Index

ABILITY mnemonic, 239–240
absent parent, 198–199
absolutes, 123, 127–128
acceptance see also core conditions
active listening, 87–98
loss and bereavement, 173
patient–dietitian relationship, 34, 37–39
physical and mental health difficulties, 212
acknowledgement, 226–227
active listening, 87–98
acceptance and safety, 89 appearance and posture, 93
assertiveness, 132
attending, 88–93
barriers to attending, 90–91
developing powers of observation, 94 discrepancies and incongruities, 93–94
echoes within, 91
environmental factors, 90
events and emotions, 90–91
eye contact, 90, 92
facial expressions, 92
gestures and body movements, 93 giving full attention, 90
giving and receiving support, 238–239
helpful interventions, 120
loss and bereavement, 169
managing silences, 95
mirroring, 96
non-verbal communication, 91–94
observation and interpretation, 94–95 process of listening, 87–88
touching, 97–98
vocal cues, 91–92
agenda-setting, 69–70
aggression
assertiveness, 133–134, 139
loss and bereavement, 172
working with parents and children, 198
ambivalence, 29, 57–58
angry child, 196–197
anorexia nervosa, 140, 173, 213–215
anxiety
about the interview, 62–63, 67, 78, 81–82
active listening, 95–96
endings, 82
helpful interventions, 117–119
loss and bereavement, 167–169, 171–173
patient-centred approach, 4, 6, 16, 25–31
patient–dietitian relationship, 41–42
mental health difficulties, 208–209
self-awareness, 227–231
silences, 95
stress, 228–231
support 231, 236, 245
working with parents and children, 193–199
appearance, 12
active listening, 93
status, 66–67
culture, 188
first impressions, 66
non verbal communication, 93
physical difficulties, 202, 204, 207–208
appetite loss, 173–174
assertiveness, 131–150
ABC for conveying a clear message, 148–150 advantages and disadvantages, 134–135 assessing risks, 146
Be A DEFUSER mnemonic, 147–148
communicating feelings, 133–134 communicating with a GP practice manager, 137 communicating with a patient, 136–137 concepts and definitions, 132
confrontation from a colleague, 139
confrontation from a patient, 139–140
confronting a patient, 140–141
conveying a clear message, 135–136, 148–150 coping with after-effects, 148
counselling skills and, 131
dealing with aggressive behaviour, 145–148 defusing the situation, 147 delivering an assertive message, 135–136
development of, 132–133
difficult situations, 138–142
FEW mnemonic, 136–137, 141, 143
giving criticism, 143–144
giving praise, 144–145
handling criticism and praise, 142–145
helpful interventions, 118–119
preparation and reflection, 135 receiving praise, 144
Index

