Index

Page references followed by fig indicate an illustrated figure; followed by t indicate a table.

Absenteeism problem, 49
Activity
  autonation interactive sales scenario, 206, 207fig
  characteristics of good and poor interaction, 254t
Cooking with Flair training, 166
Earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction, 37
Expedia phone-based customer service training, 137, 140fig
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 294fig
NYU Medical Center ICIS training, 272, 274–275
POST LERT First Responder training, 193, 195fig–197fig
POST LERT Recognizing and Reporting training, 288, 290fig
Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 247–248fig
short-order chef training, 151
Substance Abuse training, 285, 286fig
supply chain training, 183
What Does Glue Stick? training, 187, 185fig–190fig
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 278–280fig, 281fig
See also CCAF (context, challenge, activity, and feedback) framework
ADDIE model (or ISD) advantages of successive approximation approach over, 309
description of the, 104–106
  five phases of ISD or, 299–300 flawed process of the, 300–301 successive approximation approach superiority over, 309 successive approximation as alternative to, 301
ture story on law book publisher training and poor experience with, 303–304
“A-ha!” experiences, 201
Airline mechanics training objectives, 142–143
Alessi, S. M., 69
Allen Interactions, 311
Allen, M. W., 5, 105, 215
Alpha SAM (Successive Approximations Model) version, 322 Andersen, D., 86
Anderson, L., 370
ARC’s Motivational Model, 368, 372–373
Attention
as dimension of human motivation, 372
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model on, 373
Authentic tasks
Earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction, 37
importance of having learners perform, 192
POST LERT First Responder training, 193–197
Authorware
earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction created using, 39
WorldTutor, 228–229, 231
ZebraZapps, 39, 218–219, 220, 223, 223
Autonation interactive sales scenario, 205–208
“Awareness goals,” 99–100

Behavior, effect of motivation on, 124 Behavior change
creativity role in e-learning projects, 68–69
incentives for, 51–53
See also E-learning goals; Outcomes
Bente, G., 332, 333
Bereiter, C., 375
Berra, Y., 100
Beta SAM (Successive Approximations Model) version, 323
Bio/CMI, 214
Biology Learning Demonstration Center, 214
Blakemore, S., 1

