

CONTENTS

PREFACE	xiii
1 Introduction: The Clinical Paradigm	1
Giving the unconscious its due	3
Tapping into psychoanalytic theories and techniques	6
Philosophical underpinnings of the clinical paradigm	9
The inner theater	11
Motivational need systems	13
Core conflictual relationship themes	15
Using the clinical paradigm to rewrite dysfunctional scripts	16
References	17
PART ONE: ENTERING THE INNER THEATER OF LEADERS	21
2 The Narcissistic Leader: Myth And Reality	23
Back to the future	25
Two modern myths: healthy neglect and tough love	28

Narcissistic personality disorders	31
Another fine Messier	33
Lost in space: introducing the T-word	42
Downsizing the narcissist	45
References	49
3 A Parade of Personalities	51
A question of character	52
Assessing leaders and followers	56
The dramatic disposition	59
The dramatic individual within the organization	62
The controlling disposition	63
The controlling individual within the organization	68
The dependent disposition	70
The dependent individual within the organization	74
The self-defeating disposition	75
The self-defeating individual within the organization	79
References	80
4 Leaders And Followers: Moving Away From People	83
The detached disposition	84
The detached individual within the organization	91
The depressive disposition	94
Depressives within the organization	98
References	100
5 Leaders And Followers: Moving Against People	101
The abrasive disposition	103
Abrasives within the organization	106
The paranoid disposition	110
The paranoid disposition within the organization	114

---

The negativistic disposition	118
The negativistic individual within the organization	123
The antisocial disposition	124
Antisocials within the organization	127
Prototypes and beyond	130
Table 5.1: An overview of the spectrum of personalities	131
References	132
6 Elation And Its Vicissitudes	135
The gift and curse of charisma	138
The sirens of hypomania	142
Surviving the “maniac”	151
References	155
7 The Impostor Syndrome: The Shadow Side of Success	157
Being a fraud versus feeling fraudulent	160
The fear of success	163
The dread of not living up to expectations	166
Infecting the organization	172
A search for origins	175
The light at the end of the tunnel	177
References	184
PART TWO: CHANGING MINDSETS	187
8 Can Leaders Change? Yes, But Only If They Want To	189
Why ride a dead horse?	191
Change and the triangle of mental life	193

Figure 8.1: Triangle of mental life	193
Hitting your head against the wall	194
The CEO “recycling” seminar	196
Looking in on “the challenge of leadership”	199
Theoretical underpinnings	203
References	207
9 Taking The Road Less Traveled	211
Owning your own life	212
Challenge 1: preparing for the journey	213
Case study	215
Catalysts for change	218
Challenge 2: identifying the problem	220
Major themes for executives	221
The triangle of conflict	226
Figure 9.1: Triangle of conflict	227
Challenge 3: unhooking “false connections”	230
Figure 9.2: Triangle of relationships	231
Linking the past with the present	232
Challenge 4: creating a holding environment	234
Challenge 5: actively working on the problem	235
Restructuring the inner theater	239
Keeping on track	243
Challenge 6: consolidating the change	244
Making the best of a poor hand of cards	245
References	247
10 Coach Or Couch, Anybody?	251
Who are the clients?	254
What is leadership coaching?	256
Short-term psychotherapy versus leadership coaching	258
The coaching parade	262

The fundamentals of coaching: why and how	263
What makes for coaching success?	265
The vicissitudes of leadership coaching	269
References	273
11    Group Leadership Coaching	275
A case in point	277
Getting started	279
Gathering data	280
Figure 11.1: Sample personal graph	281
Figure 11.2: Sample personality audit graph	283
Group leadership coaching dynamics	285
Creating high-EQ teams	291
Figure 11.3: Leadership group coaching	295
Making group leadership coaching work in executive teams	296
The role of commitment and follow-up	296
The role of storytelling	297
The role of trust	298
References	300
PART THREE: UNDERSTANDING THE PSYCHODYNAMICS OF GROUPS AND ORGANIZATIONS	303
12    The Unconscious Life Of Groups And       Organizations	305
Basic group assumptions	311
The organizational ideal	316
Neurotic organizations	322
Organizational archetypes	323

xii CONTENTS

---

Strengths of each style	325
Placing leaders on the couch	327
References	328
13 Unraveling The Mystery Of Organizations	331
Clinical organizational interventions	332
Focal areas of intervention	333
The prickly CEO	337
Through the looking glass: the Stratec collusion	341
Consulting with the third ear	354
Connecting with a clinically informed consultant	357
Staying in for the long haul	358
Emulating Sherlock Holmes	359
References	362
14 Conclusion: Creating “Authentizotic” Organizations	363
Transcending the leadership crisis	368
True self versus false self	369
Authenticity: beyond the gulag organization	375
References	381
INDEX	383