Contents

Expanded Contents
viii

Acknowledgements
xi

Introduction: Affinities as an Invitation to Think Differently
1

Part One: Sensations of Living
5
Part Two: Ineffable Kinship
57
Part Three: Ecologies and Socio-Atmospherics
121

Conclusion: Affinities in Time
186

Notes
203

References
204

Index
214
Expanded Contents

Acknowledgements xi

Introduction: Affinities as an Invitation to Think Differently 1

PART ONE: SENSATIONS OF LIVING

Why Sensations? 7

Facets of Sensation 11
1. Ashes, ghosts and the ‘sense of presence’ 11
2. ‘Grandma’s Hands’ by Bill Withers (version by Gil Scott-Heron) 17
3. The sensations of others: children’s perspectives 18
   Looks 21
   Voices, volume and imitation 22
   Size, height, weight, growing 24
   Play fighting and real fighting 26
   Bodily proximity with others 27
   Relational traces and bodily inscriptions 27
4. The sensory-kinaesthetic intimacies of violence 29
5. Becky Tipper’s creaturely ‘moments of being’ 31
6. Meat, ‘food-animals’ and Rhoda Wilkie’s ‘sentient commodities’ 33

Layering the Argument: Sensations of Affinity 39
Life is full of sensory-kinaesthetics 40
Expanded Contents

Sensations are multiple and atmospheric, emanating in encounters 42
Sensations as sensations: not representations, adjuncts or qualities 46
A sensory-kinaesthetic attunement reveals characters 50
Affinities are charged with the energies of fascination, wondering and discordance 54

PART TWO: INEFFABLE KINSHIP

Why Ineffable Kinship? 59

Facets of Ineffable Kinship 63
1. Family resemblances in literature and art 63
2. Resemblance interactions 68
   - A familiar conversation topic and form 70
   - Resemblances as striking, fleeting and capricious 71
   - Negotiating and ‘settling’ resemblances 72
   - An uneasy combination of the potent and the trivial 74
3. Resemblance stories 74
4. The still-beating heart 89
5. Nordqvist and Smart’s donors as ‘enigmatic presences’ 93
6. Konrad’s ‘nameless relations’ and ‘transilience’ 97
7. Super-donors and dubious progeniture 101
8. ‘The Seed’ by The Roots, featuring Cody Chesnutt 104

Layering the Argument: Affinities of Ineffable Kinship 106
   - Metaphors of genetics and heritability 106
   - Poetics and the ‘frisson’ of ineffability 111
   - Wondering about what is circulating and relating 114

PART THREE: ECOCOLOGIES AND SOCIO-ATMOSPHERICS

Why Ecologies and Socio-Atmospherics? 123

Facets of Ecologies and Socio-Atmospherics 126
1. Animate places and things in literature 126
   - Nan Shepherd’s ‘living mountain’ 126
   - Jon McGregor’s city that ‘sings’ 127
Haruki Murakami’s ‘pulsing’ city 129
Barbara Kingsolver’s Africa as an ‘attendance in my soul’ 130
2. Atmospheric memories of animate places and things 131
The atmospherics of a teenager’s city 131
Anat Hecht’s ‘tangible memories’ of home 133
Karin Widerberg’s atmospheric memories of ‘the homes of others’ 135
3. Animate technologies, vehicles and journeys 137
Phone feelings 137
The threaded worlds of train travel 140
Mimi Sheller’s ‘automotive emotions’ and ‘feeling the car’ 143
Lynne Pearce’s ‘autopia’ of driving and thinking 146
4. Weathery weather in social science and literature 148
5. Writing weather stories 152
6. Socio-atmospherics and the time of the floods 154
Shock: the power and magnitude of water 155
Bearing witness and being in touch 156
An atmosphere of ‘getting on with it’ 158
Legacies of the floods 159
7. Weather poetics 164

Layering the Argument: Ecologies and Socio-Atmospheres 168
Ecologies as convivialities, assemblages, happenings and animated space 169
The feel of places, things, journeys and technologies 175
Enigmatic ecologies and the socio-atmospherics of living 178
From what is connected to the dynamics of connection 180
Ecological poetics 184

Conclusion: Affinities in Time 186
Three layers of the argument 187
Time: a final layering 188
Time and sensations 190
Time and ineffable kinship 193
Time, ecologies and socio-atmospherics 196
Accepting the invitation of affinities 200

Notes 203
References 204
Index 000