Blended training
improving performance environment with, 54–55 improving training outcomes with, 54–55
Bloom, B., 368, 375
Bloom’s taxonomy, 368, 370, 375
Boggs, D., 23, 25
Bonk, 31
Boring e-learning instruction
as being the most expensive training, 22
as not being effective instruction, 20
why it is deemed “acceptable,” 20–21 Brain research
instructional design guided by theory and, 374–375 problems when applying to instructional design, 69–71
providing insights for teaching, 1
Brainstorming learning experience design, 307, 307
Breuer, J., 332, 333
Bruyckere, P. D., 2, 3, 287
Business problems
disguised competency problems, 47–50
importance of identifying the “real,” 50 nonperformance, 45
performance environment, 53–55
performance-related, 43–45 understanding that most are performance problems, 45–46 Business problem solving
e-learning opportunities for, 46
understanding limitations of training for, 45–47
See also Training
Carlzon, J., 49
Carnegie Mellon University, 86
Cavalier, R., 86
CCAF (context, challenge, activity, and feedback) framework four basic steps in the, 101–102
gamification development using, 365–366
instructional interactivity using the, 238–264
instructional success strategy of, 101–103
parallel uses for entertainment games and SLGs, 346t POST LERT First Responder training using, 193–197fig research findings on e-learning and, 8
See also Activity; Context; Feedback Challenge
autonation interactive sales scenario, 205–206
characteristics of good and poor interaction, 253t–254t
Cooking with Flair training, 166
Expedia phone-based customer service training, 138, 139fig
instructional interactivity component of, 238, 240fig, 247fig, 249–250, 253t–254t
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 294
NYU Medical Center ICIS training, 272, 273fig
POST LERT First Responder training, 193, 194fig
POST LERT Recognizing and Reporting training, 288
providing learners with, 132t, 146–147
Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 247fig
short-order chef training, 150–151
on size fits all versus individualized, 114
Substance Abuse training, 285
supply chain training, 183
trapdoor hints model on, 269
What Does Glue Stick? training, 187, 186fig
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 278
Clark, R., 367
Cognitive skill-building, 86
Common instruction paradigm, 158fig Competence. See Performer competence
Computer-assisted instruction (CAI), 174
Computer History Museum, 8
Computer-managed instruction (CMI), 208, 209
Confidence
as dimension of human motivation, 372t
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model on, 373
Constructivism theory, 69–70
Content
e-learning and type of, 86
e-learning equation and presentation of, 123, 125, 126–127 game rules and strategies as learning, 335–338 guide learners to appropriate, 76, 78
learner-constructed, 35–36 navigation that lets learners see organization of, 216, 220–221, 230fig navigation that lets learners see the, 216–219fig, 226–228fig performance focus versus, 112
select the right one for each learner, 132t, 156–170
short-order chef training, 150
Content classification instructional strategies for each type of, 369t
Merrill’s work on, 368–369
SLGs application of, 369–370
Context
autonation interactive sales scenario, 205
characteristics of good and poor interaction, 253t
Cooking with Flair training, 166
Expedia phone-based customer service training, 138
instructional interactivity component of, 238fig, 239fig, 245fig, 249, 253t Context (Continued)
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 293
knowledge delivery versus authentic, 113
learning sequences and, 178
motivating learning and transfer skills using, 175–179
novelty versus reality of technology-led instruction and, 172–175
NYU Medical Center ICIS training, 272
POST LERT First Responder training, 193
POST LERT Recognizing and Reporting training, 289
Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 245
Substance Abuse training, 284
supply chain training, 183
trapdoor hints model on, 269
use an appealing, 132, 173–191
What Does Glue Stick? training, 187, 184
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 278, 279
See also CCAF (context, challenge, activity, and feedback) framework
Control Data Corporation, 12, 56–57
Covey, P., 86
common design processes that may prohibit, 71 delay judgment instruction asking learners why their answers are correct, 204
autonation interactive sales scenario example of, 205–208 motivating learners by, 132, 201–208
valuable U-turns to provide learners, 202–204 Design. See E-learning instructional design Design specs
functional prototypes preferred over, 302, 303–304
ture instructional interactivity not possible with, 305
Discovery learning model
description of the, 287
POST LERT—Recognizing and Reporting training using the, 288–289, 290 reusability of the, 289, 292
Disguised competency problems
outdated product designs, 48
poor morale, 49
tarnished reputation, 49
turnover and absenteeism, 49
undercapitalized operations, 48 unreliable equipment or tools, 49
Docebo, 89
“Do the Dip!” test-and-tell example, 167–169
Duffy, T. M., 70
Earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction
experience versus presentation example in, 36–39 learner activity in authentic context example of, 37
learner experience teaches the principle example of, 38
let the learner play example of, 38
page-turner versus page-turner with question examples of, 36
EDUCAUSE, 5
Einstein, A., 110, 122
E-learning
as being about individual and organizational success, 19–20
as being fun, 332
blended training solutions to improve, 54–55
delivering lower costs and better learning, 11–12
high attribution rate of learners, 70, 126
how it fits in with effective training, 83–94 learner motivation to learn versus to learn via, 128–129 smart, 87–89
you have choices in, 86–87
See also Instructional interactivity; Training; True training stories
E-learning applications
buyer alert regarding purchase of, 77–78 limited emphasis on learner motivation in, 77 E-learning benefits anticipated, 174
attributes of good e-learning and, 23–24 competitive positioning organization as, 24 infrastructure advantages as, 27
strategic advantages as, 25–26 tactical advantages as, 26–27 training delivery advantages as, 27
E-learning costs
boring instruction is too expensive, 22 delivering better learning with less, 11–12 optimal training project to budget and, 19
The e-learning dream, 18
E-learning equation, 122–123, 125, 126–127
E-learning failure
change is necessary to avoid, 42–43 counterfeit successes as driving, 30 cycle of, 21
failing to define realistic goals as reason for, 29
to-do-list projects to avoid, 30–33 undercover operations as driving, 30
why we do things that we know will result in, 62
See also e-learning failure; e-learning success
E-learning goals
beware of “awareness goals,” 100
match instructional strategy to outcomes and, 99 problem of failing to define realistic, 29 process of transforming, 30
smart e-learning goal to change behavior, 88

Index 393
E-learning instruction (Continued)
optimal training project budget for, 19
practicality of delivering effective, 23–27
rationale for reduced quality of, 21–22 reviewing the different perspectives of, 4–9
the success cycle of, 18, 19
understanding that entertaining doesn’t equate good, 21
See also Instructional design
E-learning instruction perspectives
as instructional approach instead of delivery platform, 5–6 lack of e-learning expertise, 6
learning games, 8
low expectations of e-learning, 5
new mobile delivery options, 6–7 prevalence of e-learning, 4–5
social learning, 9
E-learning partnerships
learner participation in, 88, 92
management and e-learning developers, 88, 89–91 subject-matter experts (SMSs) participation in, 88, 91–92
E-learning solutions
Autonation interactive sales scenario, 205–208
Operation Lifesaver’s Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 244–248
POST ALERT First Responder training, 193–194
E-learning success
checklist for doing the right thing for, 63
the cycle of, 18, 19
design as the means to, 64
essential resources for, 57–62
how counterfeit successes drive failures, 30 list of some of the factors for, 41 pillars of, 91
prerequisites to, 43
unrecognized contextual factors, 42
Emotion-arousing experiences, 103–104
Employees
poor morale by, 49
providing incentives for good performance, 51–53 turnover and absenteeism of, 49
See also Learners
Enhanced drill-and-practice model
Corrective Feedback Paradigm (CFP)
type of, 277–283
description of, 277
EPSSs (electronic performance support systems)
description of, 258
instructional interactivity versus, 258–259 instruction applications of, 260–264
Equipment problems, 49
Evaluation
of entertaining but ineffective training, 21
of functional prototypes, 313
Kirkpatrick’s four-level model of, 21
measuring outcomes as part of, 31
SAM iterative design phase, 314–317
SAM iterative development phase, 316–320
Successive Approximations Model (SAM) component of, 311 Executives
guide to good e-learning for, 74–82 needed for e-learning design, 59
See also Management Executive’s e-learning guide
design versus technology, 74–75 differentiating the good and the bad, 73–74
three priorities for training success, 76–82 understanding e-learning as mean to training success, 81–82
Expedia phone-based customer service training, 138–139

