Contents

Foreword, xiv
About the authors, xvi
Preface to the third edition, xvii
Acknowledgements, xx
Introduction, xxi
About the companion website, xxv

Part 1: Using a counselling approach in patient-centred practice, 1

1 The dietitian, 3
   The role of the dietitian, 3
   Using a prescriptive approach, 4
      Control, compliance and responsibility, 5
   Changing approaches to providing health care, 5
   Developing a patient-centred approach, 7
   Introducing counselling skills, 8
   Developing a counselling approach, 10
      Portrait of a dietitian using a counselling approach, 10
   Qualities for a dietitian to develop, 11
      Providing care, 12
   Personal and professional development, 12
      Self-awareness, 13
      Frame of reference, 13
      Self-worth, 13
      Reflective practice, 14
      Benefits of reflective practice, 14
      Use of the word ‘reflection’, 15
   Different approaches to counselling and psychotherapy, 15
      Psychoanalytic approach, 15
      Behavioural and cognitive approaches, 16
      Humanistic approach, 16
      Transactional Analysis, 17
      Systemic therapy, 17
      Neuro-linguistic programming, 17
      Mindfulness, 18
Overview of the evidence concerning the use of communication skills in dietetic practice, 18
References, 19

2 The patient, 22
Using a patient-centred approach, 22
The concerns of the patient, 23
The feelings of the patient, 24
The expectations of the patient, 25
The nature of change, 26
  Change has a ripple effect, 26
  Change occurs in a number of ways, 26
  People react and adapt to change in various ways, 27
  Change is paradoxical, in that we both want it and do not want it, 27
  Change can have implications of which we are not aware, 27
Reactions to change, 27
  Shock, 28
  Release of emotion, 28
  Talking about it, 28
  Ambivalence, 29
  Bargaining, 29
  Doubt about being able to cope, 29
  Blame, 30
  Distancing, 30
Adapting to change, 30
Patient satisfaction, 31
References, 32

3 The relationship between dietitian and patient, 33
Circumstances surrounding the dietitian’s relationship with the patient, 33
Core conditions for a helping relationship, 34
  Empathy, 34
  Acceptance, 37
  Genuineness, 39
Issues arising between patient and dietitian: power, dependency, transference and counter-transference, 40
  Power, 40
  Dependency, 41
  Transference and counter-transference, 41
The working alliance, 42
  A therapeutic bond, 42
  Goals, 43
  Tasks, 43
  Further points to consider, 44
References, 44
4 Aspects of the helping process, 45
The dietitian’s concerns, 46
Keeping boundaries: how the dietitian can manage time, confidentiality and referral, 46
  Establishing a time boundary, 47
  Maintaining confidentiality, 47
  Recognising professional and personal limitations: when, how and where to make a referral, 50
Recognising the different developmental stages of the helping process, 51
  Stage 1: Listening to the patient’s story, 51
  Stage 2: Clarifying what the patient wants, 52
  Stage 3: Planning ways to achieve goals, 54
Looking at the psychological process of change, 55
  Putting it into practice, 55
Coping with ambivalence, 57
Incorporating systemic awareness, 58
  Examples of questions to ask about diet and the home situation, 59
How to end, 59
Support for the dietitian, 61
References, 61

5 Conducting a structured interview, 62
A framework for the interview, 62
Beginnings, 63
  The interview setting, 63
  Preparing to provide a helping relationship, 64
  Opening the interview, 65
  Forming first impressions, 65
  Making introductions, 68
  Finding a starting point, 68
Middles, 69
  Setting the agenda, 69
  Assessing motivation, 71
  Making a contract, 72
  Taking a diet history, 73
  Giving dietary advice, 75
  Monitoring the relationship, 79
Endings, 81
  Acknowledging the ending, 81
  Summarising what has taken place, 81
  What next?, 82
  Saying goodbye, 82
  After the interview, 83
References, 84
Part 2: The skills, 85