rehearsal, 135
responding to criticism, 142–143
self-awareness, 132
self-esteem, 133
support with handling criticism and praise, 145 taking care of yourself, 146
assumptions, 67–68
asylum seekers, 188
attending, 88–93 see also active listening
attunement, 88–89
BACP see British Association for Counselling and Psychotherapy
bargaining, 29
BDA see British Dietetic Association
Be A DEFUSER mnemonic, 147–148
behaviours
assertiveness, 145–148
aggressive behaviour, 145–148
family behaviours, 192–195
helpful interventions, 124
loss and bereavement, 168–169
manipulative behaviour, 5, 12, 38, 41, 58, 71, 103–105, 117, 121, 134, 138, 139, 197 passive behaviour, 87, 113, 133, 134, 138, 139, 142, 198 Belbin, Meredith, 162
bereavement see loss and bereavement blame, 30, 118–119, 128
blindness, 205–206
body language see non-verbal communication body movements, 93
boundaries
assertiveness, 136
confidentiality, 47–50
culture, 185–186
eating disorders, 215
giving and receiving support, 243–244
helping process, 46–51
professional and personal limitations, 50–51
referrals, 50–51
time, 47
working with more than one person, 159
British Association for Counselling and Psychotherapy, 48, 242, 244–245 British Dietetic Association, 244
bulimia nervosa, 216
CBT see cognitive behavioural therapy change
adapting to, 30–31
ambivalence, 29
bargaining, 29
blame, 30
distancing, 30
doubts about coping ability, 29 emotional release, 28
helping process, 55–57
nature of, 26–27
psychological process of, 55–57
reactions to, 27–30
shock, 28
talking about, 28–29
children see parents and children circularities, 161
closed questions, 123
Code of Professional Practice, 47–48
cognitive behavioural therapy
helpful interventions, 126–130
patient-centred approach, 6, 16, 18
comfort eating, 211–212
communication
assertiveness, 118–119, 131–150
culture, 183–186
dietitian, 4, 9, 18–19
giving dietary advice, 75–78
giving and receiving support, 241–242
non-verbal communication, 71–72, 91–94, 186, 189
patient–dietitian relationship, 39–40
skills training, 241–242 talking about change, 28–29 compliance, 5
compulsive eating, 213
confidentiality
after the interview 83
as part of the helping process, 47–50
concerning bereavement, 174
keeping boundaries, 46, 64
making a referral, 47, 218
mental health, 211, 217, 218
setting the agenda, 69–70
confrontation
assertiveness, 138–142
confrontation from a colleague, 139
confrontation from a patient, 139–140
confronting a colleague, 141–142
confronting a patient, 140–141
helpful interventions, 117, 123–126
constructive support, 239–240
continuing professional development, 14, 179–180
see also personal and professional development contracts (as part of the helping process) 72–73 control, 5–6, 10
core conditions, 34–40
counter-transference, 41–42
CPD see continuing professional development criticism
assertiveness, 142–145
echoes within 91
giving criticism 143–144
handling of 142
leading to confrontation 138
patient–dietitian relationship, 38
self-awareness, 226
support 145
using reflective responding 113
culture, 176–190
asylum seekers, 188
attitudes and expectations, 182 boundaries and goal setting, 185–186 building bridges, 188–189
concepts and definitions, 176–177
culture (cont’d)
cultural changes within dietetics and the NHS, 177–180 coping with difficulties, 188–189
developing cultural awareness, 180–182 diversity, 178–179
effective communication, 183–186 establishing credentials, 183–184 Evidence-based practice, 179–180
growth of dietetics profession, 178–179
helping process, 182–183
interpreters, 186–188
introductions, 183–184
language, 157–158, 184–188
non-verbal communication, 186, 189
patient-centred approach, 179
prejudice, 181–183, 189
preparing for the interview, 187–188 prevention of disease and rise of nutrition, 178 Social rituals and customs, 186
stress from change and limited resources, 180
structured interview, 67
tradition, formality and hierarchy, 177–178
working with more than one person, 157–158, 186–188
Curriculum Framework (for the Pre-Registration Education and Training of Dietitians), 4, 179, 241 defaults, 205
defensive reactions, 117, 119
delivery (of a clear message), 135–136
dependency, 24, 40–42
definitions, 6
exercise, 211
facial expressions, 92
family
absent parent, 198–199
aggressive parents, 198
angry child, 196–197
challenges for the dietitian, 190–191
dying child, 199–200
family behaviours, 192–195
family therapy, 159, 161
physical and mental health difficulties, 211–214
providing a helping relationship, 212–213
distancing, 30
eating disorders
anorexia nervosa, 140, 173, 213–215
bulimia nervosa, 216
cognitive behavioural therapy, 6
making appropriate referrals, 215–216, 218
physical and mental health difficulties, 213–216
providing a helping relationship, 212–213
working in multidisciplinary teams, 216
EBP see evidence-based practice
Echoes within, 91
Emotions
active listening, 90–91
assertiveness, 136, 143
loss and bereavement, 169, 174
patient–dietitian relationship, 35
release of, 28
Empathy see also core conditions
as part of the helping process, 51
developing skills, 8
during confrontation, 140
feelings, 111
helpful interventions, 119–121
loss and bereavement, 170–174
mirroring, 96
patient–dietitian relationship, 32, 34–37, 183
person centred approach, 16
providing care, 12
responding, 26, 111
towards a child, 191–194
when a patient has suicidal thoughts, 217
when conveying a clear message, 149
Empowerment Model for Health Promotion, 6 Encouraging, 54
Ending process
acknowledging the ending, 81
Future directions-’what next?’, 82
helping process, 59–61
reflection and review, 83–84
saying goodbye, 82–83
structured interview, 81–84
summarising what has taken place, 81–82
support for the dietitian, 61
Equity, 158–159
Ethical Framework for Good Practice in Counselling and Psychotherapy, 48
Events, 90–91
Evidence-based practice, 18–19, 179–180
Eye contact, 90, 92
Facial expressions, 92
Family
absent parent, 198–199
aggressive parents, 198
angry child, 196–197
challenges for the dietitian, 190–191
dying child, 199–200
family behaviours, 192–195
family therapy, 159, 161
Dietary advice
advising, informing and instructing, 77
Jargon, 75–76
lecturing, 75
reassuring, 77
risky responses, 77
structured interview, 75–78
suggesting, 77–78
using we and I, 76–77
Diet history, 73–75
difficult situations
confrontation, 120–121
discrepancies, 93–94, 123
disordered eating
counselling skills, 213–214
faulty coping mechanisms, 212
physical and mental health difficulties, 211–214
providing a helping relationship, 212–213
needs of the child, 191–192
overprotective parents, 197–198
structured interview, 192–193
well-behaved child, 197
withdrawal of child, 195–196
working with more than one person, 153–154, 159–161
working with parents and children, 190–200
family meetings, 159–161