Expertise
challenges with simulated outcomes for created, 85 comparing tell-and-test to the test-and-tell methods to achieve, 165–170, 181 practice as necessary for developing, 84 subject-matter experts, 59t, 88t, 91–92

Extrinsic feedback, 199t

Extrinsic learning games advantages of, 360
building on, 362
description of, 359–360
disadvantages of, 361–362

drill and practice versus instruction using, 362–363
game board of, 360, 361
jeopardy (TV game show) example of, 360, 362 Outcome Rules of, 361, 362
pros and cons of, 363
Rules of Play of, 361
See also Intrinsic learning games

Failure. See e-learning failure

Feedback
autonation interactive sales scenario, 206, 207
characteristics of good and poor interaction, 254t
Cooking with Flair training, 166
Expedia phone-based customer service training, 137, 141
extrinsic, 199t
instructional interactivity component of, 238, 241–242, 247–248, 251–253, 254t
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 295
key performance indicators (KPIs) providing authentic, 184
NYU Medical Center ICIS training, 272

POST LERT First Responder training, 193
POST LERT Recognizing and Reporting training, 289, 291
provide learners with intrinsic, 132t, 198–200
Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 247–248
real-world consequences versus didactic, 114
short-order chef training, 151
Substance Abuse training, 285, 287
supply chain training, 183
trapdoor hints model on, 270
What Does Glue Stick? training, 187, 184
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 280–282
See also CCAF (context, challenge, activity, and feedback) framework

Field Guide (Sites and Green), 105
First Principles of Instruction, 368, 369, 370

Functional prototypes designing learning experiences using, 305, 308
evaluating your, 313
SAM iterative design phase, 314, 317–320

Gagné, R., 368, 373
Gagné’s Taxonomy of Learning
Outcomes, 368, 373–374

Game rules
as content for learning, 335, 337
how good games have good, 334–335
tic-tac-toe, 337
See also Outcome Rules; Rules of Play

Games
CCAF applied to, 346t
the fundamentals of a good, 334 getting the fun back into learning using, 330–331, 347–354
the ideas that learning can be a, 331 rules and strategies of good, 334–338 Games (Continued)
Sunny side Grill, 348–354
tic-tac-toe, 334–335, 337
See also Learning games; Serious Learning Games (SLGs)
Games of chance
learning in, 342fig, 343
as nonstrategic game, 344
Games of skill, 342fig
Game strategies
description of, 336
Serious Learning Games (SLGs), 336
Sunny Side Grill game, 353, 354
tic-tac-toe, 337
Game types
games of chance, 342fig, 343
games of skill, 342fig
learning in strategic games, 345fig–347fig
memory games, 342fig, 343
strategic versus nonstrategic games, 344–345t Gamification
cautions about using, 367
CCAF framework used for, 367 issues to consider for using, 358–359
learning through, 365–367
ROI (return on investment) of, 359fig
serious e-learning versus, 333
Global positioning data (GPS), 7
Gold SAM (Successive Approximations Model) version, 323
Green, A., 105, 324
Gunter, G. A., 368
Hawking, S., 110
Hippocratic oath, 110
Homeland Security. See POST LERT—Recognizing and Reporting training
Hulshof, C. D., 2
Human resources executives as essential, 59t, 73–82
list of those required for e-learning success, 59t
IBM typewriters, 171fig–172
ICIS training. See NYU Medical Center ICIS training
ICONOS, 187
Incentives
different types of, 52
management and training partnership for success of, 53fig performance improvement by combining penalties with, 55–56 Individualization
e-learning as being about organizational and individual success, 19–20 practical solutions for achieving instruction, 164–170 selecting the right content for each learner, 132t, 156–170 on size fits challenge all versus, 114 Individualization continuum common instructional design paradigm rating on, 158fig individualized instruction paradigm rating on, 161–164
remedial instruction paradigm rating on, 160–161fig
selective instruction paradigm rating on, 159–160 Individualization practical solutions comparing tell-and-test to the test-and-tell methods, 165–170, 181 fixed content, variable learning, 164–165 fixed learning, variable time and content, 165 fixed time, variable learning, 164 Instruction
complexity of effective, 64–65
EPSSs (electronic performance support systems) applications for, 260–264 extrinsic games drill and practice versus, 362–363 interactive, 235–260
novelty, 172–175, 181–191
See also Technology-led instruction

