

Contents

List of Figures	vii
Note to the Reader	ix
Acknowledgments	x
Introduction	1
PART I Abstraction and the Brain	7
1 Abstraction	9
2 The Brain and its Concepts	21
3 Inherited Brain Concepts	26
4 The Distributed Knowledge-Acquiring System of the Brain	35
5 The Acquired Synthetic Brain Concepts	42
6 The Synthetic Brain Concept and the Platonic Ideal	46
7 Creativity and the Source of Perfection in the Brain	50
PART II Brain Concepts and Ambiguity	59
8 Ambiguity in the Brain and in Art	61
9 Processing and Perceptual Sites in the Brain	65
10 From Unambiguous to Ambiguous Knowledge	73
11 Higher Levels of Ambiguity	87
PART III Unachievable Brain Concepts	99
Introduction	101
12 Michelangelo and the Non finito	102
13 Paul Cézanne and the Unfinished	111
14 Unfinished Art in Literature	120

PART IV Brain Concepts of Love	129
Conte by Arthur Rimbaud	131
15 The Brain's Concepts of Love	132
16 The Neural Correlates of Love	137
17 Brain Concepts of Unity and Annihilation in Love	150
18 Sacred and Profane	158
19 The Metamorphosis of the Brain Concept of Love in Dante	170
20 Wagner and Tristan und Isolde	182
21 Thomas Mann and Death in Venice	193
22 A neurobiological analysis of Freud's Civilization and its Discontents	203
Notes	213
Index	227