Index

Page references followed by fig indicate an illustrated figure; followed by t indicate a table; followed by e indicate an exhibit.

A
Abel, R., 6, 59
Academic rewards, 53–54, 62
Agbehonou, E., 32
Allen, I., 3, 4, 5, 83
Angelino, L. M., 5
Announcements, 28
Aslanian, C. B., 12, 86
Assignments: clarified through communication, 73, 74t; content prioritization by setting deadlines for, 24–25, 35t–36t; feedback on, 28–30, 36t–37t, 74t; instructional support related to, 73; relevance of, 22–24, 35t–36t; setting clear expectations for, 25–26, 36t–37t

B
Bandura, A., 56, 57, 58
Berge, Z. L., 6, 7, 59, 65
"Big picture" awareness: importance of having, 33, 34; Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course example of, 95, 96t–98t
Blackboard Collaborate, 76
Blackboard Learn, 78e
Blind students, 69–70
Bontenbal, K. F., 12
Bookheimer, S. Y., 86
Bookstores, 77, 79
Brick-and-click education environment, 2, 11
Brick-and-mortar education environment: description of, 2, 11; how the demand for online education is impacting, 83–84
Brown, R. E., 9

C
Campbell, C. A., 2
Carr, N., 13
Carr, S., 5
Carroll-Barefield, A., 2
Choi, H., 9, 10, 84
Chunking technique, 24
Chyung, S. Y., 6, 65
Click-link-and-connect education environment, 2, 11. See also Online education
Clinefelter, D. L., 12, 86
Collaboration fluency, 13
Communication: course assignments clarified through, 73, 74t; discussion forums, 27, 66–67; online announcements, 28; peer, 67–68; 21st century-skills in, 99–100. See also Feedback; Personalized online interactions
Composite persistence model for retaining students: internal and external factors, 9–10, 84; introduction to, 7; studies validating the, 84
Conceição, S.C.O., 1, 4, 10, 11, 14, 17, 18, 19, 20, 33, 73, 83, 88, 89, 92, 95, 101, 104
Consistent learning environment, 21, 36t–36t
Constructive criticism, 30, 74t
Content: chunking, 24; personalizing online interactions related to, 26–28, 36t–37t; prioritization of, 24–25, 35t–36t; relevance of, 22–24, 35t–36t
Content prioritization: chunking technique used for, 24; designing learning environment, 24–25; setting up deadlines for, 24–25, 35t–36t; ways to integrate into course design, 35t–36t
Continuing to Engage the Online Learner: More Activities and Resources for Creative Instruction (Conrad & Donaldson), 100
Course workload management: description of, 101; template on, 101, 102t–103t. See also Setting schedules; Time management strategies
Creating a Sense of Presence in Online Teaching: How to “Be There” for Distance Learners (Lehman & Conceição), 94
Crewell, J. W., 14
Crockett, L., 13, 87

D
Dabbagh, N., 2
Deadlines: Deadline Checklist for, 24–25; prioritizing strategies by using, 47; prioritizing content by using, 35t–36t; setting a schedule based on, 44–45, 60t–61t
Designing online courses. See Online course design
Desire2Learn (D2L), 75, 76e
Diaz, D. P., 12
Digital educational materials, 99
Discussion forums: peer support through, 66–67; synchronous meetings in, 27
Donohue, C., 33, 79
Dutton, J., 12, 86
Dutton, M., 12, 86
Dvorak, J., 76
Dweck, C., 58

E
ECAR National Study of Undergraduate Students and Information Technology (EDUCAUSE), 11
Erikson Online degree program, 33
Erikson Online student support, 77, 78e–79e
The Excellent Online Instructor: Strategies for Professional Development (Palloff & Pratt), 104
Explicit knowledge, 94
Extrinsic motivation: barriers to, 6, 7; incentives for, 57; Persistence Model design strategies to facilitate, 89; student-identified, 85. See also Online student rewards

F
Face-to-face classroom: comparing online and, 17–18; factors distinguishing environment of, 18t
Facilitation: Persistence Model used for extrinsic and intrinsic motivation, 89; study on strategies for student motivation, 6, 38–64e; 21st century-skills in, 99–100
Faculty. See Instructors
Feedback: constructive criticism form of, 30, 74t; incorporating regular course, 28–30; individual versus group, 28, 74t; as instructional support strategy, 74t; student comments on impact of, 29–30; ways to integrate into course design, 36t–37t. See also Communication
Foreign language speakers, 70
Forrester, G., 6, 59
Frequently asked questions (FAQs), 31, 32, 69

