Subject Index

Page references followed by fig indicate an illustrated figure; followed by t indicate a table.

A
Achieving styles behaviors, 229–230
Action: bridging differences to cultivate social change, 303; grounded humanism principles driving social, 299–300; leadership enactment domain of leadership development, 14 fig, 323.
See also Behaviors
Active management-by-exception, 193, 194fig
Adaptive challenges: complexity leadership theory on, 278; distinguishing between technical problems and, 267; four common archetypes of, 268–270; identifying, 271–272
Adaptive challenges archetypes: competing commitments, 269; gap between espoused values and actual behaviors, 268; speaking the unspeakable, 269; work avoidance, 269–270
Adaptive leadership: deconstruction of, 286–287; description of, 265; how research evolves the concept, 275; overview and applying the concept, 265–274; reconstruction using sensemaking, 291; strengths and weaknesses of, 275t
Adaptive leadership concept applications: focus attention on ripening issues, 272–273; “getting on the balcony,” 270–271; give the work back, 273–274; identify the adaptive challenge, 271–272; manage disequilibrium in the holding environment, 272; protect voices without authority, 274
Adaptive leadership features: authority considerations, 266–267; holding environments, 270; problem classification considerations, 268; technical and adaptive problem solving, 267–270
Agency: critical social theories on structure and, 32; how hegemony can impact our, 37; reconstruction by cultivating, 47fig, 48; redefining for reconstruction of theories of transformation, 222; theories of transformation deconstruction on limiting, 218–219
Alienation, 45
Altruism, 216–217
Attending to power, 47fig, 48
Attributes: as constellations of traits, 86; distal and proximal, 86
Authentic leadership: applying the concept, 262–263; assumptions and timeline of, 60; core competencies associated with, 262; deconstruction of, 283–286; defining, 260–261; defining authenticity in context of, 260; description of, 257–259; distinctiveness as a theory, 264; how research evolves the concept, 263–264; on leadership outcomes, 263–264; points of caution regarding literature on, 259–260; positive psychological states associated with, 263; reconstruction using sensemaking, 290; strengths and weaknesses of, 265

Authentic leadership deconstruction:
- authenticity as a privileged concept, 285–286;
- the true self, 284–285;
- universal moral code, 283–284

Authenticity: defining, 260; often framed as a false dichotomy, 259; as a privileged concept, 285–286

Authority: adaptive leadership deconstruction using power and, 286–287; adaptive leadership on, 266–267, 274; adaptive leadership on social contract of power and, 267; deconstruction of group-centered theories and rejection of, 178–179; leadership theories and uneven treatment of power and, 317–318; power versus, 21–22; protecting voices without, 274. See also Flow of power; Power

B

Behavioral theory: achieving styles representing varying approaches to leadership by, 229–230, 233–234; assumptions and timeline of, 60

Behaviors: achieving styles of leaders, 229–230, 233–234; adaptive work on gap between espoused values and actual, 268; connective leadership's three meta-categorical sets of leader, 230–232; inclusive, 181–183, 183–185, 229; path-goal theory on motivational functions of leader, 133; style theory on task, relational, and change-oriented, 118, 119. See also Action

Bookend theories: description and function of, 70–71, 297; implicit leadership theory (ILT) as, 70, 297; strategic social change theory as, 298

Born versus made dichotomy, 17–18, 88–89

Boundary spanning, 162

Bridging differences, 303

C

Capital: cultural, 41; social, 41; socioeconomic status, 41

Capitalism: definition of, 45; Marx's interest in social commodification of, 45

Change. See Social change

Chaos (or system) theory, 60

Charismatic leaders, 192

Civil Rights Movement: evolution of formal leadership theory timeline on, 65; multiple identified leaders and followers of the, 20

Coercive power, 21, 22

Cognitive development, 325

Collective efficacy, 173

Commitments: adaptive challenge archetype of competing, 269; leadership challenge model on ten leadership, 91–93

Commodification: adaptive leadership deconstruction using, 286–287; deconstruction of theories of production and effectiveness, 138–143; description of, 45; how connective leadership explicitly addresses, 229; the “story most often told” deconstructed using, 64; as tool of deconstruction, 44

Communication: leadership practice of reframing discourse, 303; relationality by engaging in dialogue, 247; relationship-centered theories reconstruction using tool of dialogue, 253–254
Complexity leadership theory: complex adaptive systems (CAS) unit of analysis in, 278, 279–280, 287–288; deconstruction of, 287–289; defining leadership as “emergent, interactive dynamic,” 277; description of, 276; how research evolves the concept, 282; model of, 279fig; overview and applying the concept, 276–282; reconstruction using sensemaking, 291–292; strengths and weaknesses of, 283

