INDEX

A
Accountability: coaching and, 159–160; leaders and, 44, 188
Achieving goals, 278–282
Action: leadership as, 11; transforming reading into, 22–23
Action plans for goals, 267
Agendas for meetings, 202
Agreements for meetings, 202–203
Aggressive communications, 246–247
Aligning: goals to values, 266; team to goals, 216, 217, 218, 272
Apologizing, 242–243
Assertive communication, 246–248
Assisting others, 186

B
Balancing feedback, 171–172, 175, 187–188
Barriers to goals, 267
Becoming a Conflict Competent Leader (Runde and Flanagan), 223
Behavior among team members, 216, 217, 218; blends of styles, 119, 120–121; cautious, 116, 119, 120, 124, 136–137; combining with goal achievement attitude, 274–277; conflict resolution and changes in, 224–225; dominant, 116, 119, 124, 133–134; feedback focused on, 176; focusing assertive communications on, 247; inspiring, 116, 119–120, 124, 134–135; questioning your perception of other’s, 228–229; responsibility for own, 242; showing support, 185–189; supportive, 116, 119, 120, 124, 135–136. See also Conflict; DISC model
Beliefs: creating in goals, 276; getting personal clarity about success, 17; in potential of others, 160–161
Beyond the Wall of Resistance (Maurer), 104
Blair, Gary Ryan, 254
Blaming others, 241–242
Blanchard, Ken, 163
Block, Peter, 104
Bonus Bytes: about, 5, 32; about special coaching situations, 196
Boss: becoming partner with your, 14–15; connecting and communicating with, 127; definitions for, 8–9; relationship with former, 44; supporting decisionmaking of, 40–41
Brain: capitalizing on power of, 258–259; reticular activating system of, 23–24
Burning platforms, 77–78

C
CARB model, 216–219, 272
Cautious behavior types, 116, 119, 120, 124, 136–137, 138
Celebrating progress, 102
Change: adapting to new peers, 43–44; building new status quo for, 101; burning platforms and, 77–78; celebrating progress in, 102; choosing and resisting, 71–72; communicating, 96–103; components of choice to, 74–76; costs and risks associated with, 75, 82–84; emotional component of, 68–69, 91; exercise about, 67–68; facing new leaders, 39–45; forces toward and away from, 84; how you and others experience, 68; implementing for performance evaluations, 183; inevitability of, 63–64; new leader’s resistance to, 90; reasons not to, 72–73; relationships with former peers, 41–43; required, 91–94; role changes, 39–45; romanticizing past, 92–93; satisfaction with status quo and, 74, 76–79; self-assessment about, 64; situational aspect of, 69; taking first steps to, 75, 81–82; thoughts about, 63–66; unexpected, 94; viewing as journey, 100; vision for future leading to, 74, 79–81; why people won’t, 85–89. See also Resistance to change

Choice, 91

Churchill, Winston, 247

Circle of influence, 51, 52–55, 270

Cloke, Kenneth, 222

Cloud, Dr. Henry, 46

Coaching: accountability in, 159–160; believing in other’s potential, 160–161; building trust in, 165; defined, 155; giving feedback, 163; importance of relationships in, 166–167; model for, 190–193; process of discovery in, 162; reinforcing positive expectations with, 61; self-assessment for, 156–157; showing support when, 185–189; thoughts about, 157–158; types of feedback in, 167–169; using conversation in, 161–162. See also Feedback

Coaching model, 190–196; about, 190–192; defining impact, 193; don’t give up, 195; follow up, 194–195; gaining commitment, 194; identifying expectations, 192–193; illustrated, 191

Collaboration: delegation vs., 185–186; self-assessment on, 197–198; setting team goals using, 269–271; thoughts about, 199–200