G
GAMES model: description and intention of, 49; study on popular strategies used by students, 50–53
GAMES model study: background information on, 50; findings on student motivation by, 51–53; on most popular strategies used by online students, 50–51
Global positioning system (GPS), 10
Goals: means for achieving online course, 42–53, 60t–62t; or purpose for taking online course, 41–42, 60t; types of rewards for achieving, 53–56, 62t
Green learning environment, 10, 11
Group feedback, 28, 74t
“Growth mindset,” 58

Hara, N., 5
Help desk, 69
Higher education: causes for increased enrollment in, 3–4; current state of online learning in, 4–5; online innovation of, 1. See also Online education
Higher education environment: brick-and-click, 2, 11; brick-and-mortar, 2, 11, 83–84; click-link-and-connect online, 2, 11; creating learning opportunities through online, 10–11
Hobbs, V., 5
Human resource support: description of, 66; family and friends as, 68; instructor role in, 66–67; Persistence Model recommendations for, 90–91; role of peers in, 67–68

Icebreakers, 74t
Institutional services, 75, 79
Institutional support: accessibility to, 69–70; description of, 69; institutional services, 75, 79; instructional services, 75, 77, 79; Persistence Model recommendations for, 90–91; student services, 77–79, 80; technology support, 69
Instruction: chunking technique used in, 24; incorporating feedback into, 28–30, 36t–37t, 74t; providing consistency in, 21; relevance of, 22–24, 35t–36t; thinking about new approaches to, 87; using variety of, 21–22, 35t–36t. See also Teaching process
Instructional services, 75, 77, 79
Instructional support strategies: examples of, 72–73, 74t; for online courses, 74t; Persistence Model recommendations for, 90–91; related to administrative tasks, 73
Instructor Checklist for Designing Online Courses, 93e–94
Instructors: emphasizing motivation and course planning to students, 92–93; how students are motivated by positive attitude of, 58–59; human resource support role by, 66; incorporating regular course feedback from, 28–30, 36t–37t, 74t; instruction assistance and participation by, 6; Instructor Checklist for Designing Online Courses for, 93e–94; need to develop collaboration fluency by, 13; personalizing online interactions with, 26–28, 36t–37t; setting up clear expectations for students, 25–26, 36t–37t; skills for meeting students’ 21st-century fluencies, 95; strategies for motivating students, 6, 38–64e; synchronous meetings or virtual office hours held by, 27
Intentional online course design: description and examples of, 19–20; to help students stay motivated, 20–32; impact on online course success by, 32–34; relationship between student satisfaction and, 34; retaining online students through strategies of, 34–37t
Intrinsic motivation: barriers to, 6–7; incentives for, 57; Persistence Model design strategies to facilitate, 89; student-identified, 85. See also Online student rewards

Jukes, I., 13, 87

Khan Academy, 99
Kling, R., 5
Knowledge: explicit, 94; tacit, 94

Learners: predicting needs of, 30–32, 37t, 86; redefining the characteristics of higher education, 2. See also Online students
Learners’ needs: ensuring course resources are accessible, 31, 37; frequently asked questions (FAQs) to help meet, 31, 32, 69; identifying student skill deficiencies, 31, 37; providing student orientation for, 30–31, 37; student self-efficacy enhanced by anticipation of, 86

Learning: implications and conclusions for teaching online and, 104–105; as lifelong endeavor, 94; more technologies providing new ways of, 2–3; thinking about new ways for teaching and, 86–87; 21st century as times of change for, 94–104

Learning environment: consistency attribute of the, 21, 35–36; content prioritization attribute of the, 24–25, 35–36; created through the course structure, 20–21; green, 10, 11; relevance of the, 22–24, 35–36; strategies for creating the, 35–36; 21st century changes for the, 94–104; variety attribute of the, 21–22, 36–36

Learning skills for the 21st century: communication and facilitation skills, 99–100; course design management skills, 95; course workload management skills, 101–104; evaluation of digital products and interactions skills, 100; instructors for meeting students’ 21st-century fluencies, 95; requirements for developing, 94; Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course example of applying, 95, 96–98; 101, 102–103; working knowledge of digital educational materials, 99

