Contents

Preface vii
Contributors xiii

1 The Early History and Legacy of the Minnesota Parent-Child Longitudinal Study 1
Sarah C. Mangelsdorf

2 The Emotionate Child 13
Ross A. Thompson

3 Attachment, Temperament, and Adaptation: One Long Argument 55
Brian E. Vaughn and Nana Shin

4 Earned-Security in Retrospect: Emerging Insights from Longitudinal, Experimental, and Taxometric Investigations 109
Glenn I. Roisman and Katherine C. Haydon

5 Relationships Across the Lifespan: The Benefits of a Theoretically Based Longitudinal-Developmental Perspective 155
W. Andrew Collins, Peter LaFreniere, and Jeffry A. Simpson

6 Rethinking Adolescent States of Mind: A Relationship/Lifespan View of Attachment and Psychopathology 185
Roger Kobak and Kristyn Zajac
7 A Developmental Approach to Clinical Research, Classification, and Practice 231
Tuppett M. Yates, Keith B. Burt, and Michael F. Troy

8 Frightening Maternal Behavior, Infant Disorganization, and Risks for Psychopathology 283
Deborah Jacobvitz, Nancy Hazen, Maria Zaccagnino, Serena Messina, and Lauren Beverung

9 From Research to Practice: Developmental Contributions to the Field of Prevention Science 323
Sheree L. Toth, Robert C. Pianta, and Martha Farrell Erickson

10 Beyond Adversity, Vulnerability, and Resilience: Individual Differences in Developmental Plasticity 379
Jay Belsky and Michael Pluess

11 Pathways to Resilient Functioning in Maltreated Children: From Single-Level to Multilevel Investigations 423
Dante Cicchetti, Ph.D.

Author Index 461

Subject Index 473