

Index

- A
- Academic freedom, politics and, 238–239
- Allan, B., 193, 200
- Alumni panels, advice to new learners from, 82, 137, 138, 139, 227, 265
- Anderson, L. W., 26, 35
- Angelo, T. A., 26, 35
- Aragon, S. R., 200, 205
- Astin, A. W., 75
- Ayers, W. C., 3
- B
- Baldwin, M. R., 79
- Baptiste, I. E., 174, 233
- Baxter Magolda, M., 75
- Becoming a Critically Reflective Teacher*
(Brookfield), 24
- Belenkey, M. F., 75
- Bender, T., 199
- Bergin, D. A., 84
- Bess, J. L., 26
- Biggs, J., 155
- Bligh, D. A., 100, 101, 102, 105, 108
- Brems, C., 79
- Britzman, D. P., 10, 212
- Brookfield, S. D., 6, 13, 24, 72, 115, 144, 163, 169, 174, 266
- Brookhart, S. M., 26, 35
- Brown, S., 100
- Buckley, F. J., 26
- Butler, S. M., 26, 35
- Buzz groups, in lecture format, 103–104, 164
- C
- Calderhead, J., 3
- Candales, B. A., 75, 78
- Carlgren, I., 3
- Carusetta, E., 67
- Casey, J. G., 84
- Circle of voices protocol, 143–144, 201
- Circular response exercise, 144–145, 201
- Clandinin, D. J., 3, 26
- Clark, C. M., 80
- Classroom assessment: demonstrating responsiveness through, 43–45, 49–51, 71; and development of reflective capacities, 36–37; as foundation of good teaching, 264; functions of, 35–37; popular techniques in, 37–39. See also Critical Incident Questionnaire (CIQ)
- Classroom discussions: alumni panels used in, 137, 138, 139; assigned conversational roles in, 145–147;
attentive listening in, 122–123, 144–145; barriers to participation

- Classroom discussions (continued) in, 18–20, 133–141; challenging and diverse perspectives expressed in, 138–139; communicative clarity in, 120–121; competitive, 117; counterfeit, 98, 136; creating ground rules for, 124–126; criteria for, 133, 141–143, 147; and cultural identity, 137; dealing with silence in, 134, 137, 151–152; democratic learning in, 115–116, 123–124, 144; and e-mail discourse, 134, 139;
 emotional purposes of, 121–122;
 exercises in, 126–128; grading based on participation in, 117, 141;
 guided discussion in, 128–131;
 and intellectual agility, 120; intellectual purposes of, 119–121; intro-verted students' participation in,
 134; and norm of good discussion,
 116–118; in online classroom, 202–205; opening statement for,
 126, 127–128; orientation period in, 143; and participation readiness, 18–20; pedagogic goals in,
 118–124; and peer group pressure,
 139–140; and performance anxiety, 133, 134–135; and personal experiences, 122; scaffolding and structured conversation in, 143–151;
 sociopolitical purposes of, 122–124;
 speech policy in, 5–6, 134, 135;
 student affirmation through, 124; and student mistrust, 136; and teacher loquaciousness, 140;
 teacher modeling and role in,
 126, 136
- Clinchy, B. M., 75
- Closed-book examinations, 277
- Cohen, R. M., 3
- Conley, S. C., 26
- Connelly, F. M., 3, 26
- Conrad, R. M., 192
- Conversational moves exercise, 147–149
- Cooks, H. C., 84
- Cranston, P., 67
- Critical Incident Questionnaire
 (CIQ): analysis and summary of,
 43–45; common themes in, 31–32;
 and critical thinking, 47, 51–52;
 description of, 41–43; diversity and,
 47–49, 157, 162; evaluations and,
 45–47, 189; in large classes, 52;
 online environment and, 197; perceived teacher inconsistencies in, 69; purpose of, 41; as rationale for teaching practice, 64; in small classes or groups, 53; and student evaluations, 45–47; and students' emotional reactions, 95; and teacher development, 50–51; and teacher expectations, 53–54; and trust building, 49; value of, 29, 45–52
- Critical reflection: and classroom research activities, 36–37; confirmatory, 51–52; counterfeit, 68–69; and cultural suicide, 86–87; of first-generation college students, 84–85;
 and student sense of inadequacy, 78–79; students' resistance to, 264; teacher encouragement and modeling of, 26–28, 29, 51–52, 58, 101, 112, 241–242
- Critical social theory, 72–73
- Cross, K. P., 35, 37
- Cross, W. E., Jr., 75
- Cultural suicide: critical questioning and, 86–87; and ethnic minority students, 84–86; first-generation and adult learners' risk of, 85–86; higher education participation defined as, 84, 221–222; student rules for avoiding, 87–88; teacher protocol for avoiding, 88–89; of working-class and minority teachers, 85–86
- D
- Dainton, G., 155
- Davis, L., 79

