

CONTENTS

EDITOR'S NOTES	1
Thomas E. Miller
1. The Context for Development Work in Student Affairs	3
Thomas E. Miller
This chapter presents the circumstances for the evolution of development work in student affairs and the natural fit between the practices and nature of student affairs and those of fundraising.
2. Getting Started in Student Affairs Development	9
Myra F. Morgan, Sharon M. Policello
This chapter explores the issues and challenges that are associated with starting a development program within a student affairs division, particularly as applied at a large public university.
3. Student Affairs and Alumni Relations	19
Patricia A. Rissmeyer
The chapter describes the special role that student affairs administrators have in fostering good alumni connections and the various strategies employed at different institutions to maintain those relationships.
4. Fundraising for Student Affairs at Comprehensive Institutions	31
Jan Arminio, Leslie Folmer Clinton, George Harpster
This chapter presents a multisite case study to uncover current practices in fundraising in student affairs and in connecting student affairs to institutional development efforts. Best practices for making those connections are described.
5. Entrepreneurialism in Student Affairs: The Eckerd College Waterfront Program Story	47
William Covert, Cari Murphy
This chapter describes an innovative entrepreneurial program designed by taking advantage of institutional setting, institutional needs, and community needs. The program, which serves a large number of students and the local boating community, is complex, productive, and effective.

6. More Than an Open Door: Deploying Philanthropy to Student Access and Success in American Community Colleges Joyce C. Romano, Geraldine Gallagher, Sanford C. Shugart This chapter describes how community college foundations provide critical opportunities primarily focused on meeting student financial needs. Student affairs professionals team with foundation colleagues in important ways to focus opportunity and resources where most needed.	55
7. Summary and Suggestions for the Path Ahead Thomas E. Miller This chapter presents a look at the future of development work in student affairs and presents the ways in which fundraising is changing and how student affairs divisions can be poised to have a particularly important effect.	71
ADDENDUM TO ISSUE 126 Letter from the University of Pittsburgh	75
INDEX	77