CONTENTS

EDITORS’ NOTES
Dawn Geronimo Terkla, Lisa S. O’Leary 1

1. Analysis of the Carnegie Classification of Community Engagement: Patterns and Impact on Institutions
Amy Driscoll 3
This chapter describes the impact that selected implementation of the revised Carnegie Classification for Community Engagement had on the institutions of higher learning that applied for the classification.

2. Frequent Participation in Service Learning: Examining Institutional Differences and Individual Benefits
Daniel A. Bureau, James S. Cole, Alexander C. McCormick 17
This chapter explores the differences between institutions with high levels of involvement in service learning and low levels of involvement as well as the differences between students with high and low levels of involvement.

3. Do College Youth Serve Others? How and Under Which Circumstances? Implications for Promoting Community Service
James Griffith, Todd Thomas 29
This chapter provides information on estimates of the occurrence and persistence of community service, types of community service performed, and variables associated with performing such services.

4. The Impact of the Campus Culture on Students’ Civic Activities, Values, and Beliefs
Meredith S. Billings, Dawn Geronimo Terkla 43
This chapter explores a model that quantitatively measures the impact of the campus environment on civic engagement outcomes.

5. Civic Engagement in College Students: Connections Between Involvement and Attitudes
Lisa S. O’Leary 55
This chapter describes how canonical correlation was used in conjunction with an item response theory model to address the relationship between college students’ civic engagement involvement and attitudes as undergraduates.
6. Creating an Organizational Framework for Assessment of Student Engagement
Paul B. Duby, Charles F. Ganzert, David L. Bonsall
This chapter describes a case study of one institution's effort to institutionalize a process through which student development is promoted through active engagement with the community.

7. Alternative Spring Break at the Savannah College of Art and Design: Engaging Art and Design Students in Community Service
J. Joseph Hoey, Jeffrey A. Feld-Gore
This chapter describes the impact of an alternative spring break program on students at the Savannah College of Art and Design over a set of years as well as its effectiveness as a service-learning tool.

8. Assessing Civic Engagement at Indiana University–Purdue University Indianapolis
Gary R. Pike, Robert G. Bringle, Julie A. Hatcher
This chapter describes how several tools were developed by faculty and staff at Indiana University–Purdue University, Indianapolis, to assess campus civic engagement initiatives.

INDEX