- Day, C., 3
- Democratic classroom: defined, 236;
discussion in, 115–116, 123–124, 144, 167–168
- Demonstration, as scaffolding for learning, 165–166
- Denicolo, P., 3
- Dews, C.L.B., 84
- Directive teaching, 169–170, 177
- Diverse classrooms, 153–172; culturally induced learning resistance in, 157; learning style assessment in, 156; measuring diversity in, 155–157; mixing modalities in,
162–170; multicultural students in,
154, 158, 159; pedagogic strategies in, 158–170; range of diversity in, 153–154, 155; small-group conversations in, 164; student grouping in,
160–162; and student self-doubt,
161–162; and teacher commitment, 157; and teacher's communication style, 163–164; teaching approach in, 18–20; team teaching in, 158–160
- Donaldson, J. A., 192
- Drawing Discussion exercise, 163
- E
- Educational planning, involving students in, 228
- Eisen, M. J., 26
- Emotions of learning, 30–31, 32, 75–95, 266, 269–270; and epistemological transformation, 90–91;
for first-generation college students, 84–85; providing outlets for expression of, 94–95; range and sources of, 75–76; and reporting back process, 95; and student engagement, 76. See also Impostorship; Resistance to learning
- End-of-course participant learning portfolio, 42
- Entwistle, N., 75
- Epistemic cognition, and classroom research techniques, 37
- Ethical pedagogy, principle of continuous assessment in, 229
- Evans, N. J., 75
- F
- Farrah, S., 99, 102
- Feedback: in large classes, 52, 65; and teacher credibility, 65–66. See also Critical Incident Questionnaire
(CIQ)
- Fein, A. D., 199
- Fhagen-Smith, P., 75
- Forney, D. S., 75
- Foucault, M., 7, 98, 116
- Frase, L. E., 26
- Frederick, P., 127
- Freire, P., 14, 26, 31, 70, 98–99,
169, 170, 176, 177, 243, 245,
276
- Fromm, E., 218
- Full disclosure, as hallmark of teacher authenticity, 69–70
- G
- Gardella, L. G., 75, 78
- Goldberger, N. R., 75
- Goodson, I. F., 3
- Gramsci, A., 254
- Grimmet, P. P., 67, 70
- Guided discussion: critical theory in, 129; inauthentic, 130; legitimate process in, 130–131
- Guido-DiBrito, F., 75
- Gunawardena, C. N., 199–200
- Guy, T. C., 154
- H
- Habermas, J., 115, 168
- Hall, S., 26
- Hammersley, M., 35
- Handal, G., 3
- Hanson, D. R., 75
- Hatful of Quotes exercise, 150
- Hess, M. E., 210

Hiring decisions, politics of, 239, 242–243
 Hoffman, J., 194
 Hoggart, S., 245
 hooks, b., 95
 Hopkins, D., 35
 Horton, M., 14, 31, 70, 170, 246
 Hounsell, D., 75

I

Impostership anxiety, 76–83;
 crippling impacts of, 83; defusing feelings of, 81–83; in diverse classrooms, 161–162; and fear of exposure, 79–80; psychological and cultural roots of, 77–78; and student evaluations, 174; and teacher humility, 83; of teachers, 77, 79–81; triggers for, 78; universality of, 82
 Incremental fluctuation, learning rhythm of, 91–95, 185, 218–219
 Informed pedagogy: concept of, 24–26; and student learning, 24–25
 Intuition: in practical reasoning process, 8; and situational nature of teaching, 2, 4–5
 Isenberg, J. P., 3

J

Jacobs, D., 14, 246
 Jacobvitz, R. S., 3, 26
 Jalongo, M. R., 3
 Johnson, S. D., 205
 Johnston, C. A., 155

K

Kember, D., 155
 Kets de Vries, M.F.R., 79
 King, P. M., 37, 75
 Kitchener, K. S., 37, 75
 Kolb, D. A., 155

L

Large classes, feedback in, 52, 65
 Law, C. L., 84
 Learning audit, overview of, 38–39