Complexity leadership theory assumptions: the bureaucratic superstructure, 278; CAS as the unit of analysis, 278, 279–280, 287–288; hierarchical structuring, 278; leadership as interaction, 287

Complexity leadership theory concept applications: complex adaptive systems (CAS), 278, 279–280, 287–288; emergence as product of adaptive leadership, 282; three types of leadership, 281–282

Complexity leadership theory premises: adaptive challenges, 278; on leadership as more than management, 278; process orientation, 277; social construction, 277

Connective leadership: achieving styles attention by the, 229–230, 233t–234t; description of, 228; how research evolves the concept of, 234–235; model of the, 231fig–234t; overview and applying the concept, 228–234t; strengths and weaknesses of, 236t

Constructionist: differences between entity and constructionist perspectives of leadership, 242t; as relational leadership theory perspective, 245fig

Contingent reward, 193, 194fig

Convergence (interest). See Interest convergence

Critical hope: critical perspective applied to, 51–52; description of, 51

Critical pedagogy, 33

Critical perspectives: benefits of using, 52; as challenging normative assumptions on leadership, 319; as constructing our reality, 29; essential preparation for applying, 49–52; five fundamental skills associated with adoption of, 324; interpreting leadership theory using, 57–84; leadership development cultivation of, 324–325; relationship-centered theories reconstruction using core competencies for, 253; used for deconstruction and reconstruction, 42–49. See also Deconstruction: Reconstruction

Critical self-reflection: critical perspective role of, 50; definition of, 50; reconstructing theories of transformation using, 221–222

Critical social theories: central tenets of, 32–33; critical pedagogy on learning applications of, 33; definition of, 31–32; ideology and hegemony themes of, 36–39; social location theme of, 39–42; stocks of knowledge theme of, 33–36; study of leadership using, 57–58

Critical social theories tenets: advance social change, 32–33; disrupt taken-for-granted assumptions, 32; envision agency within structure, 32; presume structural inequality, 32; rejection of positivism, 32

Critical theory, 7t

Cultivating agency, 47fig, 48

Cultural capital, 41

Cultural differences, 317. See also Social locations

Deconstructed “story most often told”: commodification, 64; flow of power, 64–66; ideological critique, 62–64; interdisciplinary, 62; willful blindness, 66–67
Deconstruction: adaptive leadership, 286; authentic leadership, 283–286; complexity leadership theory, 287–289; critical perspectives used as interpretative tools for, 42–49; description of the process of, 42–43; of evolution of leadership theory, 62–67; group-centered theories, 176–180; how reconstruction is coupled with, 43; implicit leadership theory (ILT), 78–80; person-centered theories, 104–109; relationship-centered theories, 249–252; strategic social change leadership, 306–307; theories of production and effectiveness, 138–143; theories of transformation, 215–219; vanguard theories, 283–289. See also Critical perspectives; Reconstruction

Deconstruction tools: commodification as, 44(fig, 45, 64, 138–143, 229, 286–287; flow of power as, 44(fig, 46, 64–66, 79, 176–177, 287–289; ideological critique as, 44(fig–45, 62–64; introduction to, 43–44; willful blindness, 44(fig, 45–46, 66–67, 79, 250–251

Dialectical thinking: critical perspective applied to, 51; description of, 51

Dialogue: relationality by engaging in, 247; relationship-centered theories reconstruction using tool of, 253–254

Disrupting normativity: reconstructing the evolution of leadership theory using, 68; as tool of reconstruction, 47(fig–48

Distal attributes, 86

E

Emotionally intelligent (EI) leadership theory: description of, 94–95; framework of, 96t; overview and application of, 95–96; strengths and weaknesses of, 97t

Environments: holding, 270, 272; leadership development in social, group, and organizational, 325–326; of team operations, 172

Ethics: relational leadership model core component of values and, 237(fig, 238; universal moral code and, 283–284.
See also Values

Eugenics, 86

Expert power, 21, 22t

F

Flow of power: complexity leadership theory deconstruction using, 287–289; deconstruction of group-centered theories on, 176–177; description of, 46; implicit leadership theory (ILT) deconstructed using, 79; the “story most often told” deconstructed using, 64–66; as tool of deconstruction, 44(fig, 46. See also Authority; Power

Follower versus leader dichotomy, 19–20

Followers: adaptive leadership on protecting voices without authority, 274; dichotomy of leader versus, 19–20; shared leadership model on leaders and, 169–175t; transformational leadership on factors that influence efforts of, 191–194(fig

Formal leadership theories: description of, 11, 12t; evolution of, 58–72; on individual and collective power, 22; on leader/follower relationships, 20; on leadership as an innate quality, 18–19; on spheres of influence, 23. See also Leadership theories