Learning strategies: GAMES model for efficient, 49–53; as means to achieve online course goals, 48–49; summary of specific, 64e; ways to incorporate in course design, 62t

Lehman, R. M., 1, 4, 10, 11, 14, 17, 18, 20, 73, 83, 88, 89, 92, 95, 101, 104

McGivney, R. J., 9, 84

Means to achieve goals: learning strategies, 48–50, 62t, 64e; prioritizing strategies, 46–48, 61t; setting schedule based on deadlines, 44–45, 60t–61t; setting schedule based on life roles and tasks, 45–46, 60t–61t; time management strategies, 42–43, 60t–61t, 63e; ways of incorporating into course design, 60t–61t

Media influence, 13

Merlot, 99

Monitoring student process, 74t

MOOCs (Massive Open Online Courses): flexible degree programs that integrate, 4; introduction into online higher education of, 12–13

Moody, T. D., 86

Motivation: design elements and strategies to support student, 20–32; explaining study findings from perspective of students, 56–59; GAMES model study on student, 50–53; how a learning community approach facilitates, 9; human resource support of, 66–68; institutional support of, 69–70; instructor emphasis to students on importance of, 92–93; intrinsic and extrinsic, 6–7, 57, 85, 89; self-care role in, 70–71; study on strategies for facilitating student, 6, 38–64e. See also Online student persistence; Online students

Motivation strategies: explaining study findings from motivational perspective, 56–59; incorporating them into course design, 59–62t; institutional support strategies, 75–80; instructional support strategies, 72–74t; instructor contact and assistance, 6; learning strategies, 48–53, 62t, 64e; means used by students to achieve goals, 42–53, 61t–62t; prioritizing strategies, 46–48, 61t, 63e; purpose for taking a course, 41–42, 60t–61t; rewards obtained by students for achieving course goals, 53–56, 62t; self-awareness, 39–40, 60t; self-care strategies and resources, 80–82e; self-efficacy, 40–41, 60t, 86; time management strategies, 42–46, 60t–61t, 63t.

See also Online student retainment strategies
Motteram, G., 6, 59
Muilenburg, L. Y., 6, 7, 59, 65
Müller, T., 9, 84

N
Natvig, D., 5

O
Online announcements, 28
Online course completion predictors, 9–10.
See also Online student drop-out rates
Online course design: for consistency and variety, 21–22, 36t–36t; for content prioritization, 24–25, 35t–36t; for creating the learning environment, 20–21; creating the learning environment, 20–21; incorporating digital educational materials into, 99; incorporating feedback throughout the course, 28–30, 36t–37t, 74t; incorporating motivating strategies into, 60t–62t; Instructor Checklist for Designing Online Courses for, 93t–94; intentional approach to, 19–20; learning strategies in, 48–53, 62t, 64e; Persistence Model for Online Student Retention strategies for, 89–90, 93e–94; Persistence Model strategies for, 89–91; for personalizing the online environment through interactions, 26–28, 36t–37t; planning for the teaching process in the, 25, 36t–37t; predicting learners’ needs aspect of, 30–32, 37t, 86; prioritizing strategies incorporated in, 46–48, 61t, 63e; purpose for taking a course incorporated in, 41–42, 60t–61t; relationship between student satisfaction and intentional, 34; for relevance, 22–24, 35t–36t; for retaining online students, 34–37t; rewards for achieving course goals incorporated into, 53–56, 62t; Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course example of, 95, 96t–98t; setting up clear expectations, 25–26, 36t–37t; student self-awareness and self-efficacy supported by the, 39–41, 60t, 86; time management strategies incorporated into, 42–46, 60t–61t, 63e; 21st-century skills required for, 95; understanding requirements for, 17–19
Online course goals: means of achieving, 42–53, 60t–62t; purpose for taking the course, 41–42, 60t; types of rewards for achieving, 53–56, 62t
Online courses: impact of intentional design for the success of, 32–34; implications and conclusions for teaching and learning in, 104–105; incorporating digital educational materials into, 99; intentional design for, 19–20; MOOCs (Massive Open Online Courses), 4, 12–13; purpose for taking, 41–42, 60t; Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course example of, 95, 96t–98t, 101, 102t–103t
Online education: factors for student persistence in, 7–10; green environment of, 10, 11; implications and conclusions for teaching and learning in, 104–105; increasing demand for higher education, 4–5; increasing development and use of, 1; opportunities for, 10–22. See also Click-link-and-connect education environment; Higher education
Online environment: click-link-and-connect, 2, 11; comparing face-to-face classroom and, 17–19; factors distinguishing the, 18t; “green,” 10, 11; intentional design of the, 19–32; personalizing interactions in the, 26–28, 36t–37t
Online student drop-out rates: common reasons for, 8t; faculty-student contact and assistance impact on, 6. See also Motivation; Online course completion predictors
Online student persistence: how a learning community approach facilitates, 9; student character and skills as factors in, 7–8; student’s perspective as factor in, 8; studies on predictors of, 9–10. See also Motivation; Persistence Model for Online Student Retention
Online student retention: course design elements and strategies promoting, 20–32; design strategies for, 34–37; exploring ways to increase, 13–14; new student behaviors impacting, 11–13; study on online persistence and, 14–16. See also Persistence Model for Online Student Retention

