Contents

Preface vii
About the Companion Website ix

PART 1
The Relationship Inventory: Beginning, Fruition, Future 1

1 How Change Happens: The Guidance and Refinement of Theory 3

2 The Classic Investigation of Carl Rogers’ Core Theory 8
   Definitions of the “therapeutic” variables 10
   Instruments and procedure 12
   Experimental hypotheses 16
   Results 17
   Implications and further research 22
   Conclusion 24

3 A Major Revision: Crafting the 64-item RI and Emergent Adaptations 26
   Purposes of the revision 27
   Item analysis and other features 27
   The spread of application with varied adaptations 31
   Conclusion 34

4 Mature and Travelling: The RI “System” in Focus 35
   The theoretical structure of the BLRI reviewed 35
   Phases in dialogue exchange linking to the main inventory forms 38
   Gathering, scoring, and using RI data: Practice and rationale 39
   Reliability and validity: Issues and evidence 43
   New and underused applications of the BLRI 46
   Conclusion 48

5 The BLRI Story Extended: Later Work and Looking Ahead 49
   Reflections on theory and the interrelation of conditions 50
   Later studies and analyses 52
   Where to next? Underexplored and adventurous regions 60
   The spectrum of BL relationship inventories 61
   Conclusion 63
6 Training Applications: Exercises in Facilitation 64
   Use of the whole BLRI early in counsellor training 64
   Learning from interviews in triads with BLRI-derived participant ratings 65
   Conclusion 71

PART 2
The Journeying Self in Personal and Group Relations 73

7 The Contextual Selves Inventory: For the Study of Self in its Diversity 75
   Origins and manifestations of self-diversity 76
   Constructive change in relations within the plural self 78
   Studying the self in context – new focus and method 78
   The CSI poised for fresh inquiry 83
   Conclusion 83

8 Tracking Self and Relational Process in Experiential Groups 85
   End-of-meeting participant process appraisals 86
   Illustrative results from use of the in-group questionnaires 87
   Conclusion 89

PART 3
Reframing: Envisioning the Path Ahead 91

9 Looking Ahead: Fresh Horizons in Relationship Study 93
   Invitations to connected further study of relationship 93
   Towards the study of relations between very large systems 96
   Conclusion 98

Appendix 1: The Relationship Inventory Forms and Scoring Keys 99
Appendix 2: Contextual Selves Inventory and Triad and Group Rating Forms 160
References 175
Index 184