Learning Combination Inventory, 155
 Learning and Study Skills Inventory, 155

Lecture-based teaching: assumption hunting in, 112; and “banking education” concept, 98–99; characteristics of helpful lectures in, 101–102; “chunked” approach to, 103, 105–106; critique of, 97–99; versus discussion methods, 97–98; introducing alternative perspectives in, 111–112; and lecture organization, 106; modeling desirable behaviors in, 101, 111–112; primary function of, 100; reasons for using, 100–101; scaffolding notes provided in, 107–108; silent interludes in, 102–103; small-group purposeful conversation in, 103–104; teacher self-assessment in, 112–113; varying communication styles and modalities in, 99, 102–106; verbal signals in, 108–109

Leung, D.Y.P., 155
 Lewis, D., 193, 200
 Lindeman, E.C.L., 115, 123
 Lodge, D., 235
 Logan, J., 3
 Logan, M. C., 199

M

Mamet, D., 238
 Mandated courses, unorthodox approach to, 22–24
 Marcuse, H., 129
 Marton, F., 75
 McMunn, N. D., 26, 35
 Miller, J. L., 26, 86
 Mills, C. W., 240
 Muddiest Point exercise, 38, 104
 Muddling through, teaching process of, 1–8
 Multicultural classrooms, 154, 158, 159. See also Diverse classrooms
 Myers-Briggs Personality Type Inventory, 155

N

- Namyniuk, L., 79
 Newsprint dialogue exercise,
 164–165
 Nuefeld, J., 67, 70

O

- Older students, and higher education's emotional risks, 77–78
 One-minute paper, overview of, 37–38
 Online teaching, 191–210; advantage of asynchronous discussion in, 192–193, 194; class size in, 206; colleague observation in, 195–196; communication dynamics in, 194; emotional climate of, 194–195; emphasis on teacher participation in, 201–202; of entire degree programs, 208; and face-to-face teaching, 191–194, 210; feedback, 197–198, 199; final synthesis question in, 204–205; focused discussion in, 202–205; ground rules in, 207–208; and individual cultural identity, 195; information overload in, 205; and instructional responsiveness, 198–200; learning community dynamic in, 193; “letter to successors” exercise in, 208; live chats in, 194; logistical problems with, 209; organization of, 205–208; pace and privacy of learning in, 193; participatory discussion in, 200–202; planning and preparing for, 195–196; problems for teachers and learners in, 208–210; quality of, 192, 209; relational dimension of teaching and, 192; sequenced questions in, 207; small group assignments in, 206–207; and student anonymity, 197; teacher modeling of, 202–203; teacher's social presence in, 193, 199–200, 201–202

P

- Palloff, R. M., 192, 193, 194
 Palmer, A. C., 75
 Palmer, D. R., 155
 Palmer, P. J., 57–58, 67
 Pascarella, E. T., 75
 Paterson, R.W.K., 98, 130
 Pedagogy. See Teaching practice
 Pedagogy of the Oppressed (Freire), 98
 Peer learning communities, 93–94, 260–261
 Peer teaching: impostorship and, 82–83; and practical reasoning, 8
 Performance anxiety: causes of, 133, 134–135; classroom exercises to alleviate, 145–146, 150–151
 Perry, W. G., 36, 75
 Peters, R. S., 129, 170
 Piskurich, G. M., 193
 Political teaching: alliance building in, 244–245; choosing one's battles in, 246–247; defining, 240–241; and deviance credits, 245; external recognition and, 247–248; importance of paper/e-mail trails in, 249–252; institutional rhetoric in, 244; newcomer's anthropological approach to, 243–245; penalties for, 241–242; and student sense of agency, 241; survival tactics in, 243–252
 Polyani, M., 11
 Practical illustration, as classroom modality, 166–167
 Practical reasoning process: appraisal in, 8; scanning in, 6–7; and situational nature of teaching, 6–8; and unanticipated situations, 61
 Pratt, K., 192, 193, 194
 Preskill, S. L., 3, 6, 26, 115, 163
 Professional ethos, 18

Q

- Questions: lecturer's use of, 109–111; and teacher credibility, 59–60, 68
 Quotes to affirm and challenge (exercise), 149

