

Subject Index

A

- Academic advising, online, 111–113
- Academic Counseling Expert (ACE) system, 112
- Academic deans, reporting to, 45
- Achieving Educational Excellence* (Astin), 143
- Addressing the Unique Needs of Latino American Students* (Ortiz), 17
- African-American students: and black male enrollment, 78–79; college adjustment of, 81–82; staff preparation for, 81; theoretical perspectives on, 14, 16–17
- Alcohol and drug use: and college drinking statistics, 162; lack of effective approach to, 162–163
- American Association for Higher Education (AAHE), 143
- American Association of Community Colleges (AACCC), 194
- American College Personnel Association (ACPA), 8, 117, 129, 147, 163; and GLBT staff, 85; merger debate in, 194–195, 198; and needs of student affairs professionals, 191–192; overview of, 183, 186; and suggestions for collaborative/cooperative relationships, 193–194
- American College Testing Program's Collegiate Assessment of Academic Proficiency (ACT) exam, 137
- American College, The*, (Sanford), 10–11
- American Council on Education (ACE), 4, 5, 6, 34, 53, 54, 132, 195
- American Counseling Association, 186–187
- Americans with Disabilities Act, 84
- Applying the Seven Principles for Good Practice in Undergraduate Education* (Chickering and Gamson), 146
- Asian-American students: enrollment growth of, 82; development model for, 17; and subpopulation differences, 83
- Assessment, 135–142; changing role of, 138–139; and college rankings, 140; defined, 135; as dominant issue in higher education, 136–138; political and environmental impacts on, 141; progress in, 148; public demand for accountability and, 134; recent surveys and findings on, 139–141; regional accrediting associations and, 138; state legislatures and, 139

Assessment in student affairs, 142–154; and academic program assessment, 148–149; and access to institutional resources, 152; and core undergraduate academic programs, 150, 151–152; declining resources and, 144; early deans' efforts in, 132; and institutional assessment, 149; and lack of time and expertise, 133–134; measures of, 147; models for, 144–145, 146; professional standards and credibility of, 153; research positions in, 146–147; risks and benefits for, 144; scholarship on, 134, 143–146, 147; senior officers' advocacy and involvement in, 150–151; shortcomings in, 148–151; suggestions for, 151–153

Assessment Practice in Student Affairs: An Application Manual (Upcraft and Schuh), 143

B

Branch campuses: and emergence of multicampus system, 118–119; student affairs component in, 119

C

Campus career development centers, 113

Campus Life: In Search of Community (Boyer), 11

Career services: job placement in, 114–115; technological innovations in, 114; Web sites for, 113–114

Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education series, 52

Chronicle of Higher Education, 79, 169

Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title VI prohibitions in, 168

Civil rights movement, student affairs leadership and, 54–55

Cognitive-structural theories, of student change, 14–15

Community colleges, four-year institutions' partnership with, 119–120

Compensation level, battle for increasing, 90

Cooperative education program, and student affairs services, 121–122

Council for the Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP), accreditation standards of, 186–189

Council for the Advancement of Standards (CAS), 129

Council of Student Affairs Professional Associations (COSPA), 58, 69, 186, 187, 195

D

Deans, early, assessment advocacy of, 132

Developmental theories: identity formation in, 13, 14, 17; of intellectual and ethical development, 14–15; and person-environment interaction models, 13, 16; and stage models, 14–15; and student growth, 13–18; on student subpopulations, 16–17; and typological models, 15

Distance education, 109–118; academic-advising system for, 112; accreditation and, 109; and campus-based fees, 126; evaluation of, 125–126; in off-campus educational centers, 119–120; online advising services for, 111–113; and program development and control issues in, 126; and student characteristics, 109–110

E

Education Amendments of 1972, Title IX prohibitions in, 168–169
Education and Identity (Chickering), 142

Education Commission of the States, 138

Educational access, federal legislation for, 55–56

F

First-year learning courses, diversity education in, 59

G

Gay, lesbian, bisexual, or transgender (GLBT) students, responses to needs of, 85

