

Contents at a Glance

Introduction . . . . .	xxi
Chapter 1 Why Learn About Linux? What's in It for Me? . . . . .	1
Chapter 2 What Do People Do with Linux? . . . . .	11
Chapter 3 How the Linux World Operates . . . . .	23
Chapter 4 Getting Red Hat 7.3 on Your System. . . . .	39
Chapter 5 Linux Hands-On: Doing Basic Things with Linux . . . . .	79
Chapter 6 User Accounts and File Permissions . . . . .	189
Chapter 7 Desktop Linux: Handling Graphics and GUI Applications . . . . .	233
Chapter 8 Setting Up Linux's Server Services . . . . .	287
Chapter 9 Linux/Microsoft OS Interoperability . . . . .	413
Chapter 10 Conclusions: Linux versus Microsoft, Linux and Microsoft . . . . .	473
Appendix A Additional Reading and Resources . . . . .	493
Index . . . . .	497

COPYRIGHTED MATERIAL

Contents

Introduction.	xxi
Chapter 1	Why Learn About Linux? What's in It for Me? . . . . . 1
	Linux Can Be a Powerful Server Alternative (or Complement) . . . . . 2
	Linux Software Licenses Are Very Cheap . . . . . 2
	NT/2000/XP/.NET Administrators Need Linux Interoperability Facts . . . . . 3
	Linux Is a Cheap Way to Learn Programming, Web Administration, and Unix . . . . . 4
	Linux Employs a Nontraditional Software Business Model . . . . . 5
	You Can Use Linux to Create Finely Tuned Operating Systems . . . . . 5
	You Can Find Uses for Older Hardware . . . . . 6
	Demand for Linux Administrators Is Growing . . . . . 7
	It'll Help You Use Your Macintosh . . . . . 8
Chapter 2	What Do People Do with Linux? . . . . . 11
	File Server . . . . . 11
	Print Server . . . . . 12
	Web Server . . . . . 13
	DNS Server . . . . . 14
	Mail Server . . . . . 15
	IP Routing and Firewall . . . . . 16
	Education and Development . . . . . 16
	Database Server. . . . . 17
	Utilize Non-Intel Hardware . . . . . 18
	Linux on the Desktop . . . . . 19
Chapter 3	How the Linux World Operates. . . . . 23
	The Birth and Evolution of Linux . . . . . 23
	AT&T Stops Giving Away Unix . . . . . 24

	Linux Plus Minix Equals Linux . . . . .	24
	Understanding Open Source: Linux’s “Price” . . . . .	25
	Linux, the Prequel: GPL and GNU. . . . .	26
	The Other Free Unix: BSD . . . . .	27
	Why Open Source Is So Important . . . . .	29
	How Linux Evolves . . . . .	30
	Commercial Linux: Understanding Linux Distributions . . . . .	34
	Red Hat . . . . .	35
	Other Distributions . . . . .	36
	Which Linux Should I Get? . . . . .	38
Chapter 4	Getting Red Hat 7.3 on Your System . . . . .	39
	What to Expect . . . . .	39
	The Good News . . . . .	39
	The Bad News . . . . .	40
	Your Toughest Linux Install Tasks . . . . .	41
	Preparing for the Install . . . . .	42
	Making Space for Linux . . . . .	42
	Video Hardware Strategies . . . . .	44
	Starting the Install . . . . .	46
	Creating Setup Boot Floppies . . . . .	47
	Starting Setup . . . . .	47
	Language, Keyboard, Mouse Selection, and Installation Type . . . . .	48
	Drive Partitioning . . . . .	48
	Configuring a Bootloader . . . . .	53
	Network and Firewall Configuration . . . . .	53
	Root Password and Other Accounts . . . . .	53
	Authentication Configuration . . . . .	54
	Selecting Packages . . . . .	54
	Video Adapter Detection. . . . .	54
	Linux Boot Disk Creation . . . . .	55
	GUI Setup . . . . .	55