Instructional design
art versus science debate over, 68–69 challenges of designing learning experiences, 298–302 checklist for what should be included in, 63
complexity of effective, 64–65
earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction example of, 36–39 essential resources to support, 57–62
how it can heighten or stifle motivation, 125–129 learner-constructed content is not substitute for, 35–36
as the means to success, 64 motivation related to priorities of, 124 potential problems when applying research results to, 69–71
as requiring study and practice for excellence, 13
selling it to the learner, 127
take a “design backward” approach to, 101 taking a pragmatic approach to, 71–72 technology versus the, 74–75
theory and research as a guide for, 374–375
See also E-learning instruction;
Instructional design

Instructional designers
“A-ha!” experiences of, 201
design goal set by Manifesto for, 118
game-thinking vs. instruction-thinking by, 367–368
Hippocratic oath for, 110
quality obligations of, 110–111

Instructional design paradigms common, 158fig
individualized, 161fig–164
interactivity, 267–296
remedial, 160fig–161
selective, 159fig–160

Instructional frameworks
Bloom’s taxonomy, 368, 370, 375
cognitive activity and observable performance, 370t
Gagné’s Taxonomy of Learning Outcomes, 368, 373–374
Keller’s ARCS Motivation Model, 368, 372–373
Merrill’s First Principles of Instruction and content classification, 368, 369t
Sugrue’s Content-performance Matrix, 370–371
theory and research as a guide for design, 374–375

Instructional interactivity activity component of, 238, 240fig–241fig, 247–248fig, 250–251, 254t CCAF framework applied to, 238–265 challenge component of, 238, 240fig, 247fig, 249–250, 253t–254t course component of, 238fig, 239fig, 245fig, 249, 253t definition of, 237, 264
e-learning environments and rehearsal through, 236–237 feedback component of, 238, 241fig–242fig, 247–248fig, 251–253, 254t
good versus poor interaction components, 253t–254t natural learning environments of, 236 pseudo, 255–259t
questioning versus, 260–264
as the supernatural power of e-learning, 236
three-point checklist for good, 255t
See also E-learning

Instructional interactivity examples
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 293–296
NYU Medical Center ICIS training, 272–276
Operation Lifesaver Railroad Safety training, 244–253
Instructional interactivity examples
(Continued)
POST LERT—Recognizing and Reporting training, 288–292
Substance Abuse training, 283–287
Supervisor Effectiveness training, 235–241
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 278–283
Instructional interactivity paradigms discovery learning, 288–292
enhanced drill and practice/Corrective Feedback Paradigm (CFP), 276–283
problem-solving investigation model, 283–287
storytelling model, 292–296
task model, 271–276
trapdoor hints model, 268–270
Instructional objectives acceptable verbs for behavioral, 136 airline mechanics training example of, 142–143 components of quality, 135
Expedia’s example of meaningful and memorable, 138–141
how to better write motivating, 136 motivating learners through, 133–135
See also Learning
Instructional strategies
adapting e-learning to primary performance outcomes, 85 consideration of task and learner readiness, 85 fitting to targeted outcomes, 83–87
Merrill’s content classification and corresponding, 369 performance goals and typical ineffective, 99
Seven Simple Success Strategies, 97–107
types of, 84
Instructional systems design (ISD). See ADDIE model (or ISD) Instruction perspectives
e-learning and “everything has changed,” 4–10
implications of new technologies, 9–10
the “nothing has changed,” 3–4
Insurance plans training story, 51
Integrated prototypes, 320
Interactivity. See Instructional interactivity Internal Revenue Service training, 86
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 293–296, 295
Intrinsic feedback
text of extrinsic versus, 199
overview of, 363–365
providing learners with, 132, 198–200
Intrinsic learning games
action–consequence relationships in, 363, 364 context situations and actions in, 363, 364
description of, 359
Outcomes Rules of, 363
Rules of Play of, 364
See also Extrinsic learning games Investigation model
description of the, 283
Substance Abuse training using the, 284–287
Islam, K., 126
Jeopardy (TV game show), 360, 362
Jonassen, D. H., 70, 175, 347
Kapp, K., 332, 359, 367
Keller, J. M., 76, 368, 372–373
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model, 368, 372–373
Kenny, R. F., 368
Key performance indicators (KPIs), 184
Kirkpatrick’s four-level model of training evaluation, 21
Kirschner, P. A., 2
Knowledge delivery vs. authentic contexts, 113
Koedinger, K. R., 370
Korn, E. R., 86
Krathwohl, D., 370
KTCA-TV’s Newton’s Apple (public TV show), 187–191

Learner-constructed content don’t discard good instructional design for, 35–36 increased increase in, 35