feelings
assertiveness, 133–134
helpful interventions, 124, 126
loss and bereavement, 168–169
patient–dietitian relationship, 44
structured interview, 65–68

FEW mnemonic, 136–137, 141, 143
first impressions
appearance and status, 66–67
assumptions and stereotyping, 67–68
culture, 67
patient–dietitian relationship, 44
structured interview, 65–68

frame of reference, 13
genuine see core conditions 34, 39–40 goal setting, 185–186
group work, 162–165
counselling skills and, 164–165
demographics, 162
dynamics of group, 162–163
group process, 163–164
size of group, 162

Health Education Authority, 178 hearing difficulties, 205
helpful interventions, 115–130
addressing sensitive issues, 125 asking questions, 121–122 choosing a focus, 124
closed questions, 123
cognitive behavioural therapy, 126–130
concepts and definitions, 116–117
confronting absolutes, 123, 127–128 examining attitudes, 117–118 highlighting paradoxes, discrepancies and inconsistencies, 123 moving towards a helping conversation, 115–116
open questions, 122
physical and mental health difficulties, 209–211
providing the core conditions, 118–119
replacing negative thoughts, 127–129
timing and level of intervention, 119–121 types of intervention, 116 ways to intervene, 121–126
when not believing the patient, 125–126

Helping People Change model, 6
helping process, 45–61
clarifying what the patient wants, 52–54 confidence, 47–50
coping with ambivalence, 57–58
culture, 182–183
developmental stages, 51–54
dietitian’s concerns, 46
ending process, 59–60
keeping boundaries, 46–51
listening to the patient’s story, 51–52 making a contract 72
physical and mental health difficulties, 212–213
planning ways to achieve goals, 54
professional and personal limitations, 50–51
psychological process of change, 55–57
referrals, 50–51
reviewing, encouraging and supporting, 54
structured interview, 78–79
support for the dietitian, 61
systemic awareness, 58–59
time boundaries, 47
high-risk responses, 101–103
holistic approach, 58–59
humanistic counselling, 16–17
incongruities, 93–94
inconsistencies, 123
introductions, 68, 183–184
invisible disabilities, 208

jargon, 184–185
judgements
acknowledgement, 226–227
active listening, 91, 94
assertiveness, 141, 149
culture, 181–183, 189
helpful interventions, 129
loss and bereavement, 170
mindfulness, 18, 224–225
structured interview, 80

labelling, 129
language
culture, 157–158, 184–188
interpreters, 186–188
mirroring, 112
power of, 105–107
working with more than one person, 157–158