Online student retention factors: institutional support, 75–80; learning strategies, 48–53, 62t, 64e; means used by students to achieve goals, 42–53, 61t–62t; prioritizing strategies, 46–48, 63e; purpose/goals for taking a course, 41–42, 60t–61t; rewards obtained by students for achieving course goals, 53–56, 62t; Rovai's composite model on, 7, 9–10, 84; self-care strategies and resources, 80–82e; student self-awareness, 39–40, 60t; student self-efficacy, 40–41, 60t, 86; student supports, 72–80; study findings on, 8–10, 56–59; time management strategies, 42–46, 60t–61t, 63e

Online student retention strategies: anticipating learners' needs, 30–32, 37t, 86; design learning environment, 20–21, 24–25, 35t–36t; designing teaching process, 25–26, 28–30, 36t–37t; examining how to design, 17–37t. See also Motivation strategies

Online student retention study: background and findings of, 14–16; demographics of participants in, 15t

Online student rewards: academic, 53–54, 62t; personal, 54–55, 62t; professional, 55–56, 62t; ways to incorporate into course design, 62t. See also Extrinsic motivation; Intrinsic motivation

Online student support: institutional support strategies, 75–80; instructional support strategies, 72–74t; self-care strategies, 80–82e; types of, 66–71

Online students: changing demographics of, 12; demographics of, 4; EDUCAUSE data on technology ownership and use by, 11–12; encouraging shared leadership by, 27; factors for persistence of, 7–10; importance of faculty contact with, 6; instructor skills for meeting 21st-century fluencies of, 95; Persistence Model recommendations for student strategies by, 90; personalized online interactions with, 26–28, 36t–37t; predicting learning needs of, 30–32, 37t; reasons they drop-out, 5–7; relationship between intentional design and satisfaction by, 34. See also Learners; Motivation; Students

Online tutorials, 69

P
Palloff, R. M., 5, 59, 104
Park, J., 9, 84
PASS (Panther Academic Support Services) technology, 75, 76e
Peer support, 67–68
Perry, J., 12, 86
Persistence Model for Online Student Retention: design strategies recommended by, 89–90; established findings related to, 84; illustrated diagram of, 88fig; implications and conclusions for learning and teaching by the, 104–105; Instructor Checklist for Designing Online Courses using the, 93e–94e; introduction to the, 16; major contributions from study of, 84–86; new ways of thinking about learning and teaching basis of, 86–87; putting it into practice, 91–94; as student-centered model, 88–94; student strategies recommended by, 90; support strategies recommended by, 90–91; 21st century skills for using the, 94–95, 99–101, 104. See also Online student persistence; Online student retention

Personal digital assistant (PDA), 10
Personal rewards, 54–55, 62t
Personalized online interactions: description and positive effects of, 26–27; examples and strategies for, 27–28; ways to integrate into course design, 36t–37t. See also Communication
Pratt, K., 5, 59, 104
Index

Prince, L. H., 2
Prioritizing strategies: as means of achieving online course goals, 46–48; ways of incorporating into course design, 61
Professional rewards, 55–57, 62
Psychological and emotional assistance, 74