Learners
attendance versus engagement by, 113
comparing typical and serious e-learning for, 112–113
don’t baby your, 132, 146–147
ensuring they are motivated to learn, 76–77 guide them to appropriate content, 76, 78
having them perform multistep tasks, 132, 192–197
high attrition rates of e-learning, 70, 126 placing emphasis on motivation of, 77 putting them at risk as learning motivator, 132, 144–147 recent, 59
selecting the right content for each, 132, 156–170
selling excellent instruction to the, 127
smart e-learning partnership with, 88, 93 strategy consideration of task and readiness of, 85
See also Employees; Motivation

Learning contexts to stimulate, 178 examining the differing perspectives on, 2 game rules and strategies as content for, 335–338 games for getting the fun back into, 330–331, 347–354 getting the fun back into, 330–331
the ideas that it can be game, 331 practice is necessary to, 85 social, 9
what we know about, 3
See also Instructional objectives;
Outcomes
Learning audience
automation interactive sales scenario, 206
Operation Lifesaver’s Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 244
POST LERT First Responder training, 193
Learning environments
interactivity in the natural, 236
private versus social, 145–146
Learning experiences advisory on creating M&M&M, 79 challenges of designing, 298–302 characteristics of quality, 109–110 delivery, 102–103
emotion-arousing, 102–103
how e-learning can deliver lower costs and better, 11–12
Successive Approximations Model (SAM) to create, 3–4
See also Meaningful, memorable, motivational (M&M&M) learning experiences
Learning experiences design
ADDIE model (or ISD) for, 104–105, 299–301, 302, 303, 309 alternatives for, 308
brainstorming for, 307, 307
constraints challenge of, 298–299
functional prototypes for, 305 insights provided by unsuccessful, 308 prototypes for, 305, 308
quick iterations to explore multiple design ideas for, 306
See also SAM (Successive Approximation Model)
Learning games
“edutainment,” 8
extrinsic games, 359–364