Good Practice in Student Affairs (Blimling, Whitt, and Associates), 7

Graduate preparation programs: accreditation standards for, 186–187; diversity and multicultural competence education in, 58; and ethical obligations, 24, 26; and joint degree programs, 26; and practitioner-student collaboration, 26; and professional attrition, 87; and student affairs' role complexity, 23–25; and student affairs theoretical foundation, 24

H

Harry Canon Administrative Fellowship Program, Northern Illinois University, 75–76

Harvard Assessment Seminars, 147

Higher education: impacts of technology and entrepreneurship on, 95; public scrutiny and criticism of, 94–96; student/societal expectations of, 163–165

Higher education funding: competitive environment for, 170; and demand for support services/programs, 171; external sources of, 96; and unfunded government mandates, 171, 174. See also Student affairs budget

Higher Education Research Institute (HERI), 145–156

Hispanic-Latino student development, and student affairs staff diversity, 79–80

How College Affects Students: Findings and Insights from Twenty Years of Research, 143

Humanism, as guiding principle of student affairs, 4

I

Identity Development of Diverse Populations: Implications for Teaching and Administration in Higher Education (Torres, Howard-Hamilton, and Cooper), 17

Institute for International Education of Students (IES), 124

Institutional values, diversity as, 69

Integrity in the College Curriculum, 136

Internships, and student affairs services, 122–123

Involvement in Learning: Realizing the Potential of American Higher Education, 136

Involving Colleges: Successful Approaches to Fostering Learning and Development Outside the Classroom (Kuh, Schuh, Whitt, and Associates), 16, 18, 142–143

J

Job placement, online resources for, 113–115

Joint Statement on Rights and Freedoms of Students, The, 55

L

Latino students, development models for, 17

Learning Reconsidered: A Campus-Wide Focus on the Student Experience, 147, 163, 186

Life and career coaching, online, 115–116

M

Male college enrollment and retention, 78–79

Mentoring relationships, online, 115–116

Minority students, federal statutory protection for, 79–84
 Minority Undergraduate Fellowship Program, 89
 Myers-Briggs Typology, 15

N

National Academic Advising Association (NACADA), 113
 National Association for Women in Education (NAWE), evolution of, 182
 National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE), Principles for Professional Conduct of, 115
 National Association of Deans of Women, 182
 National Association of Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA), 7, 8, 14, 39, 58, 69, 77, 88, 89, 108, 117, 128, 129, 163, 168, 186, 187, 196; and ACPA merger debate, 194–195, 198; and collaborative/cooperative relationships, 193–194; evolution of, 182–183; and student affairs professionals' needs, 191–192
 National Association of Women Deans, Administrators, and Counselors (NAWDAC), 182
 National Center for Postsecondary Improvement Project, assessment reports of, 140–141
 National Center for Public Policy in Higher Education, 136
 National Governors Association, 136
 National Institute on Education, 136
 National Study of Student Engagement Project, 60
 National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE), 140–141, 146
 Native American students: development theory and, 17; higher education enrollment of, 81–82
No Time for Youth: Growth and Constraint in College Students (Katz and Associates), 142

Non-traditional age students, college expectations of, 165–166
 Non-traditional educational settings: and co-op programs, 121–122; general types of, 109; and internship experiences, 122–123; and legal issues, 127; and organizational structures, 128; and oversight responsibility, 125; overview of, 107–108; responsibility for students in, 121–124; and service boundaries/limits, 126–127, 128; and student expectations, 108; and study abroad, 123–124. See also Distance learning; Off-campus education

O

Off-campus educational centers: and institutional partnerships, 119; development and design of, 119–120
 Online student services, guidance for creating, 126. See also Distance education
 Organizational theory: bureaucratic model in, 19; collegiality in, 20; and organizational culture, 22; organized anarchy view in, 22–23; political view of higher education in, 20–22; rational model in, 18–19; and student affairs work, 18–23