Formal leadership theory evolution: clusters of formal leadership theories over time, 60t; deconstructing the, 59–61, 62–72; the importance of understanding, 58; reconstructing the, 67–71; timeline of the, 61(fig

G

Gender/gender differences: authenticity as privileged concept and implications for, 285–286; connective leadership on inclusion and commodification issues of, 229; leader prototype on females as less “believable” leaders, 77; Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI), 93; post-industrial leadership among females, 66
Great Man theory: assumptions and timeline of, 60; The Journey to the East (Hesse) with elements of the, 199; person-centered theory cluster on the, 71; transformational leaders defaults as “great men” of, 191
Grounded humanism: key principles driving social action of, 299–300; strategic social change leadership founded on, 298–299, 301
Group-centered theories: deconstruction of, 176–180; description and content covered by, 71; LMX (leader-member exchange theory), 151–160; reconstruction of, 180–185; shared leadership, 169–175; team leadership, 160–168
Group-centered theories reconstruction: core dimensions of inclusion, 181–182; inclusion as a catalyst for interest convergence, 182–183; inclusive structural and behavioral considerations, 184; interest convergence tool used for, 180–181; using inclusive practice to reconstruct group-centered leadership, 183–185
Groups: adaptive challenge archetype of speaking the unspeakable in, 269; adaptive leadership on giving the work back to the, 273–274; leadership development in environment of, 325–326; LMX on dyadic relationships in complex organizational, 156–157; the public discourse narrative of, 269
Hegemony: common sense as normalized response to, 38–39; critical perspective for examining and applying, 42–52; critical self-reflection used to reveal, 50; definition of, 36; example of how agency is influenced by, 37; functioning as form of social control, 36–39; how ideology functions in tandem with, 38–39; metacognition informed by, 50; often omitted from leadership literature, 63; social location, ideology, and, 39–42
Heroic leader myth, 217
High-quality exchanges: LMX (leader-member exchange theory) on cultivating, 156; LMX on factors contributing to, 157–158
Holding environments: managing disequilibrium in the, 272; for networks of relationships, 270
Idealized influence of leaders, 192, 194
Identity development: as leadership developmental construct, 325; leadership identity development (LID) studies on, 239–240; leadership theory research findings on, 316–317. See also Racial identity; Social identity
Ideological critique: deconstructing the “story most often told” using, 62–64; description of, 44; as tool of deconstruction, 44–45
Ideologies: basic truth as prerequisite for, 36; critical perspectives for examining and applying, 42–52; definition of, 36; how hegemony functions in tandem with, 38–39; metacognition informed by, 50; positivism tenets supporting, 37; social location, hegemony, and, 39–42
Implicit leadership theory (ILT): applying the concept of, 73–75; as bookend theory, 70, 297; deconstruction of, 78–80; description of the, 72–73; on leader prototypes, 75–77; overview of the development of, 73; reconstructed organization of leadership theory informed by, 69; reconstruction of, 80–82; strengths and weaknesses of, 77–78
Inclusion: as catalyst for interest convergence, 182–183; core dimensions of, 181;
how connective leadership explicitly addresses, 229; making it everyone’s responsibility, 185; multiple and nested systems of, 182fig; reconstructing group-centered leadership using practice of, 183–185; structural and behavioral considerations of, 184t

Inclusiveness concept, 229

Individualized consideration of leaders, 192–193, 194t

Individuals: formal leadership theories on power of the, 22; individual capacity for social change, 304; individualized consideration of leaders, 192–193, 194t

Inequalities: critical social theories presume structural, 32; relationship-centered theories deconstruction using, 250, 251; strategic social change leadership recognition of systemic, 299–300; Whites and interest convergence in racial justice and, 49. See also Privilege; Social change

Influence theory, 60t

Influences: LMX (leader-member exchange theory) on leadership outcomes, 158–159; people, purpose, and process influences in leadership, 70fig; power compared to, 21; of servant leadership on leadership outcomes, 204–205; transformational leadership on factors influencing followers, 191–194fig. See also Spheres of influences

Informal leadership theory, 11, 12t

Inspirational motivation of leaders, 192, 194fig

Intellectual stimulation of leaders, 192, 194fig

Interactions: complexity leadership theory on leadership as, 278; how stocks of knowledge influence our, 35; LMX on cultivating high-quality exchanges, 156; power as flowing through all, 40–42; team leadership model on dynamics of team, 165–166. See also Relationships

Interdisciplinary: leadership nature of, 9–10; as shaping understanding of leadership theory, 62

Interest convergence: inclusion as a catalyst for, 182–183; reconstruction by building, 47fig, 48–49; reconstruction of group-centered theories using, 180–181

