parry	108
Chapter 9	Using biographical research with disabled young people Michael Curtin	125
Chapter 10	Low back pain: Exploring the meaning of exercise management through interpretative phenomenological analysis (IPA) Sarah G. Dean, Jonathan A. Smith and Sheila Payne	139
Chapter 11	Using a biographic-narrative-interpretive method: Exploring motivation in mental health Tanya Campbell-Breen and Fiona Poland	156
Chapter 12	Empowering young people through participatory research? Anne Killett	171
Chapter 13	The embodied experience of multiple sclerosis: An existential-phenomenological analysis Linda Finlay	185
Chapter 14	Discourse analysis in action: The construction of risk in a community day hospital Claire Ballinger and Julianne Cheek	200
Chapter 15	A case study of unconscious processes in an organisation Paula Hyde	218
PART III	Presenting the research	233
Chapter 16	Demonstrating rigour and quality? Claire Ballinger	235
Chapter 17	Disseminating the research: Towards knowledge Linda Finlay and Barbara Steward	247
Glossary		257
Index		265