Index

Ability Online, 145, 156
Abstinence violation effect, in self-management conceptualisation, 95
Access to service and future of chronic illness, 181, 183–5
'stroke belt' research, 183
Action as catalyst in transition, 31–2 Action planning, in Stanford model of
self-management, 91
Acute care setting, co-morbidity
management, 68
Acute stroke research, PARiHS framework, 175
Adherence, self-management, 96
Adolescence, chronic illnesses in, 39
lifespan approach, 39
Ageing and chronic illness, 4
biological loss associated, 44
Alcoholics Anonymous, 88
Attrition research in chronic risk people, 118–20
Australian conceptualisations of
self-management, 101–2
evidence-based medicine (EBM) goals, 102
Flinders Human Behaviour and Health
Research Unit (FHBHRU), 101–4
SA Health-Plus, 101
Behaviour change, self-management, 94–5
Biological development across the lifespan, 39
Biomedical model, self-management, 90
Bio-psycho-social model, self-management, 90
Britain, knowledge translation (KT) in, 173

Canada
Canadian Dementia Knowledge
Translation Network, 174
Canadian Stroke Strategy, 173

knowledge translation (KT) in, 173
research in chronic illness, 167
Case management, co-morbidity, 73–4 empirical research, 74
long-term benefits of, 73
randomised controlled trials, 73
Change event that produces an ending, 28–9
Charlson Index, 59
Childhood, chronic illnesses in, 39
lifespan approach, 39
malnutrition and, 5
Chronic Care Model, self-management, 91 domains of, 91
clinical information system, 92
community, 92
decision support, 91 delivery system design, 91
organisation of health care, 92
self-management, 91
Chronic conditions (CC), 3
Chronic disease risk people,
self-management programmes for, 111–36
background, 112–14
compassionate pragmatism, 122–3 surprising voice of people, 120–2 harm reduction principles, 114–15
healthism, countering, 123–5 interventions, 112–13, 117–18
didactic teaching methods, 117 educational, 117
online or computer interventions, 117
randomised controlled trials (RCTs), 113 research, 115–17
attrition, 118–20
participation, 118
self-efficacy, 125
supportive collaborative approach, 123
theoretical framework, 114–15
Chronic disease self-management programme (CDSMP), See Stanford model, self management
Chronic Illness and disability (CID), 2
Chronicity concept, 2
Cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT) approach, self-management, 90
Community-based projects, in globalisation of chronic illness research, 9
Co-morbidity management, assisting people with chronic illness in, 57–75, 203–4 acute care setting, 68
conceptualising co-morbidity, 58–60 discharge planning, 69
health-care systems, 65–8
Casemix, diagnosis-related groups, 66 collaborative relationship between doctor and patient, 67 economic pressures, 67
patient’s assessment, quality, 66 private health-care companies, 67 illness severity, recording, 59
Charlson Index, 59
Cumulative Illness Rating Scale, 59
Index of Coexisting Disease, 59
Kaplan Index, 59
medical paradigm, 61–5
dual diagnosis, 63
mental health dual diagnosis, 63
psychosocial interventions, 62 side effects, 65
models of, 69–74
case management, 73–4
disease management, 72–3 overarching, 71
self-management, 70–2
quality of life issues, 59–60
social determinants of co-morbidities, 60–1
Compassionate pragmatism, in self-management of chronic disease risk people, 122–3
Compliance, self-management, 96
Conceptualisation of self-management, 85–105 associated concepts/models, 92–100 abstinence violation effect, 95
adherence, 96
compliance, 96
depression, 99
empowerment, 93–4
‘Expert Patient Program’, 93
measurability of, 98–9 ‘medical model’ approach, 97
mental health, 99
patient activation, 97
patient-centred care, 96–7
person as expert, 92–3 ‘plugging away’ process, 95
resilience, 95–6
self-efficacy and behaviour change, 94–5 support, role of, 97–8 sustainability, 99–100
transetheoretical model, 95
validity of, 98–9
and behavioural model, self-management, 90
future of, 105
historical developments, 88–92
Alcoholics Anonymous, 88
biomedical model, 90
bio-psychosocial model, 90
Chronic Care Model, 91, See also individual entry cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT) approach, 90 mutual aid models therapy, 89
self-help model, 89
Stanford model, 90
support, 100
definition, 103–4
Conservation of Resources Theory, 187
Consumer term within chronic illness field, 7–8
Cumulative Illness Rating Scale, 59
Cyber abuse, as online support challenge, 147
Cystic fibrosis (CF), 47–50
‘Building Life-skills’ intervention, 48 in children, 47–8
group interactions, 48
middle childhood, 47–8
supporting age-appropriate development without jeopardising safe management, 47–50
Decision-making, in Stanford model of self-management, 90
Dementia, 50–52
Depression concept, in self-management conceptualisation, 99
Developed nations, chronic illness research trends in, 6–8 health-care services, 7 Internet, 6
micro-level partnerships, 8
Index