J

Justice-based leadership model: grounded humanism foundation for a, 298–301fig; moving toward a, 297–298; strategic social change leadership, 298–308. See also Social change; Social justice

K

Knowledge: relational leadership philosophies on, 243, 247; social location constituted through, 39–42, 288–289; stocks of, 33–35, 42–52, 106–109

Knowledge construction: continuous co-construction of, 243; engaging in dialogue for, 247; examining assumptions in, 247

L

Leader behaviors: achieving styles, 229–230; direct, 230; instrumental, 231, 232; path-goal theory on motivational functions of, 133fig; relational, 230–231; style theory on task, relational, and change-oriented, 118, 119t

Leader prototypes: cultural contingency of, 76; on females as less “believable” leaders, 77; the general U.S., 75–76; impact of, 75; social stratification as reflection of, 76–77

Leader versus follower dichotomy, 19–20

Leader versus leadership dichotomy, 19

Leaders: boundary spanning role of, 162; connective leadership’s achieving styles of, 229–230, 233t–234t; cultivating
Leadership: argument for the adoption of multiple philosophies of, 237; complexity leadership theory on "emergent, interactive dynamic," 277; differences between entity and constructionist perspectives of, 242; interdisciplinary nature of, 9–10; management versus, 20–21; numerous definitions of, 3; as property of the social systems, 243; pseudo-transformational, 191; situational, 125–132; social construction of, 8; strategic social change leadership practices, 302–304; strengths-based, 98–100, 98–104; transactional versus transforming, 190–191; understood as continually evolving, 1–2; why we study leadership and, 2–3. See also Leadership outcomes; Management

Leadership assumptions: leadership is inherently values based, 8–9; leadership is interdisciplinary, 9–10; leadership is paradigmatically derived, 6–7; leadership is socially constructed, 8; theoretical footings of, 5

Leadership capacity: cultivating critical perspectives within domain of, 322; description of, 14–15; as leadership development domain, 14

Leadership challenge model: on five practices and ten commitments of leadership, 91–93; Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI) measurements of leadership, 90; overview of the, 90–91; strengths and weaknesses of the, 94

Leadership core considerations: authority versus power, 21–22; born versus made, 18–19, 88–89; differentiation among theories, 5; leader versus follower, 19–20; leader versus leadership, 19; leadership versus management, 20–21; macro versus micro, 22–24

Leadership development: in broader social system, 326; cultivation of critical perspectives within domains of, 324–325; definition of, 13; of development factors and skills, 325; as foundation for leadership theory, 13; four domains of, 13–17, 322–324; gains in the developmental constructs, 325; integrated model of critical, 322, 323; social change model of, 206–215; in social, group, and organizational environments, 325–326

Leadership development domains: leadership capacity, 14; leadership enactment, 14; leadership motivation, 14; leadership efficacy, 14

Leadership efficacy: cultivating critical perspectives within domain of, 322–323; description of, 16–17; as leadership development domain, 14

Leadership enactment: cultivating critical perspectives within domain of, 322; description of, 15; as leadership development domain, 14

Leadership identity development (LID) studies, 239–240

Leadership knowledge commodification: description and implications of, 138; quick fixes, 139; theory flippers, 139–140; zombie theories, 140

Leadership-making process: LMX (leader-member exchange theory) on the, 154–156; the stranger, acquaintance, and partnership phrases of, 155

Leadership motivation: cultivating critical perspectives within domain of, 323;
description of, 15–16; inspirational motivation of leaders, 192, 194fig; as leadership development domain, 14fig, 323

Leadership outcomes: authentic leadership on, 263–264; LMX on influences on, 158–159; servant leadership influences on, 204–205; shared leadership research on, 174; social change model of leadership development study of influences on, 213; strategic social change leadership on social change, 305. See also Leadership

Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI), 90

Leadership terminology: how key assumptions provide footings for, 5, 10–11; leadership efficacy, 16–17; leadership capacity, 14–15; leadership development, 13–14fig; leadership enactment, 15; leadership theory, 11–13; leadership motivation, 15–16

Leadership theories: the architecture of, 4fig–5; assumptions of, 5, 6–10; continued integration and future development of, 313–314, 327; core considerations of different, 5, 17–24; critical perspectives for interpreting, 57–84; differentiating between models, taxonomies, frameworks, and, 12t; emergent themes across all, 314–321; formal versus informal, 11, 12t; ILT (implicit leadership theory), 69fig, 70, 72–82, 297; the interconnection of leadership development and, 322–327; as representing imperfect attempts at insight about leadership, 313; terminology related to, 5, 11–13. See also Formal leadership theories; Theories

Leadership theory themes: acknowledging the complexity of change, 318–319; the reality of the barriers to practice, 320–321; resistance to exploring social location, 315–317; the uneven treatment of power and authority, 317–318; the Western bias, 314–315

