INDEX

A

AACSB International, 177

Accounting discipline: Analytical Thinking taught in, 71–73; coursework based around, 42–44; PRL coursework (Stern School) on, 55–59; student’s market view is shaped by, 44–46

Achievement motivation, 156

Adler, P. S., 47

Advanced Financial Accounting course (IU), 103

Agency theory, 45

Amabile, T., 155–156

American Association of Colleges and Schools of Business (AACSB), 25–26

American Association of State Colleges and Universities, 177

American Democracy Project, 177

Analytical Thinking: curriculum for teaching, 61–63, 71–74; definition of, 60; intro accounting courses application of, 71–73; as liberal dimension, 59, 60; teaching more complex contexts of, 73–74. See also Conceptual thinking

Arizona State University, Tempe, 120

Arts. See Liberal education

Asher, J. W., 104

Ashraf, M., 91

Association of American Colleges and Universities (AAC&U), 59, 133, 174, 177

Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, 25

Astin, A. W., 125

AT&T case study, 98–99

The Automobile: Economy, Politics, and Culture (LAMP seminar), 78–79

B

Babbitt (Lewis), 178

Babson College: as BELL project site, 7, 8; Coaching for Teamwork and Leadership (CTL) Program at, 92–94, 126–127; entrepreneurship curriculum at, 141, 158; Foundations of Management and Entrepreneurship (FME) course at, 35–38, 82–84, 90–91, 94–95, 99–100, 145–146; Management Consulting Field Experience course at, 95

Badaracco, J. L., Jr., 98

Baker, G., 84–86

Beaumont, E., 154, 170

BELL (Business, Entrepreneurship, and Liberal Learning) project initiative, 2–3

BELL project study: assumptions on liberal learning by business students, 68–69; on building institutional integration intentionality, 111–131; design of the, 7–9; list of site visit institutions visited during, 7–8; observations following site visits, 32–50; reflecting work in the BELL project, 2–3. See also Integrated education; specific institution

Benner, P. E., 7

Bentley University: as BELL project site, 7, 8; Center for Languages and International Collaboration at, 137; Complex Problems, Creative Solutions (CPCS) course at, 158–159; the Davis Workshops for faculty development, 123–124; Global Studies Major at, 139; linking arts and sciences with business courses at, 116–117; LSM (Liberal Studies Major) at, 136–137; the Philosophy of Work course at, 80–81, 108

Bereiter, C., 153

Bledstein, B. J., 16

Blount, S. D., 14

The Board of Consultants, 161

Bond, L., 7

Brandes, E., 18

Brennan, D., 76, 77

Brink, S. G., 16

Brothers and Sisters (Campbell), 108

Brown, T., 151, 153

Buchanan, B., 56, 81–82

“The bullwhip effect” phenomenon, 99–100

Busenitz, L. W., 145

Business education: Abraham Flexner’s critique of, 22, 25; Alfred North Whitehead’s vision of, 22–23, 26; Bell project initiative on, 2–3; historic drive to professionalize, 21–23; managerial profession debate in, 18–21; movement toward professionalism in, 16–18; nineteenth century history impacting, 23–25; rethinking current approach to, 4–7. See also MBA education; Undergraduate business education

Business Environments course (PSU), 101–102

Business professionalism: current and future conditions of, 29–31; deregulation policies and, 26, 27–28; integrative thinking skills for, 30–31, 39–40, 47–48, 149–150; managerial, 18–21, 26; market mind-set of modern, 28–29; preparation of students for 21st century, 46–49; scientific management, 18, 26, 108; social trustee model of, 26; technological changes impacting, 27

BusinessWeek, 43, 165

Business writing: approaches to teaching, 102–104; on writing as inquiry compared to, 104–105

Business–Higher Education Forum, 90

C

Campbell, B. M., 108

Campus culture, 127–130

Carnegie Corporation of New York, 25, 43, 61

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, 176; BELL project initiative of, 2–3

Carnegie Steel, 17

Case-dialogue/case studies pedagogy: business education use of, 95–97; ethical formation of, 97–98; frameworks and heuristics for, 98–99; Kelley School’s business ethics course use of,
98–99; origins of, 20; role-playing used in, 99; simulations used in, 99–102