Commitment: demonstrating to boss, 14; gaining employee’s, 194

Communications: and but in, 142–143; applying DISC model to, 124–126; balancing feedback in, 171–172, 175, 187–188; coaching, 161–162; communicating changes, 96–103; conflict resulting from poor, 227–229; creating positive exchanges in, 188; defining business conflicts, 231–232; demonstrating respect in, 141; disagreeing in private, agreeing in public, 40; DISC model of human behavior, 115–122; expectations transmitted in, 59; focusing conflict resolution on future, 238–239; focusing on what you want in, 142; influencing others with, 52; learning to delegate and empower others in, 56; listening to others, 87, 143–144; matching speech to other’s, 141; models for, 111–114; modifying style of, 127–129; pacing conflict resolution conversations, 240–241; passive to aggressive, 246–247; presentations, 151–153; role in team performance, 216, 217, 218; self-assessment for, 107–109; speaking with, not to, others, 140; supporting with visual aids, 152; telling people what’s in it for them, 143; thoughts about effective, 109–110. See also DISC model; Listening; Presentations
Conditional forgiveness, 244
Confidence, 260
Conflict: assertive communication and, 247; constructive and destructive, 226–227; defined, 223; diagnosing resolvable, 230–231; escalating cycle of, 227–229; impact on business, 231–232; learning to deal with, 221–222; levels of, 222–223; resolving, 224–225; sources of, 227. See also Conflict resolution
Conflict resolution: apologizing and, 242–243; avoiding talking about past, 238–239; blaming others, 241–242; choosing meeting time and place, 233–234; defined, 224; discussing plan for, 234–236; documenting plan, 236; errors to avoid in, 239–245; evaluating conflict’s impact on business, 231–232; forgiveness in, 243–244; goals of, 224–225; pacing conversations in, 240–241; resolving Level 3 conflicts, 230–231; sending meeting invitations, 233; taking responsibility for behavior, 242; trying to fix emotions, 239–240
Conflict Resolution (Dana), 223
Constructive conflict, 226–227
Constructive feedback, 175
Context for feedback, 175
Control, 50
Conversations: coaching, 161–162; pacing conflict resolution, 240–241; performance evaluations as, 182. See also Communications
Costs of change, 75, 82–84, 86
Covey, Stephen R., 50
Coworkers, 31–34
Dana, Dan, 221, 222
Data: simplifying presentation, 152; using for feedback, 176
Deadlines, 259
Decisionmaking: made by meeting leader, 205; supporting boss’s, 40–41
Deescalation cycle, 235–236
Delegating: collaborating and, 185–186; defined, 56; mentoring, 61
Destructive conflict, 226–227
Dewey, John, 65
Dissatisfaction: associated with change, 82–83; compelling vision creating, 80; creating with status quo, 77–79; needed for change, 85–86
Dixon, Phil, 157–158
Documenting meeting results, 203–204
Dominant behavior types, 116, 119, 124, 133–134, 138
E

Eikenberry, Kevin, 9, 20, 104, 105, 156, 190

Emerson, Ralph Waldo, 29

Emotional needs: conflict arising from unmet, 227; understanding people’s, 131–132

Emotions: acknowledging others, 88; anger in workplace conflict, 223, 224; conflict resolution not about, 225; emotional component of change, 68–69, 91; trying to fix, 239–240. See also Conflict; Fear

Empathy, 186

Employees: believing in potential of, 160–161; blaming others in conflict, 241–242; caring about during meetings, 203; collaborating with, 185–186; commitment to team and each other, 216–218; creating ownership with performance evaluations, 182; diagnosing why they won’t change, 85–89; emotions about change, 68–69, 91; empathizing with, 186; encouraging, 188; evaluating DISC style of, 129; expectations and Galatea effect on, 60–61; explaining benefits of actions to, 143; fear and anxiety about performance evaluations, 182–183; focusing communications on what you want with, 142; forgiving other in conflict, 243–244; gaining commitment, 194; helping find new work, 161; individual responses to change, 69; influencing vs. controlling, 51–55; inviting to conflict resolution meetings, 233; reasons for not changing, 72–73; recognizing value of, 186–187; refusing to apologize, 242–243; revealing change process to, 99–100; ‘selling’ change to, 97–98; taking ownership of change, 98–99; talking about change with, 100

Empowerment, 55–56

Encouraging employees, 188

Endings for presentations, 153

Engagement: goal setting to create, 269; listening as, 143–144; resistance as, 104

Enthusiasm for goals, 276

Expectations: about, 58; conflict arising from different, 227; defining for and with team, 16; Galatea effect and, 60–61; identifying, 192–193; planning for success, 193–194; Pygmalion effect of, 58, 59–60; setting for goals, 264; transmitted in communications, 59; understanding boss’s, 14

F

Facilitators, 203

Fear: about performance evaluations, 182–183; of failure, 263–264; of success, 263

