Contents

About the series xii
Contributors xiii
Foreword xv
Preface xvi
Acknowledgements xvii
How to use your textbook xviii
About the companion website xxii

Chapter 1 To be a midwife 1
Nicky Clark and Carol Paeglis
Introduction 1
The professional status and regulation of midwifery 2
The NMC 2
European Union 3
The International Confederation of Midwives 6
Key midwifery concepts 6
Interpersonal skills and attributes 7
Professional expectations 9
Life as a student midwife 9
The programme 10
The statutory supervision of midwives 12
Raising and escalating concerns 13
Quality assurance 13
Student support 14
Health screening 14
Criminal record 15
Life as a midwife 16
Career routes 16
Conclusion 16
End of chapter activities 17
Glossary of terms 19
References 20

Chapter 2 Team working 22
Mary Beadle and Sue Townend
Introduction 22
Woman-centred care 23
Effective team working 23
What is a team? 24
Leadership 25
Management 25
Contents

Genetic, biological and social parents 95
Conception across the lifespan 102
Disability and parenting 109
Parenting styles and expert advice 110
Conclusion 112
End of chapter activities 113
Glossary of terms 114
References 115

Chapter 6  Antenatal midwifery care 120
Julie Flint and Carol Lambert

- Introduction 120
- National policy on care provision in the United Kingdom 121
- Individualised care of a woman 123
- Being pregnant 124
- Booking for care 125
- Fetal health screening and monitoring 126
- Inherited factors and disorders 127
- Routine care for all pregnant women 128
- Body changes 129
- Deviations from normality 129
- Wellbeing 129
- Women's self-identity and decision-making about care 131
- Midwife–woman relationship for decision-making 133
- Influencing women in their decision-making 133
- Birth preparation and parent education 134
- Conclusion 135
- End of chapter activities 136
- Glossary of terms 137
- References 139

Chapter 7  Intrapartum midwifery care 142
Julie Flint and Sue Townend

- Introduction 142
- Facilitating and maintaining normality in childbirth 143
- Place of birth 145
- Birth preparation for coping with labour 145
- Onset, process and progress of labour 146
- Care and compassion 152
- Birth partners 153
- Assisting the normal physiological process 154
- Outside the parameters of normality 154
- Pain management in labour 154
- Midwifery craftsmanship 155
- Medical intervention 156
- Meeting the baby 157
- Third stage management 157
- Perineal care 158
- Decision-making 159
Chapter 8 Postnatal midwifery care

Louise Lewis and Lisa Lachanidis

Introduction 166

- The history of postnatal care
- Anatomy and physiology of the puerperium
- Immediate postnatal period
- Venous thromboembolism
- Changes to postnatal care
- Physiological maternal morbidity
- Quality standards influencing postnatal care provision
- A time-honoured tradition or a dying art?
- Care and compassion: promoting a healthy psychological adaptation to motherhood
- Engaging fathers
- Safeguarding vulnerable adults and babies
- Where to get help
- Reducing the risk of sudden infant death syndrome
- Postnatal exercise advice for new mothers
- Other responsibilities of the midwife in the postnatal period
- Conclusion
- End of chapter activities
- Glossary of terms
- References

---

Chapter 9 Care of the newborn

Liz Smith and Brenda Waite

Introduction 188

- Transition to extra-uterine life
- Fetal circulation
- Apgar scoring
- Basic resuscitation of the newborn
- Immediate care of the newborn
- Maintaining health in the first few days of life
- Skin care and hygiene of the newborn
- Jaundice
- Neonatal screening
- Advice for parents
- Detailed neonatal examination by the midwife
- Conclusion
- End of chapter activities
- Glossary of terms
- References
Chapter 10 Infant feeding

Louise Lewis and Liz Mason

Introduction 210
Why breastfeeding is important 211
The way breastfeeding works 213
Supporting effective infant feeding 217
Biological nurturing – a different breastfeeding approach 221
Getting enough milk 222
Reasons for expressing breastmilk 224
Identifying and managing common breastfeeding problems 228
When breastfeeding is not recommended 229
Supporting mothers to formula feed 230
Conclusion 231
End of chapter activities 231
Glossary of terms 233
References 234

Chapter 11 Public health and health promotion

Olanma Ogbuehi, Fiona Robinson and Catriona Jones

Introduction 237
The concept and definition of health 238
Epidemiology 240
Demography 241
Conception rates 241
Fertility rates 241
Birth and death statistics 241
Domains of public health 243
Health improvement: the midwife and health promotion 244
Health surveillance 245
Improving health services through clinical audit: confidential enquiries into maternal and child health 245
Health inequalities 246
Determinants of health 247
Guidance for public health 248
Revisiting the midwife’s role in public health 249
Domestic abuse 256
Conclusion 257
End of chapter activities 259
Glossary of terms 260
References 261

Chapter 12 Contraception and family planning

Liz Smith and Sarah Wise

Introduction 266
What is meant by ‘family planning’? 266
Appropriate timing of advice 267
Psychosexual issues 268
Cultural aspects 268