Center for Languages and International Collaboration (Bentley University), 137
Chandler, A. D., 17
Chandler, G. N., 145
Change by Design (Brown), 153
Cheit, E. F., 24
Chekhov, A., 107
Cicero, 58
Clemson University, 121
Clockwork (film), 108
Coaching for Teamwork and Leadership (CTL) Program [Babson College], 92–94, 126–127
Cocurricular activities: global cultural literacy through, 140–141; integrative education supported through, 125–127
Colby, A., 7, 154, 170
Collective cognition, 151
Collins, C. J., 156
Columbia University, 22
Communication skills: “great conversation” seminars used to teach, 106; integrated approach to teaching, 108–109; rhetorical inquiry, 104; teaching oral, 108–109; teaching written, 102–103
Community-based learning, 94–95
Complex practical reasoning: Analytical Thinking component of, 59, 60–63, 71–74; Multiple Framing component of, 59, 60, 63–65, 74–79; Practical Reasoning component of, 54–55, 59–60, 68, 82–84; question of how to teach, 21; for reconciling conflicting approaches to problems, 47–48; the Reflective Exploration of Meaning component of, 59, 60, 63–67, 79–82, 107, 155; student preparation for 21st century, 46–50. See also Integrative thinking; Leadership
Complex Problems, Creative Solutions (CPCS) course (Bentley University), 158–159
Conceptual thinking, 61. See also Analytical Thinking
Contemporary American Business course (Leavey): compared to other courses, 37, 39; “Mike’s Bikes” simulation used during, 34–35, 101; social intelligence development in, 101
Cooke, M., 7, 11
Corngold, J., 170
Corporate Responsibility course (Wharton), 135, 136, 137
Creativity, 155–156
Crick, E., 6
Croly, H., 18
Cross-pollinators, 152–153
Csikszentmihalyi, M., 155
Curriculum. See Undergraduate business curriculum

D
Dahill, L., 7
The Davis Workshops (Bentley University), 123–124
Day, L., 7
Dell Computers, 27, 44
Deregulation policies, 26, 27–28
The Design of Business (Martin), 153
Distancing practice, 62
Donham, W. B., 16, 20, 23
dot.com boom (2000), 11
Double helix metaphor, 6–7
Downey, G., 62
Downs, A., 116
Drucker, P., 149

E
Economy. See Global economics
Educating Citizens (Colby), 128
The Education of American Businessmen: A Study of University-College Programs in Business Administration (Pierson), 25
Educational reform. See Undergraduate business education reform
Efficient market hypothesis, 164–165
Ehrlich, T., 90, 154, 170
Enders, J., 101–102
Enron failure (2001), 11
Entrepreneurial character formation, 154–156
Entrepreneurship curriculum: collective cognition development through, 151; current approaches to, 145–147; developing team skills through, 150–151; educational implications of, 156–160; entrepreneurial character formation through, 154–156; integrative thinking of, 149–150; as liberal learning, 147–160; reasons for relative neglect of, 144–145; social entrepreneurship, 142–144, 145–147; taking broad view of entrepreneurship, 141–142. See also Innovation curriculum
Ethical formation: case studies and, 97–98; “Friday Letter” (PSU Business Environments class) reporting on, 102; global cultural literacy considerations for, 135–136; Intercollegiate Ethics Bowl and, 127; Kelley School’s business ethics course, 98–99; the Reflective Exploration of Meaning and, 79–81; social intelligence development for, 100–102; stewardship phenomenon taught for, 105
Ethical sensitivity, 97–98
Exploration-versus-instrumental orientation, 40–41