narratives, 6
partnerships, 8
patient-centred care, 8
transitions in people, 6
Developing nations, chronic illness impact in, 4–6 childhood malnutrition, 5
disability-adjusted life years (DALYs), 4
morbidity, 4
mortality, 4
obesity and, 5
poverty, 5
social determinants of health and, 5 tobacco usage and, 5
in women, 5
Didactic teaching methods, in chronic disease risk people, 117
Disability-adjusted life years (DALYs), 4
Discharge planning, co-morbidity management, 69
Disease and illness, term comparison, 2
Disease management, co-morbidity, 72–3
Disease-oriented system, 11
Duke Stroke Model, 186
eHealth, 143–58
for social support to people and families, 143–58
Emotional intelligence, 43
Empowerment, self-management model, 93–4
European Implementation Score (EIS), 180
Evidence-based action plan, in globalisation of chronic illness research, 8
Evidence-based medicine (EBM) goals, 189
Australian conceptualisations of self-management, 102
and self-management, 102
‘Expert Patient Program’, in self-management conceptualisation, 93
Falsified identities, as online support challenge, 147
Familiar life, 28
Flinders model of self-management
Flinders Human Behaviour and Health Research Unit (FHBHRU), 101–2 impact of, 102–5
clinical trials, 104
health professional education and training, 104–5 research and policy development, 102–4 patient-centred partnership approach, 103
systemic approach, 103
Future of chronic illness, 179–89, 199–204
access to service, 181, 183–5
’stroke belt’ research, 183
evidence base, 201
facilitating the will of the people, 200–1
global perspective, 199–200
health in the community, 203–4 integrated care frameworks, 181
international collaboration, 181, 183
national stroke strategies, 181
National Health Stroke Strategy in England, 182
Ontario Stroke Strategy, 182
predictive modelling, 181, 185-6
Duke Stroke Model, 186
‘invest to save’ approach, 186
quantitative methods, 186
spatial micro-simulation, 186
public engagement, 181, 185
research use capacity, 181, 186–9
See also individual entry
self-care, 203
self-management, 203
technology and health promotion, 201–2 transition, 202–3
Global crisis in chronic illness, 3–4
Global initiatives for future chronic illness management, 10–12
acute health problems, 10
disease-oriented system, 11
integrated approaches, 11
interdisciplinary research, need for, 11
mistreatment, 11
overtreatment, 10
under-treatment, 10
Globalisation of chronic illness research, 1–12,
See also Developed nations; Developing nations; Global initiatives challenges, 1 in developing nations, 4–6
policy drivers, 8–10,
See also individual entry
Harm reduction principles, chronic disease risk people, 114–15
Health Belief Model, 57
Health-care systems, in co-morbidity management, 65–8, See also Co-morbidity management
Index

Healthism, countering, in self-management of chronic disease risk people, 123–5

Human development across the lifespan, 39–40

Identity and transition, 22–4, See also Transitional processes and chronic illness