P

Performance appraisal, 73–74
 Personal counseling, Internet-based, 116–118; ethical and confidentiality implications of, 116, 117; examples of, 117–118; standards and guidelines for, 117
Perspective on Student Affairs, A, 7; case for diversity in, 69
 President, reporting to, 42–43
Principles of Good Practice in Student Affairs, 12
 Professional associations, 39, 181–199; accreditation debate in, 186–187; activities and priorities

- of, 193; attempts to unify, 184; and collaboration with other associations, 152–153, 186, 193–194; and commitment to the whole student, 188–189, 195–196; COSPA model for, 195; and distance learning issues, 129; functions of, 185–187; generalist, 185; history and evolution of, 181–183; intensive learning experiences in, 76; inward focus of, 189–190; and larger higher educational community, 194; and need for integrated student affairs program, 191–192; proliferation of, 184, 189; and salary surveys, 90; specialization and fragmentation in, 184, 185, 188, 192, 195, 196–197; and student affairs' purpose/role, 35, 190; strengths of, 187–188; suggestions for improvement of, 197–199; support of campus president/provost for, 190–191. See also American College Personnel Association (ASPA); National Association of Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA; specific association
- Professional journals, assessment and, 149
- Program stability, and support from student fees, 101–102
- Promoting Reasonable Expectations* (Miller, Bender, Schuh, and Associates), 108
- Provost, reporting to, 43–45
- Psychological issues: institutional impact statement on, 177; and student affairs' responsibilities, 158–160
- Psychosocial theories, and student development, 13–14, 16
- R
- Rehabilitation Act of 1972, and higher education access, 84, 169
- S
- SAT exam, as standard of institutional quality, 139
- Senior student affairs officer: assessment and, 150–151, 152; and organizational changes, 36, 37, 38, 40, 41; professional associations and, 192; reporting options for, 40, 42–46; successful, factors in, 41; women's representation in, 78. See also Student affairs administrators
- Specialty staff members, engagement of, 91
- Staff development: diversity and, 68–70; foundational theory and, 25–26; reward systems and, 92; and students' gender/age issues, 77–79
- Staff diversity, 58–59, 79–86; barriers to, 70–76; and continual recruitment, 90; and innovative working arrangements, 91; rationale for, 68–70; strategies for developing and maintaining, 87–92. See also Student diversity
- Stakeholders, in politicized organizations, 21
- Standards and Guidelines for Masters-Level Preparation of Student Affairs Professionals*, 187
- Standards of Good Practice in Student Affairs*, 186
- Standards and Guidelines for Student Services Development Programs*, 147
- Student affairs administrators: budget and fiscal responsibilities of, 93–94, 98, 99, 103–106; campus contributions and role of, 47; and collaborative initiatives, 47; compensation issues and, 90; as diversity advocates, 64; institutional budgets and, 104, 105; and institutional decision-making process, 46–47. See also Senior student affairs officer
- Student affairs budget: and accountability/assessment demands, 97; declining institutional support for,