limits
knowing, 12, 234
working within, 50, 147, 174, 213, 216

listening see active listening
loss and bereavement, 166–175
appetite loss, 173–174
confronting mortality, 172–174
health changes, 172
how the dietitian can help, 169–170
how loss concerns dietitians, 166–167 need to grieve, 168–169
physical and mental health difficulties, 209–211
process of grieving, 168–169 reactions to grief, 168
self-esteem, 167, 171–172
support for patient and dietitian, 174 weight changes, 171
working with parents and children, 199–200

low-risk responses, 101
manipulation, 134, 139
MB-EAT see Mindfulness-Based Eating Awareness Training
mental health see physical and mental health difficulties MI see motivational interviewing
mindfulness
patient-centred approach, 18
physical and mental health difficulties, 213–214
self-awareness, 224–225
Mindfulness-Based Eating Awareness Training, 214
mirroring, 96, 112
mobility difficulties, 207
moderate-risk responses, 101
motivation, 71–72
motivational interviewing, 6, 57–58 movement difficulties, 207
multidisciplinary teams, 216
National Health Service, 4, 6–7, 177–180
negativity, 106–107
neuro-linguistic programming, 17–18, 112
NHS see National Health Service
NLP see neuro-linguistic programming
non-verbal communication
active listening, 91–94
culture, 186, 189
structured interview, 71–72
obesity, 6, 213–214
observation, 94–95
open questions, 122
overprotective parents, 197–198
paradoxes, 123
paraphrasing, 108
parents and children, 190–200
absent parent, 198–199
aggressive parents, 198
angry child, 196–197
challenges for the dietitian, 190–191
dying child, 199–200
family behaviours, 192–195
needs of the child, 191–192
overprotective parents, 197–198
structured interview, 192–193
well-behaved child, 197
withdrawal of child, 195–196
passivity, 134, 139
patient-centred approach
adapting to change, 30–31
approaches to counselling and psychotherapy, 5–6, 15–18 beginnings of structured interview, 62–69 change in culture, 179
changing approaches to health care provision, 5–7 circumstances surrounding patient–dietitian relationship, 33–34 concerns of the dietitian, 46 concerns of the patient, 23–24 control, compliance and responsibility, 5–6, 10
coping with ambivalence, 57–58
core conditions for a helping relationship, 34–40
developing a counselling approach, 10–11 developmental stages of the helping process, 51–54
development of, 7–8
dietitian, 3–21
ending process, 59–61
endings of structured interview, 81–84 evidence base, 18–19
expectations of the patient, 25–26 feelings of the patient, 24–25 framework for structured interview, 62
helping process, 45–61
introducing a patient-centred approach, 179 introducing counselling skills, 8–10 issues arising between patient and dietitian, 40–42
keeping boundaries, 46–51
middles of structured interview, 69–80 nature of change, 26–27
patient, 22–33
patient–dietitian relationship, 33–44
patient satisfaction, 31–32
personal and professional development, 12–15
physical and mental health difficulties, 202–203
prescriptive approach, 32
providing care, 12
psychological process of change, 55–57
qualities for a dietitian to develop, 11–12 reactions to change, 27–30
structured interview, 62–84
support for the dietitian, 61
systemic awareness, 58–59
using a patient-centred approach, 22
working alliance, 42–44
patient–dietitian relationship, 33–44
acceptance, 34, 37–39
circumstances surrounding, 33–34
core conditions for a helping relationship, 34–40
dependency, 41
empathy, 34–37
ending process, 59–61
first impressions, rapport and ruptures, 44
genuineness, 34, 39–40
goals of a working alliance, 43
issues arising between patient and dietitian, 40–42
monitoring the relationship, 79–80
power, 40–41
structured interview, 79–80
sympathy, 34–35
tasks in psychotherapy, 43
therapeutic bond, 42–43
transference and counter-transference, 41–42
working alliance, 42–44
peer discussion, 243–244
personal counselling, 244–246
personal and professional development
ABILITY mnemonic, 239–240
acknowledgement, 226–227
asking for support, 237–238
building a support network, 236–237
