CONTENTS

PROLOGUE
Gertina J. van Schalkwyk, Rik Carl D'Amato 1

1. Learning the Confucian Way
Tieyuan Guo 5
In this chapter, the focus is on understanding the unique learning motivations shared by contemporary students in Confucian heritage cultures.

2. Outcomes-Based Collaborative Teaching and Learning in Asian Higher Education
Gertina J. van Schalkwyk 19
This chapter explores the background and development of outcomes-based collaborative teaching and learning, and provides guidance for writing learning outcomes and engaging students in the Asian higher education context.

3. Doing Outcomes-Based Collaborative Teaching and Learning in Asia
Gertina J. van Schalkwyk 41
This chapter focuses on applying the concepts of outcomes-based collaborative teaching and learning in an Asian context and with students coming from a Confucian heritage culture and explores examples of how to implement effective collaborative teaching and learning in an Asian higher education setting.

4. Authentic Assessment of Knowledge, Skills, and Attitudes
Brenda C. Litchfield, John V. Dempsey 65
This chapter proposes supplementing traditional assessment strategies with innovative and authentic ways to evaluate students' performance on intended learning outcomes.

5. Connectivism and the Use of Technology/Media in Collaborative Teaching and Learning
Neena Thota 81
This chapter explores the ways in which a relational understanding of the education process and the use of collaborative technologies in the connectivist tradition might inform and transform university teaching.

INDEX 97