	Logging In the First Time . . . . .	55
	Shutting Down Linux: shutdown . . . . .	57
	Dual-Booting Linux . . . . .	58
	Post-Setup: Check the NIC and Video. . . . .	58
	Testing the NIC . . . . .	59
	Waking Up the NIC: Wake It Up with dhcpcd . . . . .	60
	Setting a Static IP for a NIC . . . . .	60
	Making the NIC Wake Up Automatically . . . . .	61
	Under the Hood: What netconfig Does . . . . .	61
	Telling the NIC How to Route . . . . .	64
	Setting the Host Name . . . . .	65
	Setting Up a Wireless NIC: The Lucent Orinoco Gold . . . . .	66
	Post-Setup: Dealing with X . . . . .	69
	Testing X . . . . .	70
	X Settings Are in XF86Config-4 . . . . .	70
	Running Xconfigurator . . . . .	72
	Trying to Make Sound Work. . . . .	74
	Getting Rid of Linux . . . . .	74
Chapter 5	Linux Hands-On: Doing Basic Things with Linux . . . . .	79
	Understanding Linux's Disk Structure . . . . .	80
	Starting with the Hard Disk . . . . .	81
	Adding a Floppy . . . . .	81
	Mounting a CD-ROM. . . . .	85
	Using Automounter . . . . .	86
	Mounting a FAT/FAT32 Drive . . . . .	86
	Mounting NTFS Drives: The Bad News. . . . .	88
	Some Standard Directories in Linux . . . . .	88
	Basic Disk and File Commands . . . . .	91
	Determining Free Disk Space: df . . . . .	92
	Finding Used Disk Space: du . . . . .	92
	Navigating the Disk Structure: cd . . . . .	92
	Viewing a Directory: ls . . . . .	92

Controlling Output: less . . . . .	96
Finding Files: find . . . . .	97
Fast Finding: locate . . . . .	98
Finding Out Where a Program Lives: which . . . . .	98
Creating a Directory: mkdir . . . . .	99
Copying a File: cp . . . . .	100
Moving or Renaming a File: mv . . . . .	101
Displaying a File: cat . . . . .	102
Erasing a File: rm . . . . .	103
Creating a Symbolic Link—a “Shortcut:” ln . . . . .	104
Searching: grep . . . . .	104
Creating and Destroying Hard Disk Partitions . . . . .	112
Formatting a New Hard Disk Partition . . . . .	116
Formatting a Floppy Disk . . . . .	117
Burning CD-R Discs . . . . .	118
Running Setup without a CD-ROM . . . . .	119
Create ISOs of the Three Red Hat Installation CDs . . . . .	120
Collect the ISOs on a FAT Drive . . . . .	120
Create a Linux Boot Floppy . . . . .	121
Boot from the Floppy and Select Hard Disk Install . . . . .	121
Point Setup to the ISOs and Let It Run . . . . .	121
Printing with Linux . . . . .	121
How Linux Prints Simple Text . . . . .	121
Printing More Complex Content . . . . .	122
How Linux Printer Drivers Work . . . . .	124
Linux Printing Commands . . . . .	124
Manipulating the Print Queue . . . . .	126
Configuring Printers . . . . .	128
Getting Help: Using the Online Documentation. . . . .	132
Using man . . . . .	132
Another Source: info . . . . .	134
How to use HOWTOs . . . . .	134

Performing Common Linux Tasks . . . . .	135
Dealing with Compressed Files: Understanding .tar , .gz , and .bz files . . . . .	135
Backing Up to Tape . . . . .	138
Backing Up a Linux Configuration Isn't Completely Possible . . . . .	144
Combining Commands into a Batch ("Script") File. . . . .	145
Using Telnet to Control a Remote System . . . . .	149
ssh : A Better Telnet . . . . .	152
Stopping a Runaway or "Locked" Program . . . . .	153
Finding Out How Much Memory Your System Uses . . . . .	155
Installing a New Application with RPM. . . . .	156
Unzipping, Compiling, and Installing an Application . . . . .	162
Recompiling the Linux Kernel. . . . .	166
Controlling Linux "Services" . . . . .	176
Changing Your Computer's Hardware Date and Time. . . . .	186
Miscellaneous Linux Tidbits . . . . .	187
Viewing System Messages: dmesg . . . . .	187
Assuming Other Identities: su . . . . .	187
Producing Calendars: cal . . . . .	188
Counting Words and Characters: wc . . . . .	188
Guessing a File's Type: file . . . . .	188
Who's Using a File: fuser . . . . .	188
Put Your Computer in "Suspend" Mode . . . . .	188
Chapter 6 User Accounts and File Permissions . . . . .	189
Working with Linux User Accounts . . . . .	190
Creating Users. . . . .	190
Adding Users to Groups . . . . .	192
Controlling Home Directories, Comments, and Shells with useradd . . . . .	193
Expiring an Account . . . . .	194
Setting the User ID Number . . . . .	194

