CONTENTS

Preface: Transforming the Learning Experience through New Forms of Instructional Materials in the Digital Information Age ix
About the Author xv

PART ONE Interactive Learning Materials: Setting the Stage 1
ONE Interactive Learning Materials: Engaging Learners in the Emerging Digital World 3
TWO Defining an Emergent Class of Educational Resources: Interactive Multimedia Modules, Simulations, and Games 11

PART TWO Finding ILMs: A Digital Exploration 19
THREE The Discovery Process: The Art of Discovering ILMs 21
FOUR The Pioneers: Searching Online Educational Repositories in North America and the United Kingdom 35
FIVE The Educators: Searching College and University Educational Repositories 61
SIX The Entrepreneurs: Textbook Publishers, Entertainment Media, and Educational Software Companies 83
SEVEN The Exhibitors: Museums, Professional Organizations, and Governmental Organizations 95
 PART THREE Choosing and Using ILMs 111

EIGHT The Selection Process: How to Choose and Evaluate ILMs 113

NINE The Implementation Process: How to Instruct and Engage Students through ILMs 129

TEN The Assessment Process: The Impact of ILMs on Student Learning 143

Epilogue: How Faculty, Librarians, and Instructional Support Staff Transform Learning with ILMs in the Future 155

References 163

Index 169
To my family, who explore life to the fullest with me:

Jennifer, Katie, Sam, Daniel, Sarah, Rebecca, and Rachel

To my mentors and friends who inspire me:

C. Patrick Kohrman, Robert Erb, Diane Lovelace, Deena Morganti, Gregory Crawford, and Steven Bell

To my colleagues who helped make this particular work possible:

Marjory Kruppenbach, Mary Ann Mengel, Amy Roche, Tricia Clark, and Nancy Dewald