communication skills training, 241–242
constructive support, 239–240
coping with stress, 227–231
counselling skills training, 242–243
culture, 179–180
frame of reference, 13
giving and receiving support, 233–247
giving support, 238–240
importance of self-awareness, 223–224
knowing your limits, 234
mindfulness, 224–225
patient-centred approach, 7–8, 12–15
personal counselling, 244–246
reflective diaries, 231
reflective practice, 14–15
self-awareness, 13, 223–232
self-esteem, 225–227
self-worth, 13–14
supervision, 244
supporting yourself, 235–236
supportive peer discussion, 243–244
time for ourselves, 224, 231
training, assessment and monitoring, 240–243
unwinding, 229–231
ways to build self-esteem, 226–227
ways to develop self-awareness, 224–225
when support is needed, 233–234 person-centred counselling, 16–17, 164, 240 physical contact, 97–98
physical and mental health difficulties, 201–219
appearance, 207–208
confidentiality, 218
counselling skills, 213–214
disordered eating, 211–214
eating disorders, 213–216
effect on dietitian, 203 effect on patient, 202–203 external resources, 204 hearing, 205
helpful interventions, 209–211
internal resources, 203–204
invisible disabilities, 208
loss and bereavement, 209–211
making appropriate referrals, 215–216
mental health, 208–218
minority needs as part of society, 201–202 mobility and movement, 207
multidisciplinary teams, 216
physical difficulties, 204–208
providing a helping relationship, 212–213
recognising anxiety and depression, 208–209 resources for dietitian to develop, 203–204 sight, 205–206
speech, 206
suicidal thoughts, 217–218
supervision, training and support, 216 posture, 93
power, 40–41, 105–107
praise, 144–145
prejudice, 181–183, 189
preparation for delivering a clear message, 135
prescriptive approach
control, compliance and responsibility, 5–6, 10
dietitian, 4–5
patient, 32
psycho-dynamic counselling, 15–16
psychotherapy
approaches to, 15–18
attunement, 88
containment, 159
boundaries, 46, 159
eating disorders 216
choosing in relationships, 157 goals, tasks 43
patient-centred approach, 5–6, 15–18
patient–dietitian relationship, 42–44
mental health difficulties, 208
reassurance, 102
supervision, 245
therapeutic bond, 42
training in counselling skills, 242 questions
asking, 59, 69, 100, 121
answering, 64, 122–123, 157, 184, 198
clarifying, 52, 239
concerning confidentiality, 48–50
closed questions, 79, 121–123, 149
exploring a wider context, 59
for setting goals, 54
frequently asked by patients, 23
open questions, 52, 79, 121–122, 144
rapport, 44, 76
referrals
as part of the helping process, 50–51
confidentiality, 218
for counselling, 246
for those with physical and mental health difficulties, 215–216, 218
making appropriate referrals, 46
reflection about
assertiveness, 135
giving and receiving support, 235
patient-centred approach, 14–15
self-awareness, 224, 231
structured interview, 83–84
working with parents and children, 193–195
reflective diaries, 231
reflective responding, 107–114
focusing on feelings, 111–112
giving and receiving support, 238–239
helpful interventions, 120
loss and bereavement, 170, 173
mirroring language, 112
skill of reflecting, 109–111
technique of reflecting, 108–109
when to use, 113–114
rehearsal, 135
relapse, 55
repeating word for word, 108
responding, 99–114
  effects of, 99–100
  focusing on feelings, 111–112
  giving and receiving support, 238–239
  helpful interventions, 120
  high-risk responses, 101–103
  language of doubt, 106
  language of negativity, 106–107 language of success and failure, 106
  loss and bereavement, 170, 173
  low-risk responses, 101
  mirroring language, 112
  moderate-risk responses, 101
  paraphrasing, 109
  power of language, 105–107
  purpose behind a response, 104–105
  reflective responding, 107–114, 120, 170, 173, 238–239
  self-disclosure, 103–104
  skill of reflecting, 109–111
  summarising, 108
  technique of reflecting, 108–109
  types of response, 100–104 use of we, you and I, 105
  very high-risk responses, 103
  when to use reflective responding, 113–114 responsibility
  helpful interventions, 117