Illicit drug users (IDUs), 120–2

Illness and disease, term comparison, 2

Index of Coexisting Disease, 59

Individual’s perspective, of self-management term use, 86–7

Infectious diseases, 3

Integrated care frameworks and future of chronic illness, 181

‘Integrity-promoting care’ in old age chronic illness, 50–1

Erikson’s theory, 52

Interactive Health Communication Applications (IHCAs), 146

International collaboration and future of chronic illness, 181, 183

Internet narrative expression, 6

Internet technology (IT) as a health resource, 144–5, See also Online supports

Ability Online, 145

in developed nations, 6

STARBRIGHT World® (SBW), 144

for well-being among adolescents with diabetes, 145

Interventions, self-management, 112–13, 117–18

‘Invest to save’ approach for future prediction, 186

Kaplan Index, 59

Knowledge translation (KT), 163–4, 170–2, 178–9, 187–9

embedding KT within research agencies and grants, 173

in Canada, 173

Canadian Stroke Strategy, 173

European Stroke Network, 173

partnership between researchers and the voluntary sector, 173

stroke as a KT case example, 172

web-based KT innovations, 174

Canadian Dementia Knowledge Translation Network, 174

StrokeEngine, 174

Lifespan approach to chronic illness research, 37–53

in adolescence, 39

assumptions, 40–2

non-normative life events, 41

normative age-graded influences, 41

normative history-graded influences, 41–2

in childhood, 39

factors impacting, 42

human development across lifespan, 39–40

biological development, 39

cognitive development in childhood, 40 psychological development, 39

social development, 40

human development in old age, 42–6, See also Old age supporting age-appropriate development without jeopardising safe management, 47–50, See also Cystic fibrosis

‘Limbo’ period, 29–30

‘Look, Think, Act’ approach/process, 30–1

Malnutrition in childhood and chronic illness, 5

Measurability of self-management, 98–9

‘Medical model’ approach, in self-management conceptualisation, 97

Mental health perspective, of self-management term use, 88, 99

Micro-level partnerships, in developed nations, 8

Mistreatment, 11

Mutual aid models therapy, in self-management conceptualisation, 89

National Health Stroke Strategy in England, 182

National stroke strategies and future of chronic illness, 181

Nomenclature, 2–3

Non-communicable disease (NCD), 3

Non-normative life events, in lifespan approach to chronic illness research, 41

Normative age-graded influences, in lifespan approach to chronic illness research, 41

Normative history-graded influences, in lifespan approach to chronic illness research, 41

Obesity and chronic illness in developing nations, 5
Index

Old age, chronic illness in, 50–2
‘Integrity-promoting care’, 50–1
Old age, human development in, 42–6 biological loss associated with ageing process, 44
emotional intelligence, 43
fourth age (‘old old’ age), 44
lifespan developmental perspective applications, 46–7 ‘developmental–contextual’ model of couples, 46
dyadic appraisal, 47
implications, 45
selection, optimization and compensation (SOC) theory, 44 third age (‘young old’ age), 43
wisdom, 43
Online supports, 143–58, See also Internet technology (IT) as a health resource challenges of, 147–56
cyber abuse, 147
falsified identities, 147
personal risk, 147
chronic disease risk people, 117
interventions implementing and outcomes, 148–55
social support delivery, 156–7
for social support to people and families, 143–58
video imaging, 156
Ontario Stroke Strategy, 182
Overtreatment, 10

Paradigm for co-morbidity management, 61–5, See also Co-morbidity management PARiHS framework, 163–4, 174–6, 178–9, 187–9
acute stroke research, 175
thrombolytic therapy, 175
Participation research in chronic risk people, 118
Participatory action research (PAR), 26–7
Patient activation, self-management, 97
Patient-centred care in developed nations, 8
self-management, 96–7
Patient–provider partnership, formation, in Stanford model of self-management, 91
Peer-led approach, 9
in globalisation of chronic illness research, 9
Person as expert, self-management model, 92–3
Personal risk, as online support challenge, 147
‘Plugging away’ process, 95
Policy containers and future of chronic illness, 179–80
European Implementation Score (EIS), 180
Policy drivers, globalisation of chronic illness research, 8–10 community-based projects, 9 evidence-based action plan, 8
peer-led approach, 9
self-efficacy approach, 9
self-management, 9–10
in United Kingdom, 10
Poverty and chronic illness in developing nations, 5
Predictive modelling and future of chronic illness, 181, 185–6
Duke Stroke Model, 186
‘invest to save’ approach, 186
quantitative methods, 186
spatial micro-simulation, 186
Primary health-care (PHC) principles, transitional processes, 26
Problem-solving, in Stanford model of self-management, 90
Promoting Action on Research Implementation in Health Services framework (PARiHS), See PARiHS framework
Psychological development across the lifespan, 39
Public engagement and future of chronic illness, 181, 185
Public health perspective, of self-management term use, 87–8
Quality of life, co-morbidities affecting, 59–60
Quantitative methods for future prediction, 186
Randomised controlled trials (RCT), 73–4
chronic disease risk people, 113
co-morbidity, 73–4
Research in chronic illness, 163–91, See also Future of chronic illness; Knowledge translation (KT); PARiHS framework Canada, 167 challenges, 165–6
dose–response problem, 166–8
Index