Leadership versus management dichotomy, 20–21

Legitimate power, 21, 22t

Leveraging power concept, 301

LGBTQ people: authenticity as privileged concept and implications for, 285–286; connective leadership on inclusion and commodification issues of, 229; post-industrial leadership among, 66

Lifeworld–knowledge influence, 33–35

LMX (leader-member exchange theory): deconstruction on ease of manipulation, 177–178; description of, 151–152; descriptive approach to, 183, 185; how research evolves the concept, 157–159; illustrated diagram of LMX relationships, 153fig–154; overview and applying the concept, 152–157; strengths and weaknesses of, 160t; VDL (vertical dyad linkage) approach origins of, 152

LMX (leader-member exchange theory) applications: cultivating high-quality exchanges, 156; dyadic relationships in complex organizations, 156–157; leadership-making process, 154–156

M

Macro versus micro dichotomy, 22–24

Made versus born dichotomy, 18–19, 88–89

Management: active management-by-exception, 193, 194fig; complexity leadership theory on leadership as more than, 278; leadership versus, 20–21; passive management-by-exception, 193, 194fig; strategic social change leadership’s technologies of, 302t. See also Leadership

Manager-led teams, 161t

Metacognition: critical perspective role of, 50; definition of, 50
Models: adapted full-range transforming/transformational leadership, 191–194; complexity leadership theory, 279; connective leadership, 231–234; definition of, 12; integrated model of critical leadership development, 322, 324; leadership challenge model, 90–94; reconstructed organization of leadership theory, 67–71; relational leadership, 236–240; servant leadership adapted, 201–202; shared leadership, 169–175; strategic social change leadership, 301; team leadership, 160–168

Morality: universal moral code, 283–284; what it is and who determines, 283. See also Values

Motivation. See Leadership motivation

Multi-Institutional Study of Leadership (MSL), 211–212

Multifactor Leadership Questionnaire (MLQ), 194–195

Mutuality concept, 229

Norms: how stocks of knowledge influence our, 33–35; reconstruction using disrupting normativity of, 47–48, 68; theories of transformation deconstruction on reinforcement of dominant, 217–218

Organizations: creating organizational capacity for social change in, 305; leadership development in environment of, 325–326; LMX on dyadic relationships in complex, 156–157

Passive management-by-exception, 193, 194

Path-goal theory: description of the, 132; how research evolves the concept, 136–137; illustrated diagram of, 134; motivational functions of leader behaviors, 133; overview and applying the concept, 133–136; strengths and weaknesses of, 137

Pedagogy (critical), 33

People of Color: authenticity as privileged concept and implications for, 285–286; connective leadership on inclusion and commodification issues of, 229; Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI) differences for, 93; post-industrial leadership among, 66; whiteness adopted into business leader prototypes of, 77

Person-centered theories: deconstruction of, 104–109; description and content covered by, 71; emotional intelligence (EI) leadership, 94–97; leadership challenge model, 90–94; reconstruction of, 109–113; strengths-based leadership, 98–104; trait-based leadership, 85–90

Person-centered theory deconstruction: lack of process considerations, 105–107; reinforcing stocks of knowledge, 106–109

Person-centered theory reconstruction: illustrated diagram of the, 111; overview of the, 109–110, 112

Positivism: critical social theories as rejection of, 32; ideological beliefs supported by, 37; research paradigms and influences on leadership, 7t
Subject Index

Post-industrial leadership: evolution of formal leadership theory on, 65; flow of power to deconstruct, 64–66

Post-modernism, 7

Power: adaptive leadership deconstruction using authority and, 286–287; adaptive leadership on authority as social contract with, 267; authority versus, 21–22; as flowing through all interactions, 40–42; influence compared to, 21; leadership theories and uneven treatment of authority and, 317–318; reconstruction by attending to, 47; social location constituted through, 39–42, 288–289; strategic social change leadership on leveraging, 301; types of, 21, 22. See also Authority; Flow of power

Power types: coercive, 21, 22; expert, 21, 22; legitimate, 21, 22; referent, 21, 22; reward, 21, 22

Privilege: authenticity as linked to whiteness concept of, 285–286; critical perspectives for challenging normative assumptions on leadership and, 319.