  prescriptive approach, 5
  working with more than one person, 161
reviewing, 54, 83–84
ruptures (in the working alliance), 44
self-awareness
  acknowledgement, 226–227
  assertiveness, 132
  coping with stress, 227–231
  dietitian, 13
  importance of, 223–224
  knowing your limits, 234
  mindfulness, 18, 224–225
  patient–dietitian relationship, 38
  personal and professional development, 223–231
  reflective diaries, 231
  self-esteem, 225–227
  time for ourselves, 224, 231
  unwinding, 228–231
  ways to build self-esteem, 226–227
  ways to develop self-awareness, 224–225
self-confidence, 171
self-criticism, 38, 226
self-disclosure, 103–104
self-esteem
  acknowledgement, 226–227
  assertiveness, 133
  loss and bereavement, 167, 171–172
  personal and professional development, 225–227
  ways to build, 226–227
self-harm, 217–218
self-worth, 13–14, 172
sensitive issues, 125
shock, 28
sight difficulties, 205–206
silences, 95
social rituals and customs, 186
speech difficulties, 206
stammering, 206
starting points, 68–69
status, 66–67
stereotyping, 67–68
stress
  coping with, 227
  culture, 180
  effect on language, 184
  recognising signs, 228
  self-awareness, 227–231
  unwinding, 228–231
structured interview, 62–84
  acknowledging the ending, 81
  appearance and status, 66–67
  assessing motivation, 71–72
  assumptions and stereotyping, 67–68
  beginnings, 62–69
  contracts, 72–73
  culture, 67, 187–188
  diet history, 73–75
  endings, 81–84
  first impressions, 65–68
  framework for the interview, 62–63 future directions, 82
  giving dietary advice, 75–78
  interview setting, 63
  introductions, 68
  middles, 69–80
  monitoring the relationship, 79–80
  opening the interview, 65 personal preparations, 64 position of desk, 63
  practical preparations, 64
  preparing to provide a helping relationship, 64 proximity and orientation, 64
  reflection and review, 83–84
  saying goodbye, 82–83
  seating, 63
  setting the agenda, 69–70
  starting points, 68–69
  summarising what has taken place, 81–82
  tracking the helping process, 78–79
  working with parents and children, 192–193
success (language of), 106
suicidal thoughts, 217–218
summarising, 108, 110–111
supervision concerning
  personal and professional development, 244
  physical and mental health difficulties, 216
structured interview, 79
support
  ABILITY mnemonic, 239–240
  asking for support, 237–238
  building a support network, 236–237
  communication skills training, 241–242
  constructive support, 239–240
  counselling skills training, 242–243
  giving and receiving support, 233–247
giving support, 238–240
helping process, 54, 61
knowing your limits, 234
personal counselling, 244–246
supervision, 79, 216, 244
supporting yourself, 235–236
supportive peer discussion, 243–244
training, assessment and monitoring, 240–243
when support is needed, 233–234
sympathy, 34–35
systemic awareness, 58–59
systemic therapy, 17

TA see transactional analysis tentative reflection, 109, 112
therapeutic bond, 42–43
thoughts concerning
helpful interventions, 124, 126–130
loss and bereavement, 168–169
replacing negative thoughts, 127–129
suicidal thoughts, 217–218
time boundaries, 47, 186
timing of interventions, 119–121
touching, 97–98
transactional analysis, 5, 17, 225–226
transference, 41–42
trust, 212

unwinding, 228–231

very high-risk responses, 103
vocal cues, 91–92

well-behaved child, 197
withdrawal (of a child), 195–196
working alliance, 42–44
first impressions, rapport and ruptures, 44
goals, 43
tasks in psychotherapy, 43
therapeutic bond, 42–43
working with more than one person, 153–165

agendas of those present, 156 case examples, 156–158, 160–161 dynamics between those present, 155–156, 162–163
language and culture of those present, 157–158
issues to consider, 155–158
language and culture of those present, 157–158

leading the consultation, 161
maintaining equity, 158–159 reasons for others to be present, 153–154 relationships between those present, 156 responsibility for finding a solution, 161 risks and benefits, 154–155
size of group, 162
when others are in the room, 153–155