Index
Learning games (Continued)
intrinsic games, 359, 363–365 instructinal implications of, 8
overview of, 357–358
ROI (return on investment) of,
358–359
types of, 359–365
See also Games; Serious Learning
Games (SLGs)
Learning Management Systems (LMSs)
Bio/CMI, 214
description of, 214–215
services offered to learners, 215
See also Navigation Learning objects. See Reusable learning objects (RLOs)
Learning perspectives
e-learning and “everything has changed,” 4–10
implications of new technologies, 9–10
the “nothing has changed,” 3–4
Learning research instructional design guided by theory and, 374–375
on potential of learning games, 8
providing insights for teaching, 1
Leaving ADDIE for SAM: An Agile Model for Developing the Best Learning Experiences (Allen and Sites), 105, 324
Leaving ADDIE for SAM Field Guide (Sites and Green), 324
Mager, R., 76
Magic Keys. See Motivational Magic Keys
Malone, T. W., 76
Management
incentives for good performance role of, 53
partnership between e-learner developer and, 88, 89–91
See also Executives
Manhattan Associates, 183
Manifesto. See The Serious eLearning Manifesto
Mastery. See Expertise
The Matrix (film), 1
Mayer, R. E., 287
Meaningful, memorable, motivational
(M&M&M) learning experiences advisory on importance of designing, 79
how e-learning can provide, 81–82
instructional design of, 80–81
providing learners with, 76, 78–82
using novelty to create, 146–190
See also Learning experiences
Media prototypes, 320
Meleca, C. B., 215
Memory games
description of, 342
learning in, 343–344
as nonstrategic game, 344
You Don’t Know Jack and Jeopardy
eamples of, 342–344
Merrill, D., 368, 369
Merrill’s First Principles of Instruction and content classification, 368, 369–370
Mico, B., 70
Misguided training story, 44
Mitzel, H. E., 214
M-learning
impact of new mobile delivery options for, 6–7
mobile performance support versus, 7 Mobile delivery
common questions and answers about, 7
perspectives on impact of, 6–7 Moments of Truth (Carlzon), 49
Moore, 375
Motivation
dimensions of human, 372
effect on behavior by, 124
e-learning equation and, 122–123, 125, 127–128
ensuring learner’s, 76–77
how e-learning design can heighten or stifle, 125–129
instructional design priorities related to, 124–125
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model on, 368, 372–373
to learn versus motivation to learn via e-learning, 128–129 perception and, 123–124
persistence for learning tied to, 124 placing emphasis on learner, 77
See also Learners
Motivational learning experiences, 81
Motivational Magic Keys
1: build on anticipated outcomes, 132, 133–143
2: put the learner at risk, 132, 144–155
3: select the right content for each learner, 132, 156–170
4: use an appealing context, 132, 171–191
5: have the learner perform multistep tasks, 132, 192–197
6: provide intrinsic feedback, 132, 198–200
7: delay judgment, 132, 201–209
Multistep tasks importance of performing authentic, 192 motivating learners with, 132, 192–197
Supervisor Effectiveness training use of, 242
Myers, G. A., 215
Nass, C., 146
National Food Service Management Institute
Cooking with Flair training of, 166–170
Who Wants to Be a Miller training of, 278–283
National Science Foundation’s Biology Learning Demonstration Center, 214
Navigation
additional learner-interface ideas, 226
description and function of, 212–213
interactivity versus, 257–258
reusable, 213–214
services for learners, 212–213
WorldTutor, 228, 232
ZebraZapps, 218, 219, 220, 223
See also Learning Management Systems (LMSs) Navigational metaphors
description and function of, 232–233
simplicity is best for, 233–234
some concerns about, 233
Navigation imperatives
1: let learners see what’s here, 216–219
2: let learners see how the content is organized, 216, 219–221
3: let learners see where they are, 216, 222
4: let learners go forward, 216, 222–223
5: let learners back up, 216, 224
6: let learners correct their errors, 216, 225
Navigation (NYU Medical ICIS training)
1: let learners see what’s here, 228, 229
2: let learners see how the content is organized, 229–230
3: let learners see where they are, 230, 231
4: let learners go forward, 230–231
5: let learners back up, 231
6: let learners correct their errors, 231–232
Newton’s Apple’s Why Does Glue Stick? series, 187–191
Nonperformance problems
e-learning opportunities for improving, 46
examples of, 45
Nonperformance problems (Continued)
understanding limitations of training to solve, 45–47
Nonstrategic games
description of, 344
games of chance as, 342fig, 343, 344
strategic versus, 344–345t utility for learning, 345t
Norris, B., 12fig
Novelty instruction
creating memorable experiences using,
182fig–191
drawing learner’s attention using, 182
short-lived nature of, 173 supply chain training example of, 183 technology-led instruction reality versus, 172–175
when it can be a valuable tool,
181–191
Why Does Glue Stick?, 187–191
NYU Medical Center ICIS training
navigation of the, 228–232 task model used for interactivity of the,
272–276
NYU Medical Center ICIS training
navigation
1: let learners see what’s here, 229,
238fig
2: let learners see how the content is organized, 229, 230fig
3: let learners see where they are, 230,
232fig
4: let learners go forward, 230–231
5: let learners back up, 231
6: let learners correct their errors,
231–232fig
Objectives. See Instructional objectives
Ohio State University, 214–215
On-the-job training
costs of, 34
e-learning failure due to undercover, 30
On-the-job training costs
illustration of the stacked, 34fig
it’s expensive, 33
it’s risky, 34–35
it’s slow, 34
Operation Lifesaver training. See Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training
Outcome Rules
description of, 335, 336
extrinsic games, 359, 360
fund from discovering the, 348
games of chance, 343fig
intrinsic learning games, 363–365
memory games, 343fig
Serious Learning Games (SLGs), 338,
339fig
strategic game level-ups, 347fig
Sunny Side Grill game, 351–352
See also Game rules
Outcomes
adapting e-learning to primary performance, 85fig blended training to improve
e-learning, 54–55
creating expertise and challenges with simulated, 84
e-learning equation and edification (or e-learning outcomes), 122, 124, 127–128
e-learning strategies consideration of task and learner readiness, 85fig fitting strategy to targeted, 83–86
Gagné’s Taxonomy of Learning
Outcomes, 368, 373–374
match instructional strategy to desired, 99 measuring e-learning, 31
motivating by building on anticipated, 132t, 133fig–143
See also Behavior change; E-learning goals; Learning
Outdated product design problem, 48
Page-turning mistake, 111
Paradigms. See Instructional design paradigms
Part-task training, 178
PCD3 system, 56
Penalties
performance improvement by combining incentives with, 55 when desired performance is unwittingly penalized with, 56
Perfetti, C., 370
Performance environment
blended training solutions to improve, 54–55
using training to fix the, 53–55 Performance goals
adapting e-learning to outcomes of primary, 85
In Their Virtual Shoes training, 293
Operation Lifesaver’s Railroad Safety for Professional Driver training, 244 typical ineffective strategies for reaching, 99 Performance improvement
combining penalties with incentives for, 55–56
the possibilities of training for, 50–51
providing incentives for, 51–53
Performance supervisors, 59
Performer competency problems as cause of poor performance, 43
e-learning opportunities for improving, 46
understanding who needs training to improve, 43–45
when business problems are disguised as, 47–50
Performers (untrained) testing, 59
PLATO and the lights story, 121–122
PLATO system (1970s), 8, 12, 56, 145, 215
Poor morale problem, 49
POST LERT First Responder training, 193–197
POST LERT Recognizing and Reporting training, 288–292, 291
Practice
Corrective Feedback Paradigm (CFP) spaced, 277
extrinsic games instruction versus drill and, 362–363 necessary to learning, 84
onetime events versus spaced, 114 putting learners at risk during, 147–149
short-order chef training, 150–154
Pre-flight safety checks training story, 44 Presentations
earthquake epicenter e-learning example of experience vs., 36–39 emotion-arousing experiences instead of, 103–104
interactivity versus, 257–258
page-turning, 111
Private learning environments, 145–146
Problem-solving investigation model
description of the, 283–284
Substance Abuse training using the, 284–286
Project planning tasks, 317–319 Prototypes
functional, 305, 308, 313, 321 integrated, 320
media, 320
SAM iterative design phase, 314
317–320
special-purpose, 320 Pseudo interactivity
caution regarding, 255–256
EPSS versus instructional interactivity, 258–259 navigation versus interactivity form of, 257–258
presentation versus instruction form of, 256–257
Psychomotor skill building, 86
Pure Performance Alternative, 370–372
Questioning vs. interactivity, 260–264
Quinn, C. N., 6

Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers
training
activity component of interactivity, 247–248
background of, 244–245
challenge component of interactivity, 247
context component of interactivity, 245 feedback component of interactivity, 247–248
Recent learner’s design role, 59
Reeves, B., 146
Relevance
as dimension of human motivation,
372 Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model on,
372
Remedial instruction paradigm,
160–161
Repurposing e-learning materials, 60–62
Reputation problem, 59
Research. See Learning research Resources
caution against repurposing e-learning materials, 60–62
list of human, 59
reusable learning objects, 61, 65–67 understanding the essential, 57–58
Reusability
Corrective Feedback Paradigm (CFP), 282
discovery learning model, 289, 292
problem-solving investigation model, 285 reusable navigation, 213–214
task model, 275–276
trapdoor hints, 270
Reusable learning objects (RLDs)
description and advantages of, 65–67
pros and cons of, 61
specificity versus applicability of, 67
Reusable navigation, 213–214
Roland Berger Strategy Consultants, 5 Rules of Play
description of, 335, 336
extrinsic games, 359–361
game of strategy and role of, 337
games of chance, 343
intrinsic learning games, 363
memory games, 343
Serious Learning Games (SLGs), 338, 339 strategic game level-ups, 347
Sunny Side Grill game, 350–351
See also Game rules
SAM iterative design phase
additional design task during the, 319 guidelines for additional design tasks
during, 320
illustrated diagrams of the, 314, 317
overview of the, 317
project planning task during the,
317–319
prototypes task during the, 320
SAM iterative development phase
design proof task during the, 322 illustrated diagram of the, 321
overview of the, 316
SAM preparation phase illustrated figure of the, 314
overview of the, 315–316
the Savvy Start, 316, 318
SAM (Successive Approximations Model)
ADDIE model compared to, 104–105, 309
alpha version of the, 322
applying the postulates of successive approximation to the, 311
beta version of the, 323
building learner-centered learning experiences using, 3–4
description of, 70–71, 104–105, 311–312
design component of the, 311fig, 312–313
develop component of the, 311fig, 313 evaluate component of the, 311fig–312 getting help and additional resources on, 324
gold release of the, 324
illustrated diagram of, 104fig, 311fig remember that no e-learning application is perfect when using, 302–303
as simple success strategy, 104–105
three-phases of the, 314fig–322
See also Learning experiences design; Simple Success Strategy

SAM (Successive Approximations Model) phases illustrated diagram of the, 314fig iterative design, 314fig, 317–320 iterative development, 314fig, 320–322
preparation, 315–317

Sandweiss, J. H., 86

Satisfaction
as dimension of human motivation, 372t
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model on, 372–373

Scardamalia, M., 375

Selective instruction paradigm, 159fig–160

Serious e-learning basic principles of, 112, 115–117
building the, 355
comparison of typical e-learning and, 112–114
the essentials of, 333
gamification versus, 333

The Serious eLearning Manifesto basic principles of serious e-learning in the, 112, 115–117
description of the, 74
design values listed in the, 112–114
providing a goal to strive for instructional designers, 118

Serious Learning Games (SLGs)
application as learning game, 357
CCAF applied to, 346t
examining the potential of, 8

Gagné’s Taxonomy of Learning Outcomes value for, 368, 373–374
the intrigue of using, 376–378
Keller’s ARC’s Motivational Model value for, 372–373
Outcome Rules of, 338, 339fig
ROI (return on investment) of, 358–359fig
Rules of Play of, 338, 339fig
strategies of, 336

Sugrue’s Content-performance Matrix
for design of, 370–372fig
Sunny side Grill, 348–354
See also Games; Learning games

Sheikh, K., 86

Short-order chef training, 150–151

Simple Success Strategy
1: ask, would you want to learn from this?, 97–98
2: match instructional strategy to outcome goals, 99
3: challenge awareness goals, 100
4: design backward, 101
5: think context, challenge, activity, feedback (CCAF), 101–103
6: think emotion-arousing experiences, 103–104
7: use the Successive Approximation Model (SAM), 104fig–106
See also SAM (Successive Approximations Model)

