

Contents

---

Preface	xi
Foreword by Clare Isacke	xiii
Introduction by Kathryn Allen	xv
List of contributors	xvii
SECTION ONE: PERSONAL EFFECTIVENESS	1
Chapter 1 Effective Organisation and Time Management by Professor Steve Webb and Professor Bob Ott	3
Introduction	3
Organising your work	4
Maintaining a good lab book	4
Keeping your computer files in order	6
Handling reference papers	7
Why keep a diary?	8
Organising your time	9
An overview of the planning phases	9
Daily planning	10
Planning experiments	11
Project planning	12
Long-term planning	14
A general project plan	14
Stress and the work/life balance	16
Checklist	17
Finding out more	17
Chapter 2 Personal and Interpersonal Skills by Mr Neil Walford	19
Introduction	19
Self-awareness	19
Assertiveness	21
Using self-talk to develop assertiveness	22
Effective listening	23
Giving and receiving feedback	24
Giving feedback	24
Receiving feedback	25
Relationships and team working	25
Peers and colleagues	25
Getting the most out of team meetings	26
Your relationship with your supervisor	27
Networking	29

Contents

Teaching small groups	30
Teaching skills	30
Group dynamics – how the group works	32
Checklist	32
Finding out more	32
SECTION TWO: FINDING AND USING INFORMATION	35
Chapter 3 Information Retrieval	37
by Barry Jenkins
Introduction	37
Information sources	37
Primary and secondary sources	37
Textbooks and e-books	38
Journals and e-journals	39
Open access journals	40
Journal quality	41
Copyright	41
Unpublished ('grey') material	42
Bibliographic databases	43
How to search bibliographic databases effectively	48
Current awareness services	49
The Internet	50
The invisible web	51
Discussion lists and newsgroups	51
Evaluating information on the Internet	52
Managing your references	52
Bibliographic management software	52
Checklist	53
Chapter 4 Critical Reading	55
Dr Stan Venitt
Introduction	55
Peer-review	55
What is critical reading?	56
Why is critical reading important?	57
The structure/organisation of a paper	58
Variations on the organisation of a paper	59
How to read critically	59
Abstract	60
Introduction	60
Results	60
Discussion	61
Materials and methods/Experimental	61

Contents

Authors and acknowledgments	61
Bibliography	62
Evaluating your own work	62
Reading techniques	63
Checklist	64
Finding out more	64
SECTION THREE: COMMUNICATION SKILLS	65
Chapter 5 Oral and Poster Presentations	67
by Dr Maggie Flower
Introduction	67
Giving a research seminar	67
Preparing your seminar	67
Know your audience	68
Content	68
Use of maths and equations	69
Length	69
Two common questions	70
Visual aids	70
Practising your presentation	72
Presenting your seminar	74
Controlling nerves	74
Before and during your presentation	74
Delivering your presentation	76
Answering questions at the end of your presentation	77
Preparing a poster presentation	78
Preparation	78
Structure and design	78
Checklist	81
Finding out more	81
Chapter 6 Writing a Paper	83
by Dr Jeff Bamber
Introduction	83
What is a scientific paper?	83
Impact of the web	84
Getting started	85
Organisation	85
Know your audience	85
Background reading	85
Standard format of a paper	86
How long should a paper be?	86
Giving your paper a title	87

Contents

Listing the authors and their addresses	87
Citing the literature	88
Preparing the abstract	88
Writing the introduction	89
Aims and objectives	89
Method of investigation and the main findings	90
Writing the materials and methods/experimental section	90
Presenting the results	91
Use of tables and figures	91
Use of statistics	92
Writing the discussion	93
Writing the conclusion	93
What to do if the writing stalls	94
Style and formatting conventions	94
Using language	94
Choosing a journal to publish your paper in	96
The peer-review process	97
Scientific fraud	97
Dedicated organisations to tackle fraud	98
Avoiding ‘innocent’ fraud	98
Checklist	99
Finding out more	99
Chapter 7 Writing and Defending Your Thesis	101
by Dr Stan Venitt
Introduction	101
What is a thesis?	101
The purpose of a thesis	102
Have a plan	102
Getting started	103
Liaising with your supervisor	103
Use of statistics	104
Know your audience	104
Background reading	104
The structure of your thesis	105
Length	105
The order of writing	106
Writing your thesis	106
Statistics packages and image file formats	109
Graphics Interchange Format (.GIF)	109
Joint Photographic Experts Group (.JPG,.JPEG)	109
Portable Network Graphics (.PNG)	110
Tag Image File Format (.TIFF,.TIF)	110
Windows Bitmap (.BMP)	110

Contents

Written style	110
Formal language	111
Spelling and grammar	111
Active versus passive voice	111
The oral examination	112
Preparation	112
What to expect	113
The outcome	113
Checklist	114
A quick guide to writing annual progress reports	115
Finding out more	116
Index	119