Feedback: about, 163; arguments for positive feedforward and, 172–173; balancing positive and negative, 171–172, 175, 187–188; choosing physical environment for giving, 177; how to give, 174–178; negative, 167, 171–172; negative feedforward, 168–169, 170–171; positive, 167–168, 171–173; positive feedforward, 168–169; receiving, 178; relationships as source of, 164–167; representing expertise, 164; from those in power, 164; timing of, 177–178; trust and, 165; using all types of, 170. See also Performance evaluations
First steps for change: evaluating, 83; leader’s role in, 88; taking, 75, 81–82, 86
Five Dysfunctions of a Team, The (Lencioni), 43, 147
Flanagan, Tim A., 223
Flexibility, 279
Ford, Henry, 199
Forgetting, 244
Forgiveness, 243–244
Forming stage of team development, 208, 209, 211–212
Forms for performance evaluations, 179–180, 183
Frederickson, Barbara, 171
Friendships, 41–43

G
Galatea effect, 60–61
Glouberman, Sholom, 10, 11
Goal achievement attitude, 274–277
Goals: achieving, 278–282; aligning to values, 266; attitudes supporting achievement, 274–277; balancing big vs. small, 264, 266; clarifying for new role, 15; creating ownership of, 271–272; implementing, 279–280; importance of, 257–258; keeping in mind while reading book, 22; knowing why important, 266; reasons for setting, 258–260; recognizing employee’s, 187; setting with others, 268–273; SMART acrostic for, 265; team’s alignment and agreement on, 216, 217, 218; thoughts about, 253–255; timelines for, 259, 266; visualizing purpose of, 266; why people don’t set, 261–264; writing down, 265–266
Goldsmith, Joan, 222
Google, 280–281
Groups vs. teams, 207–220

H
Harris, Sydney J., 109
Heath, Chip and Dan, 25
Help: asking for team’s, 16; giving to others, 186
Highlighting text, 21
Honesty in feedback, 174
Householder, Fred W., 110
Howe, Edgar Watson, 146
Hubbard, Elbert, 253

I
Implementing goals, 279–280
Influence: defined, 50; finding others to help, 88; focusing on others gives, 13; working within circle of, 52–55, 270
Information overload, 25
Inspiring behavior types, 116, 119–120, 124, 134–135, 138
Integrity (Cloud), 46
Intention for feedback, 175–176
International Listening Association, 145

J
Jacobson, Lenore, 59
Jefferson, Thomas, 254
Johnson, Kimberly, 243

L
Labels communicating change, 101
Leaders. See New leaders
Leadership: components of, 35–36; concerns about transitions to, 31–34; defining, 10–12; developing skills for, 13–14; finding solutions to complex problems, 33; management vs., 12–13; misconceptions about, 12–14; role in team performance, 216, 217, 218; self-assessment for, 28–29; task accomplishment and interactions with people, 36–38. See also Change; New leaders
Lencioni, Patrick, 43, 147
Letting it go, 88–89
Listening: about, 87, 145–146; assertive communication and, 248; barriers to, 146; being quiet while, 147; engaging others by, 143–144; questions in active, 149–150; showing you are, 148–149; stopping all activities during, 148; supporting others by, 187; while selling change, 98; without interrupting, 147–148; without rebuttals, 136–137
Livingston, J. Sterling, 59
Lombardi, Vince, 199
Losada Line, 171
Losada, Marcial, 171–172

M
Magic of Thinking Big, The (Schwartz), 255
Mahler, Gustav, 30
Management: leadership vs., 12–13
Managing Differences (Dana), 221
Marston, William Moulton, 116
Maslow, Abraham, 33–34
Maurer, Rick, 104
Maxwell, John, 254
Meetings: balancing relationships and process in, 204; conflict resolution, 233–234; leading, 201–204; planning coaching, 195; team leader’s role in, 204–205; using coaching model in, 195
Mentoring, 61
Misunderstanding others, 124–126
Modeling enthusiasm, 205