R
Ravai, A. P., 9
Relevance: designing course, 22–23; examples of course, 23–24; now to integrate into course design, 35–36
Remedial instruction services, 79
Rewards. See Online student rewards
Roblyer, M. D., 5
Rovai, A. P., 5, 7, 10, 59, 84

S
Seaman, J., 3, 4, 5, 83
Second Life, 67–68
Self-awareness: description of, 60; staying motivated for online course factor of, 39–40; ways to incorporate into course design, 60
Self-care: description of, 70; mental habits and resources for, 80–81, 82; physical habits and resources for, 81, 82; regular habits and resources for, 81, 82; student stories on, 70–71
Self-efficacy: anticipation of learners’ needs as enhancing, 86; description of, 60; staying motivated for online course factor of, 40–41; ways to incorporate into course design, 60
Self-value, 58
Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course: design blueprint for the, 95, 96; template for managing tasks and prioritizing time for the, 101, 102; setting expectations: teaching strategy of, 25–26; ways to integrate into course design, 36–37
Setting schedules: based on life roles and tasks, 45–46; using deadlines for, 44–45, 60–61; instructor emphasis to students on importance of, 92–93; time management through the use of, 42–43, 44–45, 60–61, 63; ways to incorporate into course design, 60–61. See also Course workload management
Siddarth, P., 86
Simpson, O., 5, 6
Small, G. W., 86
Smartphones, 10, 12
Smith, S. P., 2
Student enrollment: how demand for online education is impacting, 83–84; increase rates of, 3–4
Student orientation, 30–31, 37, 80
Student services: description of, 77; EriksonOnline, 77, 78–79; types of, 80
Student skill levels: as barrier to online learning, 6; developing 21st century learning skills, 94–95, 99–101, 104; pre-admission, 7
Students: causes for increased enrollment of, 3–4; EDUCAUSE data on technology ownership and use by, 11–12; new learner behaviors and skills of, 11–14. See also Online students
Support strategies: human resource support, 66–68, 90–91; institutional, 68–80, 90–91; instructional, 72–73, 74; 90–91. See also Technical support
Svinicki, M. D., 49, 52
Syllabus: looking at the “big picture” when creating, 19; setting clear expectations in the, 26, 36–37
Synchronous meetings, 27

T
Tablets, 10, 12
Tacit knowledge, 94
Tallent-Runnels, M. K., 5
Teaching process: incorporating feedback into, 28–30, 36–37, 74; planning for the, 25; setting up clear expectations as part of, 25–26, 36–37; thinking about new approaches to the, 87; ways to integrate into course design, 36–37. See also Instruction

Index 141
Technical support: FAQs, help forums and documents for, 31, 32, 69; frequently asked questions (FAQs) as, 31, 323; help desk, 69; as instructional support strategy, 74t; online tutorials, 69; supporting student technical skills through, 7–8. See also Support strategies

Technology: educational challenges due to new, 13; EDUCAUSE data on student ownership and use of, 11–12; instructional support related to, 72–74t; new ways of learning made possible through, 2–3; offering online education opportunities, 10–11; PASS (Panther Academic Support Services), 75, 76e; virtual environment, 67–68

TED, 99
Tello, S., 8, 84
Terantino, J. M., 32
Testing student services, 79
Time management strategies: achieving online course goals using, 42–43; description of, 60t; summary of specific, 63e; ways to incorporate into course design, 60t–61t. See also Course workload management skills

Tutorials, 31

21st century learning skills: communication and facilitation, 99–100; course design management, 95; course workload management, 101–104; instructors for meeting students’ 21st-century fluencies, 95; requirements for developing, 94; Seminar in the Philosophy and History of Adult Education course example of applying, 95, 96t–98t, 101, 102t–103t; working knowledge of digital educational materials, 99

U
University of Wisconsin Flexible Option, 12
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee’s Panther Academic Support Services (PASS), 75, 76e

V
Vachon, M., 6, 65
Variety: learning environment design aspect of, 21–22; ways to integrate into course design, 35t–36t
Virtual office hours, 27

W
Waldrop, M., 13
Ward, D., 4, 12
Welcome letter, 74t
Wighting, M. J., 5
Williams, F. K., 5
Wlodkowski, R. J., 58