Contents

Preface ix
Introduction: Two Variations on a Theme 1

1 • What Is a Master Therapist Anyway—and How Do You Get to Be One? 11
  What Is a Master Therapist? 13
  Different Standards of Mastery 15
  Client and Therapist Perceptions of Outcomes 18
  Definitions of Mastery by Experts on the Subject 20

2 • What We (Think We) Know So Far 25
  A Movement Toward Consensus 25
  What Does Make a Difference? 28
  Talking to the Masters 34
  What Famous Therapists Appear to Have in Common 38

3 • Deep Compassion and Caring 45
  Creating Connections 46
  Commitment and Investment 52
  The Growth Edge 57

4 • Sophisticated Interpersonal Skills: Really, Really Listening 61
  “How’d You Do That?” 65
  Little Things Make a Huge Difference 68
Listening Differently 71
Being in the Moment 74

5 Being Fully Present While Focusing on the Other 75
   Altered States of Being 79
   Mind Chatter 80
   A Way of Being 84
   Staying Present With Ourselves 87

6 Knowing What Maybe/Probably/Mostly Makes a Difference 89
   What Makes a Difference? 91
   Beyond Understanding: Honoring Magic and Mystery 108

7 Speaking the Truth 111
   Lies in Therapy 112
   Confronting Deception 113
   Hard Truths 118
   Taking Risks and Exploring the Unknown 123

8 Making Mistakes—But Not the Same Ones Over and Over 127
   Making Mistakes Isn’t the Problem 128
   Practicing Self-Compassion 133
   Most Common Mistakes 136
   Mistakes or Just Data to Process? 141

9 Inviting and Responding to Constructive Feedback 143
   Sources of Feedback 148
   Clients Are the Best Teachers 149
   Feedback That’s Most Helpful 150
   Processing Feedback Gratefully 151
   Being Accountable to Ourselves, Our Colleagues, and Our Clients 153
Life-Changing Feedback 157
Recruiting Master Coaches and Mentors 158
How We Know What We Know 165

10  Who You Are Is as Important as What You Do 167
Who We Are Versus What We Do 168
Qualities of Master Therapists 169
Practicing Self-Compassion 175
Modeling As Best We Can 176

11  Acknowledging Commonalities, Responding to Differences 181
Multiple Cultural Identities 182
An Individual’s Multiplicity of Cultures 183
What We Share in Common 188
Metabolizing Theory and Embracing Complexity 189

12  Love Is a Four-Letter Word in Therapy 193
Multiple Dimensions of Caring 194
Owning Our Personal Motives 196
Learning How to Love 197
Love Is Always Possible 199

13  Getting Wild and a Little Crazy: Promoting Creative Breakthroughs 205
When Models and Theories Limit Our Creative Options 206
Sorting Out All the Voices in Our Heads 209
On Being Creative 211
Seeking New Knowledge While Embracing Mystery 214
You’ve Never Heard of the Most Creative Therapists 218
Thinking Differently About Problems 221
Where Has Creativity Gone? 224
14 Promoting Social Interest and Advocacy
- Who Has Time for This? 228
- Real Master Therapists in Action 229
- Consistent Themes Related to Advocacy Efforts 236
- Let’s Be Honest, Really Honest 237
- Full Circle 240

15 Being a Work in Progress 243
- A Voracious Curiosity 244
- Confronting Despair Versus Hope 246
- What Has Been Most Helpful Along the Way 250
- What Has Been Least Helpful Along the Way 257
- It’s About Relationships, Not Content 259
- Mastery Means Being Able to Accept Mystery 261

Epilogue 265
References 267
About the Authors 279
Index 281