N
Negative feedback, 167, 171–172
Negative feedforward, 168–169, 170–171
New leaders: accountability of, 159–160, 188; achieving goals, 278–282; asking questions and talking about change, 100; balance in accomplishments and relationships, 47–49; balancing leadership style, 47–49; basic coaching skills for, 159–162; becoming remarkable, 9; behaviors supporting others, 185–189; building plan, 18–19; calling people to action, 153; celebrating progress in change process, 102; changes facing, 39–43; communications using DISC model, 127–129; concerns about transitions, 31–34; control and influence of, 51; dealing with those you don’t believe in, 161; determining strengths, 17–18; developing goal achievement attitude, 274–277; diagnosing reasons to resist change, 86–87; different titles for, 8–9; empowering others, 55–56; evaluating DISC style of others, 129; expectations of employees, 59–60; facilitating Performing teams, 213–214; giving feedback, 174–178; giving yourself slack, 17; helping in team formation, 211–212; identifying expectations, 192–193; implication of change on, 70; improving communications, 140–144; leading meetings, 201–204; learning to delegate and empower others, 56; listening skills of, 145–150; making presentations, 151–153; mediating conflicts, 230–237; meeting, 203; partnering with boss, 14–15; personal beliefs of, 1–3; reasons for setting goals, 258–260; receiving feedback, 178; recognizing Norming stage in teams, 208–209, 213; relationship with former and new boss, 44–45; resistance to change, 90; responsibilities and opportunities of, 12; revealing change process to others, 99–100; seeing employee’s value, 186–187; self-assessment for, 28–29; ‘selling’ change to people, 97–98; setting goals with teams, 268–273; staying within circle of influence, 51, 52–55, 270; succeeding in transition as, 27–30; team development in Storming stage, 212–213, 226; tools used by, 34; transitioning to, 14–18; understanding differences in DISC styles, 125–126; understanding new role, 35–38; understanding other’s resistance to change, 87–89; unseen impact of, 46–49; using communication models, 111–114; viewing change as journey, 100; working with other, 43–44. See also Change; Self-assessments

No-surprises performance evaluations, 181–182
Nonverbal messages, 247
Norming stage of team development, 208–209, 213
Now Steps, 5–6, 22

P

Pace drive in DISC model, 116–118
Parasheghian, Ara, 157
Participants at meetings, 202
Passive communications: about, 246
Patience, 16–17
Peers: adapting to new, 43–44; changing relationships with former, 41–43; connecting and communicating with, 126–127
People-oriented people: Inspiring behavior style of, 134–135; Priority drive and, 116–117
Performance: diagnosing team, 215–219; emotional needs and employee, 131; feedforward and, 168–169; goals as aid to, 258–259
Performance evaluations: about, 179–180; creating ownership with, 182; feedback in, 178; focusing on performance, 180; implementing changes in, 183; making into conversation, 182; making ongoing, 180–181; no-surprises, 181–182; reducing fear and anxiety about, 182–183; viewing form as outcome of, 179–180, 183
Performing stage of team development, 208, 209, 213–214
Persistence in coaching, 195
Personalizing presentations, 153
Perspective: differences in, 130–131; offering feedback from accepted, 176
Plans: building leadership, 18–19; committing to goal’s action, 267; creating for coaching meetings, 195; developing for team goals, 272; discussing for conflict resolution, 234–236; documenting, 236; making for success, 193–194; meeting, 201–202
Pollar, Odette, 65
Positive exchanges, 188
Positive feedback, 167–168, 171–173
Positive feedforward, 168–169, 172–173
Potential of others, 160–161
Power: leadership vs., 13
Presentations: calling people to action, 153; developing skills for, 151; personalizing, 153; simplifying data for, 152; strong endings for, 153; supporting points with visual aids, 152; using purposeful stories in, 151–152
Priorities for goals, 281
Priority drive in DISC model, 116–117, 118
Problem solving, 33
Psychology of Science, The (Maslow), 33–34
Pygmalion effect, 58, 59–60

Q
Questions: asking about change, 100, 101; asking in active listening, 149–150; open-ended, 140; using in coaching, 161