F
Faculty: providing development programs, 122–125; supporting integration efforts by, 174–175
Feedback: intentional of, 93; learning cycle importance of, 91–92
FIFO (first in, first out), 72
Finance discipline: coursework based around, 42–44; PRL coursework (Stern School) on, 55–59; student’s market view is shaped by, 44–46
Fisher, R., 94
Flexner, A., 22, 25
Ford Foundation, 24, 26, 43, 44, 61
Fort Motor Company, 24
Foster, C. R., 7
Foundations of Management and Entrepreneurship (FME) course [Babson College]: computer-based simulation used in, 99–100; description and approach, 35–38; teaching entrepreneurship during, 145–146; teaching for Practical Reasoning, 82–84; team-based supervised practice of, 94–95; teamwork approach of, 90–91
Franklin & Marshall College: as BELL project site, 7, 8; BOS (Business, Organizations, and Society) department at, 118–119; faculty development at, 124–125; Introduction to Economic Perspective course, 76–78
“Free rider problem,” 91–92
Frese, M., 156
“Friday Letter” (PSU Business Environments class), 102

G
Gaglio, C. M., 148, 149, 151
Gardner, H., 155, 156
Global cultural literacy: business curriculum role of, 136–137; business education for, 133–141; cocurricular activities with international dimension for, 140–141; ethical considerations of, 135–136; Globalization and the Culture of Business in East Asia (IU) for, 134–135; study abroad for, 138–139

Global economics: business environment of the, 26–28; current and future conditions of the, 29–31; Great Depression (1930s), 23; Great Recession (2008) impacting, 14; market mind-set of, 28–29; modern reality of interdependence of, 1; preparing students for 21st-century business and, 46–49

Globalization and the Culture of Business in East Asia course (IU), 134–135

Goleman, L., 7

The Good Steward seminar (IU), 105

“Gooseberries” (“Chekhov”), 107

Gordon, R. A., 25, 43

Gordon, S., 37, 83–84

Gould, S. J., 108

“Great conversation” seminars, 106

Great Depression (1930s), 23

Great Recession (2008), 14

Greene, P., 141

Grossman, P., 89

Gruber, H. E., 155

Hammerness, K., 89

Hanges, P. J., 156

Harlem Renaissance, 128

Hart Research Associates, 52

Harvard Business School, 16, 20, 23

Harvard Law School, 20

Harvey Kapnick Business Institutions Program (Northwestern), 120

Heckscher, C. C., 47

Hendler, R., 157–158

Hendry, J., 29, 30, 47

Higher education: challenge of joining professional and liberal, 53–54; exploratory versus instrumental approaches to, 51–53; as formative experience, 4, 32, 52–53; popularity of business major in, 1–2; prioritizing in order to attract federal funds, 24–25; professional, 53–55, 68. See also Liberal education; Undergraduate business education

Higher Education for Business (Gordon and Howell), 25

Hillygus, D. S., 163

Hovland, K., 133

Howell, J. E., 23, 43

Huber, M. T., 174, 176

Hudson, L., 62

Hume, D., 46

Huntsman Program (Wharton School), 137, 139, 140

Hutchings, P., 174

Hutchins, R. M., 106

I-Core (integrated core curriculum) [Indiana University], 96–97

Idealist.org, 146

Indiana University (IU). See Kelley School of Business (IU); Liberal Arts and Management Program (LAMP) [IU]

Innovation curriculum: on cross-pollinators, 152–153; innovation taught as team-based process, 151–153; on social impact of innovation, 153–154. See also Entrepreneurship curriculum

Institutional intentionality. See Integrated education intentionality

Instrumental-versus-exploration orientation, 40–41

Integrated education: an action agenda for, 171–177; building institutional intentionality for, 111–131, 169–170; communication skills, 108–109; double helix metaphor of, 6–7; five recommendations for implementing, 166–171; I-Core (integrated core curriculum) [IU] example of, 96–97; liberal arts and business approaches to, 33–38, 55–59; PRL course (Stern) approach to, 55–59, 64, 107; Wharton’s vision and continued efforts toward, 15–16, 161–162. See also BELL project study; Liberal education; Undergraduate business education

Integrated education agenda: bringing community of stakeholders to consider, 171–173; developing intentional integration strategy, 173; invest in research linked to improving educational quality, 176; partnering to leverage educational change, 176–177; reshaping curriculum supporting liberal learning, 173–174; supporting faculty’s integration efforts, 174–175