Sites, R. H., 105, 324

Skills cognitive, 85
psychomotor, 86
soft, 86

Skills hierarchy
don’t start instruction at the bottom of the, 132t, 179–180 playing poker’s partial, 181fig Skills transfer, 175–177t
Smart e-learning
critical elements of, 87–88, 89–92 importance of engaging in, 87, 89
Smart e-learning elements adequate financial investment, 87, 88t goal is to change behavior, 87, 88t necessary partnerships, 88t, 89
Social learning, 9
Social learning environments, 145–146
Soft skill building, 86
South Dakota State University, 215
Special-purpose prototypes, 320
Storyboards
description and applications of, 304–305
functional prototypes preferred over, 302, 305f–304
true instructional interactivity not possible with, 305 Storytelling model
description of, 292
In Their Virtual Shoes training using the, 293–296
reusability of, 295–296
Strategic games
learning in, 345f–347f
level-ups structure of, 346–347f
nonstrategic versus, 344–345t Strategies. See Game strategies;
Instructional strategies
Subject-matter experts
e-learning partnerships with, 88t, 92–93
needed for e-learning design, 59t
Substance Abuse training, 283–287f
Successive approximation method
ADDIE model compared to, 104–105, 309
advisory on finding champions to promote, 310 applying postulates to the SAM, 310–311 illustrated diagram of the, 301f introduction to the, 301–305
leadership required for organizational adoption of the, 309–310
Sugrue’s Pure Performance Alternative, 370–371t, 374
Sugrue, B., 370
Sunny Side Grill game
advanced level strategies, 354 challenge levels of the, 349–350, 351f
game board of the, 350f
learning aids, 350, 352f Level 1 strategies, 353 level-ups of, 353–354
Outcome Rules, 351–352
overview of the, 349
Rules of Play, 350–351
Super Mario Bros. (game), 147–148f
Supervisor Effectiveness training activity component of interactivity, 240–241f analysis of the, 243–244
challenge component of interactivity, 240f context component of interactivity, 239f feedback component of interactivity, 241f–242f
introduction to, 238
Supply chain training, 183
Suzuki, K., 76
Szabo, M., 214
Target audience
autonation interactive sales scenario, 206
Operation Lifesaver’s Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 244
POST LERT First Responder training, 193
Tarnished reputation problem, 49
Task model
description of the, 271
NYU Medical Center ICIS training example of the, 272–276
reusability of, 275–276
Tasks
Earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction, 37fig instructional strategy consideration of, 85fig motivating learner with perform multistep, 132t, 192–197fig
POST LERT First Responder training, 193–197fig
risk of part-task training, 178
Supervisor Effectiveness training use of multistep, 242fig Taxonomy of Learning Outcomes, 368, 373–374
Teacher design role, 59t Technology-led instruction
computer-assisted instruction (CAI), 174
computer-managed instruction (CMI), 214, 215
e-learning design versus the, 74–75 implications of, 9–10
novelty versus reality of, 172–175
the typing ball syndrome, 171fig–172
See also Instruction
Tell-and-test method, 165–166t
Test-and-tell method
comparing tell-and-test method to, 165–166t
cooking training example of, 166–170
“Do the Dip!” module using the, 167fig–169fig
starting context at the end using the, 181
Thalheimer, W., 21, 31, 79, 146
3M Company, Inc., 187
Tic-tac-toe game
description of, 334–335
rules of, 337
strategies of, 337
To-do-list project problem, 30–33
Training
attempting to solve performance problems with misguided, 44–45 blended, 54–55
don’t drink the Kool-Aid on learner-constructed content for, 35–36
how e-learning fits in with effective, 83–94 incentives for good performance role of, 53fig measuring outcomes of the, 31
on-the-job, 30, 33–34fig
risk of part-task, 178
story on misguided pre-flight safety checks, 44
understanding what really matters in the, 32–33
See also Business problem solving;
E-learning; specific training examples
Training solutions
automation interactive sales scenario, 205–208fig Operation Lifesaver's Railroad Safety for Professional Drivers training, 244–248fig
POST ALERT First Responder training, 193–194
Training success priorities
1: ensuring learners are highly motivated to learn, 76–78
2: guide learners to appropriate content, 76, 78
3: provide meaningful and memorable learning experiences, 76, 78–82
Trapdoor hints model, 268–270
Trollip, S. R., 69
True training stories
on inadequate training application of ADDIE model, 303 misguided pre-flight safety checks training, 44 “ridiculous expectations” of insurance plans training, 51 unwittingly penalizing desired performance, 56
See also E-learning
Turnover problem, 49
The typing ball syndrome, 171fig–172
Undercapitalized operations problem, 48
Unreliable equipment or tools problem, 49
Untrained performer design role, 59t
Vick, E. H., 368
Wheel of Fortune (TV game show), 360
Who Wants to Be a Miller? training, 278–283
Who Wants to Be a Millionaire (TV show), 305

Why Does Glue Stick? novelty instruction, 187–191
Wolf, S. L., 86
WorldTutor, 228, 231fig, 232

ZebraZapps
description of, 218–219
earthquake epicenter e-learning instruction created using, 39
Sneak Peek feature of, 218–219fig, 219fig, 220fig template with current place and progress reporting built in, 223, 223fig