Contents

Acknowledgments vii

1 Nozick’s Introduction and Preface 1
  1. Why Read a Book about a Book? 1
  2. The Preface 4

2 Ethical Bearings 9
  1. Foundations, Such as They Are 9
  2. Moral Constraints and Moral Goals 11
  3. Why Side Constraints? 16
  4. The “Formal Argument” 20
  5. What Are Constraints Based On? 27
  6. Constraints and Animals 32

3 The Experience Machine 40
  1. What Is the Argument Here? 40
  2. Some Criticisms 44

4 Why State of Nature Theory? 54
  1. Grounding Political Philosophy 54
  2. Explanatory Political Theory 57
  3. Potential Fundamental Explanations of a Realm 60
  4. Law- and Fact-Defective Potential Explanations 65

5 The Invisible Hand and the Justification of the State 70
  1. What Needs to Be Shown? 70
  2. The Invisible Hand 71
  3. The Dominant Protective Association 74
  4. What Is the Argument, so far, Supposed to Show? 75
  5. Does the Argument Succeed? 76

6 Risk, Fear, and Procedural Rights 85
  1. The Minimal State, Ultraminimal State, and the Dominant
     Protective Association 85
  2. General Outlines of the Argument 87
Contents

3. Dividing the Benefits of Exchange 89
4. Fear and Victim Compensation 92
5. The Risk Argument 96
6. Preemptive Attack 99
7. Procedural Rights 103
8. The Principle of Compensation 107
9. Unproductive Exchange and Explaining Why Blackmail Is Wrong 111
10. Assessing the Unproductive Exchange Argument 114
11. Conclusion 117

7 Has the Dominant Protective Association Become a State? 125
1. What Does the Argument Prove, if Successful? 125
2. The Monopoly of Force 130
3. Protecting Everyone 132
4. Defining the State 137
5. How the State Functions 140
6. Is the DPA’s Failure to Claim Legitimacy a Deficiency? 146

8 Distributive Justice 154
1. Some Terminology and Basic Concepts 154
2. The Entitlement View 158
3. A Taxonomy of Principles 159
4. The Adventures of Wilt Chamberlain 162
5. Assessing Nozick’s Arguments 165
6. The Problem 173
7. A Possible Solution 175
8. The Proviso 181
9. Where is the Baseline? 184
10. Why this Proviso? 187
11. Taxation, Slavery, and Demoktesis 192

9 The Search for Utopia 200
1. Introduction 200
2. An Unusual Sort of Utopianism 200
3. Two More Conditions 206
4. Projecting the Model 207
5. The Three Paths 209
6. Would We Utopianize? 212
7. A Stability Problem 214
8. The Prospects for Utopia in the Framework’s Filter 219

Index 225