R

- Race, P., 100, 102
- Resistance to learning, 211–233;
 alumni panels used to combat, 227;
 and change as threat, 214–215;
 classroom containment of, 212;
 and conversational obsession, 213–214; culturally induced, 157; determining origins of, 225; and fear of the unknown, 218; and incremental fluctuation of learning, 218–219, 231–232; and incremental learning assessment, 229; and justification for learning, 230–231; justified, 212–213, 226;
 and learning relevance, 219–220;
 and learning styles, 219; and levels of learning readiness, 220–221;
 and loss of certainty in learning, 218–219; and pedagogic variety,
 228–229; and personal truculence, 217; public confrontation of, 232;
 and realistic learning goals, 216;
 and right not to learn, 233; and student background, 226; and student self-image, 217–218; and successful learning experiences, 231; and teacher personality,
 224–233
- Respectful listening: in democratic classrooms, 167–168; in discussions, 122–123, 144–145
- Ricardo-Rivera, J., 75, 78
- Rogers, C., 169
- Role plays, emotionality of learning in, 87–88
- Ryan, J., 85

S

- Sackey, C., 85
- Sacks, P., 223
- Schubert, W. H., 3
- Schulte, A. C., 155
- Self-critique, as teaching technique, 139
- Sentence completion exercise, 126–127
- Shor, I., 36, 98–99, 104, 169, 176, 177, 243, 245, 276
- Siberia, lecturing from, 104–105
- Silence, classroom: in diverse classroom, 151; methods for dealing with, 4–6, 131–132; student interpretations of, 36; teacher-introduced, 102–103, 164–165
- Simon, R. I., 77
- Skillful teaching: attentiveness to student concerns and difficulties in, 31–32; contextually informed teaching as, 24–26; core assumptions of, 17–33; critically reflective stance in, 26–28; in diverse classrooms, 18–20; emotional empathy in, 30–31; evaluation as indicator of, 175; habits of mind and practice in, 18; healthy skepticism in, 278; honest criticism in, 28–29; knowledge of how students learn in, 263–265;
 maxims of, 261–278; in online environment, 196–200; student affirmation in, 186; and struggling students, 20–22; teacher as learning helper in, 276–278; teacher modeling in, 32, 109–112; use of power in, 276
- Smith, E., 154
- Snow, C. P., 238
- Snowballing exercise, 150–151
- Socratic dialogue, and classroom discussions, 129
- Speech policy, 126
- Steadman, M. H., 35
- Steele, C. M., 75
- Strauss, L., 75
- Student attrition, and epistemological panic, 91
- Student classroom experiences, as object of critical commentary, 27–29, 122

- Student classroom participation: and first class alumni panels, 23–24; and perceptions of “good” participation, 7; and performance anxiety, 4–6; teacher interventions for encouraging, 19–23. See also Classroom discussions
- Student diversity, and framing of learning experiences, 36. See also Diverse classrooms
- Student engagement: self-doubt as barrier to, 76, 83; and student talk, 167
- Student grouping, in diverse classroom, 160–162
- Student learning: and critical reflection requirement, 264; and culture of entitlement, 223; and cultural mores and traditions, 221–223; epistemological reframing in, 90–91; and fear of loss of face, 221; fluctuating rhythm of, 91–95, 218–219; gauging diversity in, 155–158; in groups of difference, 161–162; informed pedagogy and, 24–25; relevance and utility of, 264–265, 273; responsibility of organizing and conducting, 220–221; and teacher interventions, 20–22. See also Emotions of learning; Resistance to learning
- Student learning evaluations, 173–189; anonymity and power differential in, 28–29, 173–174; clarity and transparency in, 183–185; in collegial or collaborative practice, 177–178; and critically responsive teaching, 174; end-of-course, CIQs and, 45–47, 189; exercise of teacher power in, 236–237; externally imposed criteria for, 176; as guidance for future actions, 186, 187; helpful, characteristics and examples of, 178–180, 181–187; immediacy and regularity of, 185; judgmental and value-laden nature of, 175–177; need for discussion and feedback on, 185–186; and student commitment to learning, 174; student evaluation of, 189; and student learning rhythm, 185; suggestions for improving, 187–189; and teacher credibility and authenticity, 175; unhelpful, 178, 179, 180–181; value judgments in, 175–177
- Student learning journals, guidelines and prompts for completing, 39–41
- Student talk: correlated with learning, 167; as teaching modality, 167–168
- Student-teacher relationship: building trust in, 49–50, 67–73, 276; and discussion engagement, 115; and student learning evaluations, 173–174
- Students of color: class differences among, 154; emotional impacts of college on, 78, 84; exclusive grouping of, 160–161
- Syllabus tests, 70, 164

