Contents

Introduction: Welcome to the strategy room
You are not alone  2
The villain is the social side of strategy  4
Where is the outside view?  6
Making big moves happen  8
The journey ahead of us  9

1. Games in the strategy room—and why people play them

- The social side of strategy, in action  15
- The dreaded hockey stick  17
- Can we handle the truth?  20
- Playing the inside game  21
- Send in the guru  22
- The wrong problem for human brains  23
- The biased mind  25
- Now . . . add social dynamics to the mix  27
- When the inside view remains unchecked  31

2. Opening the windows of your strategy room

- The right yardstick  40
- Your business lives on a Power Curve  42
- What we see on the map  44
- Why you are where you are  49
- A fresh perspective with the outside view  53

3. Hockey stick dreams, hairy back realities

- The rise of the hairy back  58
- Getting to yes  60
- A haircut from finance  60
- Bold forecasts  62
- Timid plans  68
- Corporate peanut butter  70
- Shooting for the known  70
- Real hockey sticks  72
Contents

4. What are the odds?
   - The knowable probability of success
   - Flight paths of the upwardly mobile
   - A tale of three companies
   - Where are the odds in the strategy room?
   - The push for certainty
   - You are your numbers

5. How to find the real hockey stick
   - What’s different this time?
   - Check the facts
   - The odds that matter: Yours
   - The 10 variables that make the difference
   - Endowment
   - Trends
   - Moves
   - It all matters
   - The mobility dashboard
   - Know the odds
   - Is that all?

6. The writing is on the wall
   - A very different conversation about strategy
   - Tennis or badminton?
   - Industries are escalators
   - Change your industry or change industries
   - Consider changing locations, too
   - Go micro
   - The need for privileged insights
   - Acting on the writing on the wall
   - The four stages of a disruptive trend
   - Stage one: Signals amid the noise
   - Stage two: Change takes hold
   - Stage three: The inevitable transformation
   - The hardest stage
   - Stage four: Adapting to the new normal
CONTENTS

7. Making the right (big) moves 143
   Big moves are essential 146
   Corning’s story 150
   Programmatic M&A and divestitures 150
   Active resource re-allocation 152
   To re-allocate, you have to de-allocate 156
   Strong capital programs 156
   Caution on capex 158
   Distinctive productivity improvement 158
   Running fast and getting nowhere 159
   Differentiation improvement 162
   Are you playing to your advantage? 165
   Big moves make for good strategy 166

8. Eight shifts to unlock strategy 173
   From annual planning . . . to strategy as a journey 175
   From getting to “yes” . . . to debating real alternatives 177
   From peanut butter . . . to picking your 1-in-10s 181
   From approving budgets . . . to making big moves 184
   From budget inertia . . . to liquid resources 188
   From sandbagging . . . to open risk portfolios 190
   From “you are your numbers” . . . to a holistic performance view 193
   From long-range planning . . . to forcing the first step 196
   The package deal 198

Epilogue: New life in the strategy room 201

Acknowledgments 205

Appendix 207
   About our sample and method 207
   A note on economic profit and total returns to shareholders 209
   How the odds look different from the top or bottom 209
   Life at the top 211
   Life at the bottom 211

Notes 215

Index 227