Research in chronic illness, (cont’d)
- fixing the context for researchers, 176–8
- collaborative ventures, 178
- macroscopics, 178–9
  - KT and the PARIHS framework, 178–9
- policy containers and future of chronic illness, 179–80
- promise of research, 168–70
- SCIENCE idea, 169
- task ahead, 164–6
- translating what we know into what we do, 163–91
- United States, 167–8

Research use capacity and future of chronic illness, 181, 186–9
- Conservation of Resources Theory, 187
- government investments, 187
- knowledge networks, 188
- linking policy with practice, 186–9
- organisational resources, 187
- themes, 188
- context, 188
- evidence-based practice guidelines, 189
- knowledge uptake, 188
- qualities of the knowledge broker, 188
- qualities of the network, 188

Resource utilisation, in Stanford model of self-management, 90

Resilience, self-management, 95–6

Selection, optimization and compensation
- (SOC) theory, 44
- Self-efficacy approach, 9
- chronic risk people, 125
- in globalisation of chronic illness research, 9
- self-management, 94–5

Self-help model, in self-management conceptualisation, 89

Self-management, 85–105, See also Chronic disease risk people; Conceptualisation of self-management
- Australian conceptualisations of, 101–2
- co-morbidity management, 70–2
- definitions of, 101–5
- in globalisation of chronic illness research, 9–10
- optimal self-management, 87
- self-management programmes, 9–10
- term usage, background to, 86–8
- individual’s perspective, 86–7
- mental health perspective, 88
- public health perspective, 87–8

Severity of illness, recording, in co-morbidity management, 59
- Charlson Index, 59
- Cumulative Illness Rating Scale, 59
- Index of Coexisting Disease, 59
- Kaplan Index, 59
- Self-tailoring, in Stanford model of self-management, 91
- Social determinants of co-morbidities, 60–1
- of health and chronic illness, 5
- Social support delivery, online supports, 156–7
- Spatial micro-simulation for future prediction, 186
- Stanford model, self-management, 90
- skills in, 90–91
- action planning, 91
- decision-making, 90
- patient–provider partnership, formation, 91
- problem-solving, 90
- resource utilisation, 90
- self-tailoring, 91
- ‘Stroke belt’ research, 183
- Stroke and integrated care frameworks, 181
- Supportive collaborative approach, chronic risk people, 123
- Support role in self-management, 97–8, 100
- Sustainability concept, in self-management, 99–100

Technology-based procedures, 143–58, See also Internet technology (IT); Online supports
- impact in fostering therapeutic gain, 146–56
- for social support to people and families, 143–58

Thrombolytic therapy, PARIHS framework, 175

Tobacco usage and chronic illness in developing nations, 5

Transformative learning and transition, 24–5
- challenge in, 24
- meaning through phases, 24

Transitional processes and chronic illness, 17–33
- acknowledgement need, 21
- action as catalyst in, 31–2
- awareness of change, 21
- common elements to transition theories, 20
- concept analysis, 21
Index

as cyclical, 25
defining transition, 19
describing transition, 21–2 emerging understanding, 19–21
identity and, 22–4
homeless women, 23
recovering from addiction, 26
self-identity, 22
suffering, 23
women, 23
longitudinal data generation strategy, 26 passage of time in, 26
search using transition, 18–19
database search, 18
literature, 18
transition framework for practice, 26–32
acknowledgement, 27
action as the catalyst in transition, 31–2
change event that produces an ending, 28–9
disruption, response to, 27
facilitating transition, 30–1
familiar life, 28
health-care activities, 26
‘Limbo’ period, 29–30
‘Look, Think, Act’ approach, 30–1
new beginning that leads to becoming ordinary, 30
participatory action research (PAR), 26–7
person’s understanding, 27
phases of transition, 28–9
primary health-care (PHC) principles, 26
self-identity, 27
sense-making, 27
and transformative learning, 24–5
challenge in, 24
meaning through phases, 24
Van Gennep’s theory, 19–20
Transtheoretical model, in self-management conceptualisation, 95
Type 2 diabetes self-management intervention, 112–36, See also Chronic disease risk people
Under-treatment, 10
Validity of self-management, 98–9
Van Gennep’s theory, transition, 19–20
Video imaging, online support, 156
Virtual future, 156
Web-based KT innovations, 174
Wisdom, 43
Women
in developing nations, chronic illness in, 5 transition in, 23
World Health Organization (WHO), 200
WHO reports, 3–4