6 Active listening, 87
   The process of listening, 87
   Attending: a way of demonstrating acceptance, 88
      Attending is giving someone our attention as fully as we can, 88
      A listener who conveys acceptance is someone who is safe to talk to, 89
   Barriers to attending, 90
      Eye contact, 90
      Environment, 90
      Events and emotions, 90
      Echoes within, 91
   Attending to non-verbal communication, 91
      Voice, 91
      Eye contact, 92
      Facial expression, 92
      Appearance, 93
      Posture, 93
      Gesture, 93
   Discrepancies and incongruities, 93
   Developing powers of observation, 94
   Distinguishing between observation and interpretation, 94
   Managing silences, 95
   Mirroring, 96
   Touching, 97
   References, 98

7 Ways of responding, 99
   The effects of responding, 99
   Types of response, 100
      Low-risk responses, 101
      Moderate-risk responses, 101
      High-risk responses, 101
      Very high-risk responses, 103
      Self-disclosure, 103
   The purpose behind a response, 104
   The power of language, 105
      Use of ‘we’, ‘you’ and ‘I’, 105
      Language of success or failure, 106
      Language of doubt, 106
      Language of negativity, 106
   Reflective responding, 107
      The technique of reflecting, 108
      The skill of reflecting, 109
      Focusing on feelings, 111
Mirroring language, 112
When to use reflective responding, 113
   When reflective responding is not helpful, 113
References, 114

8 Making helpful interventions, 115
Moving towards a helping conversation, 115
Helpful interventions, 116
Examining attitudes, 117
Providing the core conditions when making a helpful intervention, 118
Timing and level of intervention, 119
Ways to intervene, 121
   Asking questions, 121
   Open questions, 122
   Closed questions, 123
   Highlighting paradoxes, discrepancies and inconsistencies, 123
   Confronting absolutes, 123
   Choosing a focus, 124
   Addressing sensitive issues, 125
   When the dietitian does not believe the patient, 125
Helping someone towards clearer thinking using CBT, 126
   Recognising thoughts and distinguishing them from feelings, 126
      ‘What’s going through your mind when you think that?’, 126
References, 130

9 Conveying a clear message: assertiveness in action, 131
Counselling skills and assertiveness, 131
What is assertive communication?, 132
Developing assertiveness, 132
   Self-awareness and assertiveness, 132
   Self-esteem and assertiveness, 133
Communicating feelings, 133
   Aggression, 133
   Passivity, 134
   Manipulation, 134
Advantages and disadvantages of assertiveness, 134
   Advantages, 134
   Disadvantages, 135
Delivering a clear message, 135
   Preparation and reflection, 135
   Rehearsal, 135
   Delivery, 135
Examples of assertiveness skills in practice, 136
   With a patient, 136
   With a GP practice manager, 137
Confronting difficult situations, 138
  Confrontation from a colleague, 139
  Confrontation from a patient, 139
  Confronting a patient, 140
  Confronting a colleague, 141
Handling criticism and praise, 142
  Criticism, 142
  Praise, 144
  Support with handling criticism and praise, 145
Dealing with aggressive behaviour, 145
  Assessing risks, 146
  Taking care of yourself, 146
  Defusing the situation, 147
  Be A DEFUSER, 147
  Coping with the after-effects, 148
An ABC for conveying a clear message, 148
References, 150

Part 3: Putting skills into practice: further considerations, 151

10 Working with more than one person, 153
  When others are in the room, 153
    Reasons for others to be present, 153
    Context of the interview, 154
    Risks and benefits of involving another person, 154
Issues to consider when others are present, 155
  Dynamics between those present, 155
  Agendas of those present, 156
  Relationships between those present, 156
  Language and culture of those present, 157
Maintaining equity and creating structure and boundaries, 158
  Maintaining equity, 158
  Creating structure and boundaries, 159
Family meetings, 159
  Example, 160
  Who is responsible for finding a solution?, 161
  Who is leading the consultation?, 161
Group work, 162
  Group size, 162
  Group demographics, 162
  Group dynamics, 162
  Group process, 163
  Using counselling skills with a group, 164
References, 165
11 Coping with loss and bereavement, 166
   How loss concerns dietitians, 166
   The need to grieve, 168
      Our reactions to grief, 168
      The process of grieving, 168
   How the dietitian can help, 169
   Loss of weight: a loss or a gain?, 171
   Loss of self-esteem, 171
   Loss of health: living under threat of death, 172
   Loss of appetite, 173
   Support for the patient and the dietitian, 174
   References, 175