Changing User Account Defaults . . . . .	195
Setting User Passwords . . . . .	196
Deleting User Accounts . . . . .	196
Disabling User Accounts. . . . .	196
Seeing Who's on the System . . . . .	197
Creating and Modifying Groups. . . . .	197
Creating New Groups. . . . .	197
Modifying Groups . . . . .	197
Adding or Subtracting a User to/from a Group . . . . .	198
Finding Out What Groups a User Belongs To . . . . .	198
Controlling Group Management . . . . .	198
Deleting Groups . . . . .	198
Joining a Group . . . . .	198
Missing User and Group Management Commands . . . . .	199
Under the Hood: Where User Accounts Are Stored . . . . .	199
The /etc/passwd File . . . . .	200
The /etc/shadow File . . . . .	201
The /etc/group File. . . . .	202
The /etc/gshadow File . . . . .	202
Linux File Permissions . . . . .	203
Three Permission Types: Read, Write, and Execute . . . . .	203
Permissions for Specific Functions . . . . .	205
You Can Only Set Permissions for One User, the Owner . . . . .	207
You Can Only Set Permissions for One Group for Each File. . . . .	208
The Third Permission Group: The World . . . . .	209
Reading File Permissions . . . . .	209
Setting File and Directory Permissions . . . . .	210
Centralizing User Accounts . . . . .	213
Network Information Service (NIS) . . . . .	213
Setting Up an NIS Server . . . . .	215
Setting Up an NIS Client. . . . .	219
Updating Account Information on the NIS Server . . . . .	223

---

	Changing Passwords on NIS Servers . . . . .	224
	Summary: NIS Setup . . . . .	224
	Sharing Files with NFS . . . . .	225
	Setting Up an NFS Server . . . . .	226
	Putting Our Example All Together . . . . .	230
Chapter 7	Desktop Linux: Handling Graphics and GUI Applications . . . . .	233
	X History . . . . .	235
	X Basics: Exploring X . . . . .	235
	Pure X . . . . .	235
	Basic Useful X: Introducing xinit and xterm . . . . .	236
	Adding a Second Application . . . . .	237
	Introducing Window Managers . . . . .	238
	What Do Window Managers Do? . . . . .	239
	Running More Than One Program: The Ampersand . . . . .	239
	Controlling Your Desktop with twm . . . . .	240
	“Raising” Windows . . . . .	241
	Bringing Windows into Focus: The Focus Policy . . . . .	241
	Creating a twm Menu . . . . .	242
	A Step Up: fvwm2 . . . . .	245
	Adding Color to Your “X” Life . . . . .	247
	Beyond Colors: X Resources . . . . .	249
	Window Position and Size: -geometry . . . . .	249
	Fonts in X Window . . . . .	250
	Installing TrueType Fonts . . . . .	251
	Storing X Resource Information . . . . .	253
	X Freebies: X Apps You’ll Usually Find . . . . .	254
	X across the Net: Understanding Clients and Servers . . . . .	255
	Setting the Scene: X’s Early Days . . . . .	255
	Defining X Clients and X Servers . . . . .	257
	X Clients and Servers in a Linux World:
	A Hands-On Example . . . . .	258
	Avoiding the -display Option: export DISPLAY . . . . .	260