R
Reading this book: activating RAS while, 23–24; information overload, 25; Now Steps, 5–6; principles for self-assessments, 4–5; remembering goals while, 22; strategies for, 21–22; translating into action, 22–23; using Bonus Bytes, 5, 32
Receiving feedback, 178
Recorders for meetings, 203
Refusing to apologize, 242–243
Relationships: among team members, 16, 210, 216, 217, 218; balancing task accomplishment and, 47–49; changing with former peers, 41–43; feedback and, 164–167; with former and new boss, 44–45; importance in coaching, 166–167; meeting process balanced with, 204; Priority drive and people-oriented people, 116–117
Remarkable Leadership (Eikenberry), 9, 20, 104, 105, 156, 190
Required changes, 91–94
Resistance to change: about, 71–72; diagnosing reasons for, 86–87; letting it go, 88–89; reasons for, 72–73; understanding other’s, 87–89; using, 104–105
Resources for goals, 281
Respecting others, 141, 248
Responsibility: accepting own behavior, 242; leadership and, 11–12, 44; taking for change communications, 102
Retaliatory cycle, 228
Reticular activating system (RAS), 23–24
Rohm, Robert, 52
Role: changes in, 39–41; defining your, 15; identifying for meetings, 203; meeting leader’s, 204–205; talking with team about your, 16; understanding components of leadership, 35–38
Romanticizing past, 92–93
Rosenthal, Robert, 59
Runde, Craig E., 223
Ruth, Babe, 199

S
Satisfaction, 259–260
Schwartz, David Joseph, 254–255
Self-assessments: about change, 64; about leadership transition, 28–29; coaching, 156–157; collaboration, 197–198; commitment to success, 251–253; communication, 107–109; key principles for, 4–5; 360 assessments, 18
Self-image, 1–3
‘Selling’ change to people, 97–98
Seven Habits of Highly Effective People, The (Covey), 50–51
Silence, 147
Simplifying presentation data, 152
Sincerity in feedback, 174
Skills: among team members, 216, 217, 218; developing leadership, 13–14
SMART goals, 265
Speaking with others, 140–141, 142
Specificity in feedback, 174
Status quo: building new, 101; change and satisfaction with, 74, 76–79; resistance to changing, 92
Stories, 151–152
Storming stage of team development, 208, 209, 212–213, 226
Strengths, 17–18
Success: confidence and belief in, 1–3; developing common description of, 15; fear of, 263; planning for, 193–194; your commitment to, 251–253. See also Goals
Support: behaviors showing, 185–189; eliciting boss’s, 14; role in team performance, 217, 219; showing for boss’ decisionmaking, 40–41
Supportive behavior types, 116, 119, 120, 124, 135–136, 138
Switch (Heath and Heath), 25
Synergy, 270

T
Taking ownership of change, 98–99
Task-oriented people: Dominant behavior style of, 133–134; Priority drive and, 116–117
Tasks: assigning more challenging, 60–61; balancing relationships and accomplishing, 47–49; evaluating critical, 35–36; inspiring others to do, 37–38; Priority drive and task-oriented people, 116–117; understanding different styles for accomplishing, 124–125
Teams: achieving goals, 278–282; alignment and agreement on goals, 216, 217, 218; behaviors and skills of members, 216, 217, 218; CARB model, 217; commitment of employees to, 216–218; communication and performance of, 216, 217, 218; connecting and communicating with, 126–127; creating ownership of goals, 271–272; diagnosing performance problems for, 215–219; effect of high expectations on, 59; emotional needs of, 131–132; helping formation of, 211–212; how groups become, 207–220; influencing vs. controlling, 51–55; inspiring others to do tasks, 37–38; leadership in, 216, 217, 218; perspective differences in members of, 130–131; reaching Performing stage, 213–214; relationships among members, 216, 217, 218; role in meetings, 203; setting goals with, 268–273; signs of Norming stage in, 208–209, 213; stages of development, 208–210; Storming stage for developing, 208, 209, 212–213, 226; support systems and, 217, 219; talking to about your transition, 15–17; team leader’s role in meetings, 204–205; trust and performance of, 217, 219
360 assessments, 18
Time allocation for goals, 280–281
Time keepers, 203
Timelines for goals, 259, 266
Transition to leader: common concerns about, 31–34; steps for successful, 14–18; talking to team about, 15–17; thoughts about,
INDEX

29–30; working with boss after, 14–15
Trust: building in coaching, 165; role in team performance, 217, 219
Tuckman, Bruce, 208

Visualizing: completed goals, 279; helping others see goal, 276;
purpose of goals, 266
von Goethe, Johann, 65
Vulnerability, 235–236

Unexpected change, 94

Vision for future: evaluating, 83;
leading to change, 74, 79–81;
needed for change, 86; providing for meetings, 205

Wake of leadership, 46–47
Wooden, John, 157
Writing down goals, 265–266

Zimmerman, Brenda, 10, 11