- 98; direct institutional support for, 100–101; external resources for, 100, 105; and new accountability systems, 99; non-traditional revenue sources for, 99–100; and outsourcing trends, 105; planning and management of, 97–99; and revenue source debate, 93–94, 99–104; student fee approach to, 100, 101–103, 104; and student demand for service, 97, 171
- Student affairs organization: and academic affairs collaboration, 39–40, 44, 59–60, 64–65; and budgetary support, 42, 43; centralized model of, 40; centralized-decentralized approach to, 46; and core educational program, 43–44; decentralized approach to, 45; functional reorganization of, 38; history and evolution of, 30–46; and institutional placement, 30–37, 42–46; and institutional policy, 42; models for, 40–46; and reporting options/implications, 42–46; and role ambiguity, 35–39; technology's influence on, 41
- Student affairs philosophy: “development of the whole person” concept in, 3–4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 24; early scholarship on, 9–12; ethics in, 8–9; foundations of, 3–12; and notions of community, 11; principles and values in, 7–8, 12. See also Student Personnel Point of View
- Student affairs practitioners: career and professional development pathways for, 70–71, 75–76; collaborative roles of, 39–40, 66; compensation and benefits for, 73, 74; conflict and crisis management skills of, 37–38; diversity education for, 58; early college deans as, 30–35; internal debate on roles of, 30, 35; job expectations/evaluation of, 73–74; and minority recruitment, 80, 81, 82, 83; and opportunities for advancement, 72; professional commitment of, 75; from underrepresented groups, 58–59; working conditions for, 72–73. See also Student affairs administrators
- Student affairs profession: academic mission and, 4, 5, 7, 8, 12, 24, 41; and bureaucratic rules, 19; as career choice, 74–75; civil rights/antiwar movements' impacts on, 37, 54–55; and distance learning, 111; early pioneers in, 4; formal curriculum and, 33–34; and gender equity issues, 78; graduate education for, 23–25; organizational models for, 18–23; research-oriented literature of, 38–39; service-provider roles in, 38, 45; specialization and, 6; and students' diverse needs, 39; suggestions for improving, 25–27; theoretical foundations of, 6, 12–18
- Student affairs services and responsibilities: conflict mediation as, 37, 63; constitutional issues in, 166–167; and discrimination allegations, 168–169; financial constraints on, 169–172, 173–174; limitations, debate on, 172–176, 177, 178; in loco parentis concept and, 155, 167–168; increasing demands for, 156; legal constraints on, 166–169, 176–177, 178–179; and major changes in higher education, 157–172; in non-traditional educational settings, 118–129; policy development on, 178; priorities and boundaries in, 156; professional associations and, 35, 113, 115, 117, 124, 129; psychological problems and, 158–160; and role modeling, 63; and special-interest groups, 173; and students' diverse characteristics/needs, 157–162; and substance abuse, 162–163; and students' sense

- of entitlement, 174; technology-based examples of, 111–118
- Student development theory, 13–18
- Student diversity, 3, 39, 49–66; and age of student body, 76–77; arbitrary categorization and, 63–64; and core professional values, 66; current student affairs initiatives on, 57–63; developmental theories related to, 16–17; education, 56–57, 59–61; and educational access, 50; and gender issues, 77–78; higher education's history of, 52–53; institutional responses to, 49–51; as institutional value, 69; and legislation for access and inclusiveness, 55–56; literature and research on, 52; and minority identity/protection, 7–8, 79–84; and national legislation, 55–56; obstacles to, 61–62; opportunities for celebration and recognition of, 61; and professional development programs/education, 58; and program diversity, 86–87, 157–158; situation factors in, 158; and social changes of 1960s and 1970s, 49–57; and staff development, 53–57, 65–66, 76–86; and students with disabilities, 84; and student expectations/needs, 39; suggestions for dealing with, 63–66, 87–92
- Student fees: establishment of, 102; as revenue source, 100–102, 103; and distance learning, 126
- Student learning, as primary work of student affairs, 47
- Student Learning Imperative, The* (Schroeder), 7, 147, 193
- Student Personnel Point of View, The*, 4, 5–6, 54; assessment in, 132; diversity and, 53–54; revisions of, 195–196
- Student Personnel Work as Deeper Teaching* (Lloyd-Jones and Smith), 10
- Students with disabilities: and antidiscriminatory legislation, 160–161; programs and services for, 84; and psychological disabilities, 161–162
- Study abroad programs, support systems for, 123–124
- T
- Technology: assessments and, 112, 114; and basic institutional information/services delivery, 110; and educational obligations, 127; as learning tool, 109; and psychological services, 116–118; and student affairs organization, 41; and student expectations, 111, 171; and student affairs' service delivery, 111–118. See also Distance education
- Time for Results: The Governors' Report on Education*, 136
- Title IX, and sex discrimination, 78, 175
- Traditional age students, college expectations of, 164–165
- U
- U.S. News & World Report's* college ranking issue, 140
- User fees, as student affairs revenue source, 100
- W
- What Matters in college: Four Critical Years Revisited* (Astin), 142
- Where Colleges Fail* (Sanford), 10–11
- Wingspread Group report, 95
- Working with Asian American College Students* (McEwen and others), 17

