

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	xiii
1 CONTEMPORARY ISSUES IN MENTORING PRACTICE	1
Margaret Andrews
Introduction	2
The Practice Context	6
Chapter Summary	8
References	10
2 A GOOD PLACEMENT EXPERIENCE: THE STUDENT'S PERSPECTIVE OF THEIR NEEDS IN THE PRACTICE SETTING	13
Sue West
Introduction	14
Clarifying the Context: Learning as Input, Process and Outcome	14
Input: An Effective Structure for the Placement Learning Experience	15
Process: Some of the Variables within the Learning Experience	21
Output: The End Result of the Learning Experience	24
Chapter Summary	25
References	25
3 THE REFLECTIVE MENTOR: FACILITATING LEARNING IN THE PRACTICE SETTING	29
Melanie Jasper
Introduction	30
Being a Reflective Mentor	30
Practice as a Learning Environment	33
Maximizing Your Own Opportunities for Development	41
Chapter Summary	42
References	43

4	HELPING PEOPLE LEARN	45
	Stevie Penfold
	Introduction	45
	Everyday Teaching and Learning	46
	Behaviourist Theory	47
	Social Learning Theory	51
	Cognitive approaches to helping learners	53
	Constructing Learning	56
	Application of Knowledge for Practice	57
	Practical Tips for Teaching and Facilitating Learning	58
	Chapter Summary	60
	References	61
5	DEVELOPING EFFECTIVE LEARNING RELATIONSHIPS IN PRACTICE	65
	Sheila Daykin
	The Effective Mentor	68
	Facilitation	74
	Dysfunctional Mentor–Learner Relationships	78
	Chapter Summary	79
	References	80
6	LEARNING STYLES IN PRACTICE	83
	Tim Clark
	Introduction	83
	Clarifying the Context: What Are Learning Styles?	85
	Learning Styles – Which One Are You?	86
	Processing Information	89
	Questionnaires That Examine Learning Style	90
	Chapter Summary	95
	References	95
7	USING INTERPERSONAL SKILLS IN MENTORING	99
	Sue Riddell
	Introduction	99
	Phases of the Relationship	100
	Attending and Listening	102
	Questioning	104
	Responding	107

Feedback	109
Chapter Summary	111
References	112
8 THE LEARNING ENVIRONMENT	113
Gill Beer and Andrew Southgate
Introduction	113
Method of Learner Allocation	116
Clinical Staff	117
Nature of the Learner	119
Higher Education Institutions	124
Clinical Environment	125
Chapter Summary	130
References	130
9 THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMPETENCE IN NEWLY QUALIFIED PRACTITIONERS	133
Tim Clark
Introduction	134
What is Competent Practice?	135
Preceptorship	137
What Are the Key Features?	141
Adopting a ‘Cloak of Competence’	148
Chapter Summary	149
References	151
10 ASSESSMENT OF PRACTICE: PRINCIPLES, PROCESS AND RESPONSIBILITIES	153
Sue West
Introduction	154
The Journey to Professional Practice	154
The Purpose of Assessment	156
Underpinning Principles	158
Assessment Criteria	161
Single Event Versus Continuous Assessment	163
Factors That Influence Assessment in Practice	164
Becoming Student-Centred	172
Making a Decision	173
Managing the Failing Student	174

Chapter Summary	177
References	177
11 USE OF THE INTERNET TO SUPPORT LEARNING IN PRACTICE	181
Susan Westerman and Emily Hurt
Introduction	181
Use of the Internet and Other New Technologies in the Higher Education and Health-care Sectors	183
Some Potential Benefits and Challenges of Using the Internet to Support Learning in Practice	185
Some Practical Applications and Illustrations of the Internet Supporting Practice-Based Learning	187
Key Health-care Online Resources	190
The Internet Supporting Communication, Interaction and Reflection	194
How to Manage All This Information	195
Chapter Summary	196
References	196
12 CHALLENGES IN THE INTERPROFESSIONAL AGENDA	197
Judith Parsons
Introduction	198
Why an Interprofessional Approach?	198
A Shared Vision	199
Skills in Interprofessional Facilitation of Learning	200
Moving Forward	204
Chapter Summary	206
References	206
13 WORKING AS A PROFESSIONAL: STANDARDS FOR PROFESSIONAL PRACTICE	209
Melanie Jasper
Introduction	210
Mentors as Professional Practitioners	210
Standards for Mentoring	212
Your Role as a Mentor	222
Maintaining Your Professional Competence	228
Chapter Summary	229
References	229
Glossary of Terms	231
Index	239