PART ONE: DETECTING AND SOLVING HUMAN PERFORMANCE PROBLEMS

- 1 What Is Instructional Design? 3
- 2 Alternatives to Instructional Solutions: Five Frequent Options 17
- 3 Determining Projects Appropriate for Instructional
Design Solutions 36

PART TWO: ANALYZING NEEDS, LEARNERS, WORK SETTINGS, AND WORK

- 4 Conducting a Needs Assessment 59
- 5 Assessing Relevant Learner Characteristics 89
- 6 Analyzing Relevant Work Setting Characteristics 112
- 7 Performing Work Analysis 130

PART THREE: ESTABLISHING PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES AND PERFORMANCE MEASUREMENTS

- 8 Writing Performance Objectives 169
- 9 Developing Performance Measurements 190
- 10 Sequencing Performance Objectives 210

PART FOUR: DELIVERING THE INSTRUCTION EFFECTIVELY

- 11 Specifying Instructional Strategies 229
- 12 Selecting or Designing Instructional Materials 257
- 13 Evaluating Instruction 288

PART FIVE: MANAGING INSTRUCTIONAL DESIGN PROJECTS SUCCESSFULLY

- 14 Designing the Instructional Management System 313
- 15 Planning and Monitoring Instructional Design Projects 332
- 16 Communicating Effectively 350
- 17 Interacting with Others 367
- 18 Promoting the Use of Instructional Design 391
- 19 Developing Yourself 405
- 20 Being an Effective Instructional Designer: Lessons Learned 410

Appendix I: Online Instructional Design Resources	417
Appendix II: What Is Knowledge Management (KM), and How Does KM Relate to Instructional Design?	423
Appendix III: Learning Theory and Instructional Design	427

TABLES, FIGURES, AND EXHIBITS

Tables

- P.1 Comparison Between Books xxii
- 1.1 Factors Affecting Performance 8
- 3.1 The Performance Engineering Matrix 43
- 4.1 Strengths and Weaknesses of Selected Data Collection Methods 77
- 5.1 Summary of Stages in the Classic Dalton, Thompson, and Price Model 98
- 7.1 Summary of Approaches to Task Analysis 146
- 7.2 Content Types: Definitions and Examples 149
- 8.1 Verbs Associated with Objectives in the Cognitive Domain 181
- 8.2 Verbs Associated with Objectives in the Affective Domain 182
- 8.3 Verbs Associated with Objectives in the Psychomotor Domain 182
- 9.1 Purposes of Performance Measurement 194
- 9.2 Behaviors Specified in Instructional Objectives and Corresponding Test Items 201
- 11.1 Instructional Events and the Conditions of Learning They Imply for Five Types of Learned Capabilities 238
- 11.2 Instructional Strategies and Tactics 241
- 14.1 An Example of a Simplified Decision Chart 325

- 17.1 A Model for Selecting Techniques to Establish and Maintain
Rapport in Instructional Design Projects 371

Figures

- P.1 Model of the ISD Process xix
 P.2 Revised Model of the ISD Process xx
 1.1 A Comprehensive Model of Human Performance in Organizations 7
 1.2 A Situation-Specific Model of Human Performance 10
 1.3 The Basic Components of an Organization as an Open System 11
 3.1 Components of a Problem 38
 4.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 60
 5.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 90
 6.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 113
 7.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 131
 7.2 Uses for Results of Task or Content Analysis 152
 8.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 170
 8.2 Steps for Converting Results of Task or Content Analysis into Performance Objectives 175
 8.3 Levels of Objectives in the Cognitive Domain 178
 8.4 Levels of Objectives in the Affective Domain 179
 8.5 Levels of Objectives in the Psychomotor Domain 180
 9.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 191
 10.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 211
 10.2 Rules for Sequencing Performance Objectives: A Flowchart 217
 11.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 230
 11.2 Algorithm for Selection of Instructional Mode 249
 12.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 258
 12.2 An Algorithm for Deciding Whether to Produce Your Own
Instructional Materials 261
 12.3 A Flowchart for Judging the Accuracy, Completeness, and Appropriateness of Selected Instructional Materials 283
 12.4 A Flowchart for Judging the Accuracy, Completeness, and Appropriateness of Prepared Instructional Materials 284
 13.1 A Model of Steps in the Instructional Design Process 289
 14.1 An Example of a Simplified Instructional Flowchart 325
 15.1 Planning, Scheduling, and Controlling Instructional Design Projects 337
 16.1 Types of Verbal-Visual Image Relationships 353

Exhibits

- 1.1 Ten Key Assumptions About Instructional Design and Instructional Design Competencies 4
- 3.1 The IBSTPI Code of Ethical Standards for Instructional Designers 51
- 5.1 A Worksheet on Learner Characteristics 100
- 8.1 A Worksheet for Preparing Instructional Objectives 184
- 8.2 A Worksheet for Judging Performance Objectives 186
- 9.1 A Worksheet for Judging Performance Measurements 206
- 10.1 A Worksheet for Judging the Sequencing of Performance Objectives 223
- 11.1 A Worksheet for Judging the Appropriateness of a Specified Instructional Strategy 252
- 12.1 A Portion of a Representative Learner Guidesheet 268
- 12.2 A Portion of a Representative Lesson Plan 272
- 12.3 An Interview Guide for Collecting Case-Study Information 278
- 12.4 A Framework for Preparing a Role Play 280
- 12.5 An Interview Guide for Gathering Information on Critical Incidents 281
- 13.1 A Worksheet on Instructional Materials and Methods for Expert Reviewers 300
- 13.2 A Checklist About Instructional Materials and Methods for Expert Reviewers 301
- 13.3 A Checklist for Judging the Appropriateness, Comprehensiveness, and Adequacy of Statements of the Evaluation Plan and Revision Specifications 305
- 14.1 A Worksheet on the Instructional Management System 316
- 14.2 A Survey Questionnaire to Assess Learner Motivation 322
- 14.3 A Checklist for Judging the Appropriateness, Comprehensiveness, and Adequacy of the Instructional Management System 330
- 15.1 A Standardized Format for a Progress Report 343
- 15.2 A Checklist for Judging the Appropriateness and Comprehensiveness of a Project Plan 347
- 16.1 A Worksheet for Assessing Appropriate Answers to Questions 359
- 16.2 A Worksheet for Assessing Your Writing for Grammatical Correctness 362
- 17.1 A Checklist for Judging the Appropriateness and Effectiveness of Behaviors Used in Specific Interactions with Other People 388