See also Inequalities

Problem solving: adaptive challenges and, 267–270; technical, 267

Prototypes. See Leader prototypes

Proximal attributes, 86

Pseudo-transformational leadership, 191

Reciprocal theory, 60

Reconstructed organization of leadership theory: bookend theories, 70–71; illustrated figure of, 69; leadership theory clusters, 68, 70, 71; people, purpose, and process influences in leadership, 70; social context, 68; things to remember about, 67–68

Reconstruction: adaptive leadership, 291; authentic leadership, 290; complexity leadership theory, 291–292; critical perspectives used as interpretative tools for, 42–49; group-centered theories, 180–185; how deconstruction is coupled with, 43; implicit leadership theory (ILT), 80–82; of leadership theory organization, 67–71; person-centered theories, 109–113; relationship-centered theories, 252–254; strategic social change leadership, 306–307; theories of production and effectiveness, 143–146; theories of transformation, 219–222; vanguard theories, 289–292. See also Critical perspectives; Deconstruction

Reconstruction tools: attending to power as, 47; building interest convergence, 47; cultivating agency, 47; disrupting normativity as, 47; introduction to, 46–47

“The reductive seduction of other people’s problems” phenomena, 219–220

Referent power, 21, 22

Reframing discourse, 303

Relational leadership model: description of, 236; five foundational philosophies of, 237; how research evolves the concept, 239–240; overview and applying the concept, 237; strengths and weaknesses of, 240

Relational leadership philosophies: description of, 241; differences between entity and constructionist perspectives of leadership, 242t; how research evolves the concept, 248; illustrated figure on considerations of the, 245fig; overview and applying the concept, 242t–247; strengths and weaknesses of, 248t
Relational leadership philosophies concept applications: avoiding relational malpractice, 246–247; engaging in dialogue, 247; examining assumptions in knowledge construction, 247; variations in relational practice, 246fig
Relational leadership philosophies tenets: continuous co-construction of knowledge, 243; leadership as property of the social system, 243; relationality, 243
Relationality: dialogue for advancing relationality, 247; relational leadership philosophies tenet of, 243. See also Relationships
Relationship-centered theories: connective leadership, 228–236t; deconstruction of, 249–252; description and content covered by, 71t, 227; reconstruction of, 252–254; the relational leadership model, 236–241; relational leadership philosophies, 241–249
Relationship-centered theories deconstruction: benign neglect as hegemonic, 250–251; diverting attention from the system, 251; issues to consider for, 249, 252; replication of inequitable systems, 250; social stratification of relationships, 250
Relationship-centered theories reconstruction: core competencies for critical perspectives, 253; developmental trajectories, 253; dialogue as a tool for disruption for, 253–254; issues to consider for, 252; relationships as the site of disruption, 252
Relationships: deconstruction of group-centered theories on authority and, 176–177; holding environment for space formed by, 270; LMX on dyadic exchanges in complex organizations, 156–157; LMX on high-quality exchanges in leader–subordinate, 156, 157–158. See also Interactions; Relationality; Social stratification
Resilience development, 325
Reward power, 21, 22t
Rewards (contingent), 193, 194fig
S
Savior complex, 217
Self (true or authentic), 284–285
Sensemaking: adaptive leadership enhanced through, 291; authentic leadership enhanced through, 290; complexity leadership theory enhanced through, 291–292; description and functions of, 289
Servant leadership: adapted model of, 201–202fig; considerations based on social location, 205; description of, 197–198; how research evolves the concept, 204–205; influences on leadership outcomes, 204–205; The Journey to the East (Hesse) and Judeo-Christian values of, 198–200; overview and applying the concept of, 198–204; philosophical basis of, 200–202; strengths and weaknesses of, 206t; validation and theoretical distinctiveness of, 204
Shared leadership model: description of the, 169; how research evolves the concept, 172–173; illustrated figure of adapted conceptual, 171fig; on leadership outcomes, 174; overview and applying the concept, 169–172; strengths and weaknesses of, 175t; two notes of caution on the, 174–175; vertical vs. shared approaches to group functions, 170fig
Shared leadership research: on leadership outcomes, 174; on precursor conditions,
Subject Index

172–173; two notes of caution on, 174–175

Situational leadership: description of, 125–126; how research evolves the concept, 131; overview and applying the concept, 126–130; Situational Leadership II Model of the, 128–129fig, 130; strengths and weaknesses of, 132t; strengths-based leadership versus, 323–324

Situational/contingency theory: assumptions and timeline of, 60t; situational leadership, 125–132t, 323–324

Social capital, 41

Social change: bridging differences to cultivate action for, 303; creating collective capacity for, 304–305; critical social theories advancing, 32–33; leadership theory’s acknowledgement of the complexity of, 318–319; reframing discourse and addressing gap of espoused and actual values of, 303; strategic social change leadership’s vision of justice and, 300, 303–304; unleashing human energies for, 304. See also Inequalities; Justice-based leadership model

Social change model of leadership development: description of, 206–207; how research evolves the concept, 211–214; illustrated figure of the, 208fig; overview and applying the concept, 207–211; seven key values of the, 208fig–211t; strengths and weaknesses of the, 215t