12 Developing cultural awareness, 176
   What is culture?, 176
   Cultural changes within dietetics and the NHS, 177
      Move away from tradition and hierarchy, 177
      Prevention of disease and the rise of nutrition, 178
      Growth of the profession and an increase in diversity, 178
      Introducing a patient-centred approach, 179
      Evidence-based practice and CPD, 179
      Stress from change and limited resources, 180
   Developing cultural awareness, 180
      Prejudice and its development, 181
      Attitudes and expectations, 182
   Effect of prejudice on the helping relationship, 182
   Towards more effective communication, 183
      Example, 183
      Making introductions and establishing credentials, 183
      Language, 184
      Boundaries and goal setting, 185
      Social rituals and customs, 186
   Making effective use of an interpreter, 186
      Who is the interpreter?, 186
      Preparing for the interview, 187
      Working with an asylum seeker, 188
   Coping with difficulties, 188
      Ways of building bridges, 188
   References, 189

13 Working with parents and children, 190
   Challenges for the dietitian, 190
   The needs of the child, 191
   Meeting the family, 192
      Background, 192
Interview, 192
Reflections, 193
Considerations, 193
Making a plan, 194
Next meeting, 194
Summary of how Sue worked with Peter, 195
When a child withdraws, 195
Guidelines for handling this situation, 196
The angry child, 196
Guidelines for handling this situation, 196
The well-behaved child, 197
Guidelines for handling this situation, 197
Overprotective parents, 197
Guidelines for handling this situation, 198
Aggressive parents, 198
Guidelines for handling this situation, 198
The absent parent, 198
Guidelines for handling this situation, 199
The dying child, 199
Guidelines for handling this situation, 199
Reference, 200

14 Working with difficulties in physical and mental health, 201
Minority needs as part of society, 201
Effect on patient and dietitian, 202
The patient, 202
The dietitian, 203
Resources for the dietitian to develop, 203
Internal resources, 203
External resources, 204
Physical difficulties, 204
Hearing, 205
Sight, 205
Speech, 206
Mobility and movement, 207
Appearance, 207
Invisible disabilities, 208
Mental health, 208
Recognising anxiety and depression, 208
How the dietitian can help, 209
Helping those with eating distress: disordered eating and eating disorders, 211
Hearing suicidal thoughts: how can I bear it?, 217
Maintaining confidentiality when making a referral, 218
References, 219
Part 4: Areas for personal and professional development, 221

15 Developing self-awareness, 223
   Why self-awareness is important, 223
   Ways to develop self-awareness, 224
      Time for ourselves, 224
      Becoming more mindful, 224
   Self-esteem, 225
   Ways to build self-esteem, 226
      Acknowledgement, 226
      Tips for building self-esteem, 227
   Coping with stress, 227
      Ways to unwind, 229
   Keeping a reflective diary, 231
   References, 231

16 Giving and receiving support, 233
   When support is needed, 233
   Knowing your limits, 234
   Supporting yourself, 235
      Reflecting on practice, 235
      Creating a dialogue, 235
   Building a support network, 236
   Asking for support, 237
      Tips for asking for support, 237
   Giving support, 238
      Tips for giving support, 239
      Giving constructive support, 239
   Support from training, assessment and monitoring, 240
      Training in communication skills, 241
      Training in counselling skills, 242
   Supportive peer discussion, 243
      Making arrangements, 243
      Managing the session, 243
   Supervision, 244
   Personal counselling, 244
      What does counselling involve?, 245
      Who seeks counselling?, 246
   References, 247

Index, 248