	X on Your PC: Making NT an X Window
	Terminal / X Server . . . . .	260
	Another Approach: The Linux “Mainframe” . . . . .	261
	Keystrokes for Multiple X Sessions: A Side Note. . . . .	263
	Other Window Managers . . . . .	264
	The Desktop Environment. . . . .	264
	YARW: KDE versus GNOME . . . . .	266
	Getting around in KDE and GNOME . . . . .	271
	KDE Basics . . . . .	271
	A Complete Remote Desktop . . . . .	275
	GNOME Basics . . . . .	277
	Assembling the GUI: Starting Everything. . . . .	279
	startx Configures xinit . . . . .	279
	xinit ’s Job Revisited: Reexamining X “Servers” and “Clients” . . . . .	280
	startx Summarized . . . . .	282
	Unfreezing a GUI. . . . .	283
	Finding Linux Applications . . . . .	284
	Run Them on Linux with Wine... Someday . . . . .	284
	Run VMware . . . . .	284
	Applications Built for Linux. . . . .	285
Chapter 8	Setting Up Linux’s Server Services. . . . .	287
	Chapter Goals: What We’ll Build . . . . .	287
	Server Types . . . . .	287
	Defining the Prototype Network . . . . .	288
	Cautions about Following These Examples . . . . .	288
	Working with Services: A Review . . . . .	290
	Domain Name Service (DNS). . . . .	291
	Configuring the DNS on the Client Side:
	The Resolver. . . . .	292
	Configuring DNS Servers . . . . .	296
	Checking the Server Installation . . . . .	297

Changing the Configuration Files . . . . .	299
The Zone Files . . . . .	308
The Reverse Zone File . . . . .	314
Cookbook Summary: DNS . . . . .	315
Going Further: Dynamic DNS . . . . .	321
Linux As a DHCP Server . . . . .	323
Controlling the DHCP Client, dhcpcd . . . . .	324
Checking the Server Installation . . . . .	326
Configuring the DHCP Server . . . . .	327
DHCP Reservations . . . . .	330
Starting and Stopping the DHCP Server . . . . .	332
Cookbook Summary: DHCP Server . . . . .	332
Linux As a Web Server: Apache . . . . .	335
Checking the Server Installation . . . . .	335
Configuring Apache . . . . .	336
Virtual Hosts . . . . .	344
Cookbook Summary: Web Server with Two Sites . . . . .	346
Linux As a Mail Server: Sendmail . . . . .	348
What Sendmail Does . . . . .	348
What Sendmail Doesn't Do . . . . .	349
Verifying Sendmail Installation . . . . .	350
Installing Sendmail . . . . .	350
Verifying That POP3 Is Installed . . . . .	350
Starting and Stopping Sendmail . . . . .	351
Setting Up MX Records . . . . .	351
Configuring Sendmail . . . . .	352
Tell the Server Who May Use It to Send Mail . . . . .	357
Testing Your Sendmail Configuration . . . . .	359
Cookbook Summary: Sendmail . . . . .	363
Linux As an FTP Server . . . . .	364
Checking the Server Installation . . . . .	365
Configuring the FTP Server . . . . .	367

Configuring Anonymous FTP Access . . . . .	371
Cookbook: FTP . . . . .	374
Creating a Larger Network . . . . .	374
Multiple NICs and Routing . . . . .	375
Installing the Second NIC . . . . .	376
Assigning IP Information to the Second NIC . . . . .	379
Routing between the Networks . . . . .	380
Connecting to the Internet. . . . .	381
Installing a Modem . . . . .	381
Dialing Out to an ISP . . . . .	385
Using Cable Modems and DSL . . . . .	391
Sharing the Internet: IP Masquerading . . . . .	392
Configuring the Internal Network . . . . .	393
Configuring the External Network . . . . .	394
Configuring the Server . . . . .	394
Creating a Dial-In Server . . . . .	397
Checking the Installation. . . . .	398
Configuring mgetty . . . . .	398
Configuring PPP Clients . . . . .	401
Basic Server Security . . . . .	401
Passwords . . . . .	401
Disable Unneeded Services. . . . .	402
Disabling Unneeded Apache Modules . . . . .	403
Disabling Unneeded CGI Scripts . . . . .	404
Using TCP Wrappers . . . . .	404
Examine Your NFS Exports. . . . .	406
Modifying /etc/issue . . . . .	407
Firewalling with ipchains . . . . .	407
Chapter 9 Linux/Microsoft OS Interoperability . . . . .	413
Converting Microsoft Text Files to Linux Text Files . . . . .	414
Controlling Dual Boots: LILO . . . . .	415
A Typical lilo.conf . . . . .	415