Social change model of leadership development research: considerations based on social location, 213–214; on influences on leadership outcomes, 213; measurement and validation, 212–213; Multi-Institutional Study of Leadership (MSL) used in, 211–212; Socially Responsible Leadership Scale (SRLS) used in, 212

Social change model of leadership development values: attitude and belief formation, 210t, 211t; knowledge acquisition, 210t, 211t; overview of the seven key, 208fig–209; skill and ability development, 210t, 211t

Social construction of leadership, 8

Social context: leadership development in environment of, 325–326; reconstructing the evolution of leadership theory informed by, 68, 69fig

Social contract, 267

Social control, 36–39

Social identity: developmental construct of, 325; leadership identity development (LID) studies, 239–240; leadership theory research findings on, 316–317; social location constituted through, 39–42, 288–289. See also Identity development; Racial identity

Social inequality. See Inequalities

Social justice: grounded humanism values supporting, 298–300; interest convergence in racial justice form of, 49; strategic social change leadership’s vision of, 300; value of, 299; working assumptions recognizing social inequalities, 299. See also Justice-based leadership model

Social locations: bridging differences between people of different, 303; complexity leadership theory deconstruction using, 288–289; critical perspectives for examining and applying, 42–52; deconstruction on group-centered theories and inattention to, 179–180; definition of, 39; how ideology and hegemony interact with, 39–42; leadership theory resistance to exploring, 315–317; servant leadership considerations based on, 205; social change model of leadership development research consideration of, 213–214. See also Cultural differences

Social order: common sense as the normalized response to dominant, 38–39; reframing discourse and addressing gap of espoused and actual values of, 303; unleashing human energies for changing, 304
Social perspective-taking: bridging differences between different, 303; critical perspective applied to, 50–51; definition of, 50
Social reality: bridging differences between worldviews of, 303; how ideology and hegemony frame, 36–39; social perspective-taking of, 50–51, 303
Social stratification: leader prototype reflection of, 76–77; relationship-centered theories deconstruction using, 250. See also Relationships Social systems: leadership as property of the, 243; leadership development in broader, 326; relationship-centered theories deconstruction using diversion of attention from, 251; social stratification of, 76–77, 250. See also Systems
Socialization systems, 29
Spheres of influences: implications when absent from a theory, 23; as reflecting target of leadership impact, 23; as tenet for interpretation of theories of production and effectiveness, 145. See also Influences
Stocks of knowledge: critical perspectives for examining and applying, 42–52; five key features characterizing, 34; influencing how we process interactions, 35; lifeworld operations through, 33–34; metacognition informed by, 50; person-centered theory deconstruction using, 106–109; typifications used to influence our understanding of, 34–35
The “story most often told”: articulating paradigm shift of leadership literature, 59–61; deconstruction of, 62–67
Strategic social change leadership: deconstruction and reconstruction of the, 306–307; description of the, 298; grounded humanism foundation of, 298–299, 301fig; model of, 301fig; overview and applying the concept of, 298–305; strengths and weaknesses of the, 306t; value of social justice in, 299; working assumptions on social justice in, 299
Strategic social change leadership applications: creating collective capacity for social change, 304–305; illustrated figure of the model, 301fig; leadership practices for social change, 302–304; leveraging power concept, 301; long-term leadership outcomes for social change, 305; technologies of management, 302t
Strategic social change leadership principles: to redress identified systemic inequity, 299–300; value of social justice, 299; visions of justice, 300; working assumptions recognizing inequalities, 299
Strengths-based leadership: Clifton StrengthsFinder (CSF) survey of the, 98–103; description of the, 98; overview and applications of, 98–100; research evolution of the concept of, 100–103; situational leadership versus, 323–324; strengths and weaknesses of, 104t; strengths-based leadership domains and talent themes, 101t
Structural inequality: critical social theories presume, 32; how hegemony operates within, 38; social location form of, 39–42
Structures: critical social theories on agency within, 32; critical social theories on inequalities built into, 32; reconstruction of ILT on, 81
Style theory: description of the, 117–118; how research evolves the concept, 123–124; the Leadership Grid (was Managerial Grid) of the, 120fig–123; motivational factors associated with dominant leader styles, 122t; overview and application of, 118–123; strengths and weaknesses of, 125t; task, relational, change-oriented behaviors of the, 118, 119

Subordinates: adaptive leadership on protecting voices without authority, 274; cultivating high-quality exchanges between leaders and, 156; dichotomy of leader versus follower or, 19–20; shared leadership model on leaders and, 169–175; transformational leadership on factors that influence efforts of,
191–194

