Editors' Notes 1

William C. McGinly, Kathy Renzetti

1. Maximizing fundraising's strategic contribution 3

Stephen C. Falk

This chapter addresses the key issues of philanthropy integration into the strategic initiatives and culture of the nonprofit health care organization.

2. Integrating fundraising into finance 13

Nick G. Costa

This chapter seeks to increase understanding of the goals and pressures that the development office and the finance office face. It then presents a process and supporting strategies for integrating fundraising into financial needs that are consistent with the hospital's vision and mission.

3. Successful strategies for effective stewardship 29

L. Alayne Metrick

The concept of effective stewardship can be a powerful element in winning and retaining donors who have the continuing ability to make major gifts.

4. The fundraising CEO 43

Frank R. Hall

This chapter presents the dramatically changing role of the CEO in the past century in creating a philanthropic culture.

5. Physician fundraising: Evolution, not revolution 51

Mara Hook, Jerry Mapp

This chapter is a guide to how to engage physicians in the philanthropic process.

6. Hardwiring for maximum fundraising return on investment 61

James M. Greenfield

Nonprofit boards of directors, administrators, fundraising staff, volunteers, and donors require a reliable and trustworthy method to evaluate fundraising results with consistency. Regular evaluations will improve results, document progress, and provide guidelines for reliable forecasts of future income and deliver maximum return on investment.

7. Don't fill a position; recruit talent 87

Gail L. Freeman

There are few decisions as critical as choosing new development leadership for a nonprofit institution. The process of recruitment is an opportunity for the institution to further define its culture and community, as well as its fundraising goals.

8. Attracting top talent and retaining stars 99

Claudia A. Looney, James K. Looney

The fundraising profession has become an admirable career and one that has grown dramatically over four decades. This chapter shows what it takes to attract and keep top talent.

9. Performance benchmarking: Lessons on using performance benchmarks to maximize fundraising results 109

Stuart R. Smith

This chapter draws on early outcomes and lessons learned from a volunteer national benchmarking collaboration of health care system fundraising executives. It addresses benchmarking as a management tool to evaluate fundraising performance.

10. Identifying points of conflict 121

Terry Upshaw Morgan

This chapter examines current points of conflict as they relate to health care philanthropy and challenges philanthropic leadership to address these issues.

11. Sudden scrutiny of hospital billing and collections: Managing the oppositional crisis 135

Mary Anne Chern

This chapter provides an overview of the recent scrutiny of hospital pricing and collections, reviews hospital billing problems, and looks at how the American Hospital Association and individual hospitals have responded to scrutiny.