Choosing a Default Image . . . . .	417
Controlling Timeouts . . . . .	417
Offering Boot Messages . . . . .	418
Making lilo.conf Changes Take Effect . . . . .	418
Run Your Windows Programs with Wine . . . . .	418
Getting Your System Ready for Wine . . . . .	419
Finding Out If Wine Runs . . . . .	422
Finding Out If Wine Runs Your App. . . . .	423
Handling a Wine Crash . . . . .	423
Use VMware . . . . .	423
What about DOS Apps?. . . . .	424
Linux As Print Server for Windows, NT, and 2000 . . . . .	424
Samba: Microsoft Networking for Linux . . . . .	425
SMB Clients . . . . .	427
Configuring an SMB Server . . . . .	436
Authenticating Linux Users with an NT/2000
Domain: winbind . . . . .	458
Set up smb.conf . . . . .	458
Make Samba Start Automatically . . . . .	461
Create unexpected.tdb . . . . .	461
Start Samba . . . . .	461
Check NetBIOS Name Resolution . . . . .	461
Join the Linux PC to the Domain. . . . .	462
Edit nsswitch.conf . . . . .	462
Make winbind Start Automatically . . . . .	463
Lend winbind a Domain Account . . . . .	463
Start winbind . . . . .	464
Test the Domain Connectivity. . . . .	464
Create the Home Directory. . . . .	464
Modify the PAM Configuration . . . . .	464
Setting Up Linux to Authenticate from a Domain:
An Example. . . . .	467

Chapter 10	Conclusions: Linux versus Microsoft, Linux and Microsoft . . . .	473
	Linux's Strengths Relative to NT/2000/XP/.NET . . . . .	473
	Linux's Greatest Strength Is Open Source . . . . .	473
	Linux Is Inherently Multi-Vendor . . . . .	474
	Linux Benefits from Tons of Free Software . . . . .	476
	Linux Licensing Is Free...and Thus Simpler . . . . .	477
	Linux Provides Remote Control . . . . .	478
	Linux Is Robust. . . . .	478
	Linux Admin Tasks Can Be Scripted . . . . .	479
	LILO and/or GRUB Greatly Simplifies Dual-Booting . . . .	480
	NT/2000 Strengths Relative to Linux . . . . .	480
	Linux Installation Routines Are Better But Still Troublesome. . . . .	480
	Getting and Installing Applications Is Cumbersome. . . .	482
	Basic Setup Help Is Lacking . . . . .	483
	Linux GUIs Lack "Fit and Finish" . . . . .	484
	NT/2000/.NET's File Permissions Model Is More Powerful . . . . .	485
	Linux's NIS Domain Model Is Insecure . . . . .	485
	It's Easier to Learn Basic NT/2000 Administration . . . .	486
	NT/2000 Has Better Hardware Support . . . . .	486
	Linux Doesn't Support All Microsoft Proprietary Protocols and Interfaces . . . . .	487
	Summing Up the Differences. . . . .	488
	Using Linux in a Microsoft Environment: Some Ideas . . . .	489
	Set Up a Mail Server . . . . .	489
	Use a Linux DNS Server . . . . .	489
	Create Web Terminals . . . . .	490
	Build Cheap Firewalls and Routers . . . . .	490
	Add an Inexpensive File Server or Web Server with Samba or Apache . . . . .	490

Appendix A	Additional Reading and Resources	493
	Linux Distributions	493
	Linux Information Web Sites	494
	Sources of Linux Software	495
	Newsgroups	495
	Organizations Offering For-Pay Support	495
Index		497