T

- TATBTS (The Ability To Be Taken Seriously), and teacher credibility, 244–245
- Tarule, J. M., 75
- Teachable moment, responding to, 269
- Teacher authenticity: and autobiographical disclosure, 71–73, 157; and congruence between words and actions, 67–69; and development of student trust, 67–73; established through teacher talk, 167; and full disclosure of agenda and expectations, 69–70; student definition of, 56; student evaluations and, 175; and student learning, 57–58; and student-centered responsiveness, 70–71; and teacher credibility,

- Teacher authenticity (continued)
73–74; and teacher personality, 270–271; and teaching for critical thinking, 58; and teaching for diversity, 171
- Teacher characteristics: authoritarian versus authoritative, 169; expertise and critical competence as, 178; preferred by students, 55–58
- Teacher credibility: and clear agendas and expectations, 168, 223–224, 230; common indicators of, 58–67; and communication of conviction, 64–66; and demonstrated expertise, 59–61; feedback and, 65–66; organizational, and deviance credits, 245; pedagogic experience as indicator of, 61–63; probationary testing of, 62–63; and self-deprecation, 66–67; student evaluations and, 175; students' conception of, 56–57; and teach authenticity, 73–74; and teacher experience, 61–63; and teacher talk, 167
- Teacher evaluations, 166; hostility in, 273; impostorship anxiety and, 80–81; working philosophy and, 257–258
- Teacher expertise: critical competence and, 178; student indicators of, 59–61
- Teacher networks, emotional sustenance provided by, 259–264
- Teacher personality, acknowledging mannerisms in, 270–272
- Teacher responsiveness: to CIQ feedback, 43–45, 49–56; evaluation and, 175; as hallmark of authenticity, 70–71; and majority wishes, 71
- Teacher self-disclosure: autobiographical, 71–73, 157; modeling of, 40
- Teachers of color: and cultural suicide, 85–86; and establishment of credibility, 62–63
- Teaching approach: authoritative versus authoritarian, 178; balancing support and challenge in, 274–275; clarity of purpose in, 99–100; directive, 169–170; empathetic, 266; “fly on the wall,” 275; idiosyncratic nature of, 265; instinct in, 267; risk taking in, 268–269; and student learning style, 219
- Teaching practice: conversational obsession in, 263; critical reflection modeled in, 26–28; diverse learning modalities in, 267–268; ensuring emotional survival in, 253–261; expectations of being liked and admired in, 272–273; experimentation and feelings of impostorship in, 80–81; forming supportive networks in, 259–261; impacts of context and contingency in, 261–262; informed, and student learning, 24–25; notions of balance and perfection in, 262–263; rationale, explicit communication of, 61, 63–64; situational nature of, 1–7; trust building in, 49–50, 67–73, 276; unpredictability and irresolvable dilemmas in, 8–11; working philosophy in, 253–259. See also Classroom discussions; Lecture-based teaching; Online teaching; Political teaching; Skillful teaching
- Teaching profession: and government interventions, 239–240; ivory tower perception of, 235, 238; new teacher marginalization in, 242–243
- Team teaching: advantages of, 158–160; impostorship and, 82–83; in multiracial classrooms, 158–160; political dimensions of, 235–240; and sequenced solo teaching, 159; shared reactions and experiences in, 261; and student learning preferences, 228–229
- Tenure decisions: and miscommunication, 249–250; politics of, 239, 242–243
- Terenzini, P. T., 75

Thomas, D., 3
 Tisdell, E. J., 26
 Treisman, U., 75
 Truth of teaching: concept of, 11–12;
 and personal experience, 12–16
 Truth statements exercise, 127
 Two Factor Study Process Questionnaire, 155

U

Unexpected classroom events, teacher's response to, 60–61

V

Vaage, S., 3
 Van Ments, M., 127

W

Weinstein, C. E., 75, 155
 Welsch, K. A., 84

When Students Have Power (Shor),
 104–105
 Women faculty, junior, credibility of,
 62–63
 Working philosophy of teaching:
 development and effect on learners, 253–259; as hedge against institutional pressures, 257;
 implicit beliefs in, 254; and justification of new learning, 265; as rationale for practice, 255–159;
 and teacher credibility, 259; value
 of, 255–259
 Working-class students, higher education's emotional impacts on,
 84–85

Z

Zittle, F. J., 200