Integrated education intentionality: business preparation within the arts and sciences for, 117–121; campus cultural context of, 127–130; cocurricular activities context of, 125–127; critical importance of, 111–112; curricular models and approaches to, 112–121; linking arts and sciences with business courses, 115–117; programmatic emphasis on social impact for, 113–115; programs supporting, 121–125; recommendations for, 169–170

Integrative thinking: description of, 30–31; entrepreneurial curriculum development of, 149–150; laying groundwork for developing, 39–40, 48; successful management as requiring, 47–48. See also Complex practical reasoning; Practical Reasoning

Intercollegiate Ethics Bowl, 127

Intrinsic motivation, 155–156

Irby, D. M., 7

Johns Hopkins University, 21, 22, 159

Johnson, D. W., 89

Johnson, R. T., 89

Joint faculty development programs, 122–125

Journal of Business Venturing, 145

Kanter, R. M., 21

Katz, J. A., 145, 148, 149, 151

Kauffman Foundation, 143–144

Kelley School of Business (IU): Advanced Financial Accounting course at, 103; as BELL project study site, 7, 8; business ethics course at, 98–99; Globalization and the Culture of Business in East Asia course at, 134–135; I-Core (integrated core curriculum) case-study assignment at, 96–97. See also Liberal Arts and Management Program (LAMP) [IU]

Kelley, T., 151, 152, 153, 156

Khurana, R., 15, 16, 22, 23, 25

King, M. L., Jr., 128

King, P. M., 74
Northwestern University, 120
Nussbaum, M. C., 59

O
O'Brien, B. C., 7
Olin, F. W., 141–142
Opinion courses, 109
The Opposable Mind (Martin), 151, 155
Oral communication teaching: engagement with narrative texts, 106–108; integrated approach using, 108–109; two views of, 105–106. See also Written communication teaching
Organizational Communication course (Stern School), 113
Orrill, R., 59

P
Pascarella, E. T., 6, 32
Pathway program (Leavey School of Business), 115–116
Patton, B., 94
Pedagogies: case studies/case-dialogue, 20, 95–102; narrative courses, 109; role-playing: case analysis use of, 99; corporate responsibility course (Wharton), 136; online, 101–102
Rosin, M. S., 62
Rotman School of Management (University of Toronto), 30
Rubin, J., 98–99, 101

S
Sacks, O., 108
Santa Clara University. See Leavey School of Business (SCU)
Sass, S. A., 15, 161, 162
Scardamalia, M., 153
Schneider, C. G., 59
Schumpeter, J., 116
Scientific management, 18, 26, 108
Service learning: Leadership and Communication in Groups course (Wharton), 92, 95; Portland State University capstone course in, 95; as supervised practice learning, 94–95
“Shareholder primacy” view, 45
Shepherd, D., 145
Sheppard, S. D., 7, 11, 89, 154
Sherman, S., 159
Shoenberg, R., 59
Shulman, L. S., 7, 33
SIFE (Students in Free Enterprise), 140
SIFE World Cup, 140
Simulations: Babson College’s FME course use of, 99–100; case study analysis use of, 99; “Mike’s Bikes” (Leavey), 34–35, 101; PSU’s online role-playing, 101–102; social intelligence development using, 100–102; teaching business writing using, 102–103
Sloan School of Management (MIT): as BELL project study site, 7, 8; Managerial Communication course at, 102–103; oral communication approach by, 105–106
Smith, K. A., 89
Social cognition and systems perspective, 142
Social entrepreneurship: current approaches to teaching, 145–147; examining the benefits of, 142–144
Social impact, 142–144, 153–154
Social Impact and Responsibility course (Wharton School), 114–115
Social intelligence development, 100–102
Soybel, V., 71–73
Spino Institute (Clemson University), 121
Standard Oil, 17
Stanford University, 176
Stanislaw, J., 1
Stephens, J., 154
Stern School (New York University): as BELL project site institution, 7, 8; international experiences at, 139; Law, Business, and Society course, 113; Organizational Communication course, 113; Professional Responsibility and Leadership (PRL) course, 53–59, 64, 81–82, 107, 114; programmatic emphasis on social impact at, 113–115; Social Impact Core of the, 57

INDEX
189
Stewardship phenomenon, 105
Student advising programs, 121–122
Students in Free Enterprise (SIFE), 140
Student advising programs, 121–122
Stewardship phenomenon, 105
The Ten Faces of Innovation (Kelley & Littman), 190

Undergraduate business curriculum: accounting
UC Berkeley, 159

UCCLA, 159
Undergraduate business curriculum: accounting discipline of, 42–46, 55–59, 71–73; allowing critical questioning as part of, 37–38; cocurricular activities as part of, 125–127, 140–141; complex practical reasoning taught in, 21; curricular models and approaches to integrative, 112–121; distancing practice demanded by, 62; double helix metaphor of integrative vision of, 6–7; entrepreneurship and innovation emphasis in, 141–147; finance discipline of, 42–46, 55–59; instrumental approach ingrained into, 51–52; integrative thinking development through, 30–31, 39–40, 47–49; introducing four disciplines of the, 42–46;
integrating pluralistic thinking as part of, 5–6;
liberal learning in, 38–41, 54–55, 59–110;
management discipline of, 42–46, 55–59;
marketing discipline of, 42–46, 55–59; normative practical knowledge, 19–20; providing experiences that approximate business practices, 33; shaping market view through, 44–46; training judgment versus proficiency in, 21. See also Pedagogies;
specific institution
Undergraduate business education: an action agenda for integrative approach to, 171–177; agency theory incorporation into, 43; efficient market hypothesis incorporation into, 164–165; five recommendations for strengthening, 166–171; for globally cultural literacy, 133–141; instrumental approach to, 51–52; preparation for 21st-century business, 46–49; site visit and observations about, 32–50;
understood as simplified MBA program, 3, 166.
See also Business education; Higher education;
Integrated education
Undergraduate business education recommendations: business and arts and sciences curricula should be linked, 169; business educators can contribute to teaching arts and sciences, 170–171;
integrative education should be intentional, 169–170; liberal education should be part of business education, 166–168; liberal learning should be incorporated into curriculum, 168
Undergraduate business education reform: an action agenda for integrative, 171–177; challenges of engaging in, 31; five recommendations for, 166–171; revisiting the need for, 162–166; two reports (1959) calling for, 25
Undergraduate business students: Bell project on integrative education of, 2–3; BELL project study assumptions on liberal learning by, 68–69; college experience of, 41–46; entrepreneurial character formation of, 154–156; ethical formation of,
79–81, 97–102, 105; “Friday Letter” (PSU Business Environments class) sent by, 102;
instrumental approach to studies by, 40, 51–52;
instrumental-versus-exploration orientation and,
40–41; popularity of undergraduate, 1–2;
preparing them for 21st-century business, 46–49;
preparing them for 21st-century life, 49–50;
sharing market view of, 44–46; social cognitive and systems perspective of, 142; social intelligence development in, 100–102
U.S. Department of Defense, 24
U.S. News & World Report, 161, 165
Universities (Flexner), 22
University of Chicago, 22, 106
University of Michigan, 176
University of Pennsylvania. See Wharton School
(Penn)
University of Toronto, 30
University of Virginia, 43
Ury, W., 94

Virtu project, 126
Wake Forest University, 43
Walmart, 44
Watson, J. D., 6
Web-based simulations. See Simulations
Wegner, J. W., 7
West, G. P., III, 145, 148, 150, 151
Wharton, J., 15, 16
Wharton School (Penn): Corporate Responsibility course at, 135–136, 137; Huntsman Program at, 137, 139, 140; integrated liberal education for business vision of, 15–16, 161–162; Leadership and Communication in Groups course, 92, 95;
movement toward professionalism at, 162, 168;
Social Impact and Responsibility course at,
114–115; as study institution site, 7, 8
Whitehead, A. N., 22–23, 26
Wiggins, G. P., 170
Williams, A., 91
World War II, 23–24
WorldCom failure (2001), 11
Writing as inquiry, 104–105
Written communication teaching: business writing, 102–104; writing as inquiry, 104–105. See also Oral communication teaching
Yale University, 159
Yergin, D., 1
Zacharakis, A., 145