System (or chaos) theory, 60

Systems: complex adaptive systems (CAS), 278, 279–280; strategic social change leadership recognition of inequalities in,
299–300; system or chaos theory assumptions on, 60; worldview of dominate, 40. See also Social systems

T

Taxonomies, 12

Team leadership applications: adapted cancel conceptual model of team leadership, 163f; representative of time, 167; team interaction dynamics, 165–166; team leader functions, 164–165; teamwork,
166–167

Team leadership model: definition of team leadership in, 162; description and content of group-centered theory of, 160–168; key features of different types of teams, 161; overview and applying the concept of, 161–168;
strengths and weaknesses of, 168

Teams: collective efficacy of, 173; environment of operations of, 172; manager-ed, 161; self-designing, self-governing, self-managing, 161; shared leadership model on, 169–175; support of positional leaders in, 173; tenure within, 173

Technical problems: distinguishing between adaptive challenges and, 267; efficient management use of existing resources for solving, 270

Theoretical clusters: description of, 68;
group-centered theories, 71t, 151–185;
person-centered theories, 71t, 85–113;
reconstructed leadership, 67–71t;
relationship-centered theories, 71t, 227–255; theories of production and effectiveness, 71t, 117–146; theories of transformation, 71t, 189–222; vanguard theories, 71t, 257–292

Theories: critical social theory, 31–53;
formal, 11, 12t, 18–20, 22–23, 58–72;
informal, 11, 12t; letting go of theoretical certainty of, 30–31; zombie, 140.
See also Leadership theories

Theories of production and effectiveness:
deconstruction of, 138–143; description and content covered by, 71t; path-goal theory, 132–137t; reconstruction of,
143–146t; situational leadership,
125–132t; style theory, 117–125

Theories of production and effectiveness reconstruction: core tenants for the interpretation of, 144–145; issues to consider for, 143–144; operating principles for the application of theory, 145–146t

Theories of transformation: deconstructing, 215–219; description and content covered by, 71t, 189; reconstructing, 219–222; servant leadership, 197–206t;
social change model of leadership development, 206–215t; transforming/transformational leadership, 189–197t

Theories of transformation deconstruction:
diminished complexity, 216; limiting agency, 218–219; overreliance on altruism, 216–217; perpetuating the heroic leader myth, 217; reinforcement of dominant norms, 217–218; romanticizing leadership, 215–216; the savior complex, 217
Theories of transformation reconstruction: engage in critical self-reflection, 221–222; integrate prosocial terms, 220–221; invite complexity, 222; modifying transformative theories, 220; redefine agency, 222; “the reductive seduction of other people’s problems” phenomena issue of, 219–220
Theory flippers, 139–140
Trait-based leadership theory: assumptions and timeline of, 60t; description of, 85–86; how research has evolved the concept of, 87–89; leadership phases, 88t; overview of the, 86–87; strengths and weaknesses of, 90t
Traits: attributes as constellations of, 86; definition of, 86
Transactional leadership, 190–191
Transforming/transformational leadership: adapted full-range model of leadership, 194t; cascading effect of, 194; description of, 189–190; the good and concerning news about, 195–196; how research evolves the concept, 194–195; Multifactor Leadership Questionnaire (MLQ) used in, 194–195; overview and applying the concept, 190–194; strengths and weaknesses of, 197t; transactional versus transforming leadership, 190–191
Typifications: definition of, 34; stocks of knowledge and dependence on, 34–35
United States: deconstructions and reconstructions as function of social dynamics in the, 315; example of interest convergence in racial justice in the, 49; Western bias of leadership theories in the, 314–315
Universal moral code, 283–284
V
Values: adaptive work on gap between actual behaviors and espoused, 268; leadership is inherently based on, 8–9; reframing social change discourse and addressing gap of espoused and actual, 303; relational leadership model core component of, 237fig, 238; servant leadership interpreted through Judeo-Christian, 199–200, 201–202fig; social change model of leadership development on seven key, 208fig–211t; strategic social change leadership’s social justice, 299. See also Ethics; Morality
Vanguard theories: adaptive leadership, 265–276; authentic leadership, 257–265t; complexity leadership theory, 276–283t; deconstruction of, 283–289; description and content covered by, 71t, 257; reconstruction of, 289–292
Vanguard theories deconstruction: adaptive leadership, 286–287; authentic leadership, 283–286; complexity leadership theory, 287–289
Vanguard theories reconstruction: how sensemaking enhance authentic leadership, 290; issues to consider, 289–290
VDL (vertical dyad linkage) approach, 152
W
Western bias of leadership theory, 314–315
Whiteness: authenticity as privileged concept linked to, 285–286; interest convergence in racial justice by, 49
Willful blindness: to deconstruct formal leadership theory evolution, 66–67; description of, 45; implicit leadership theory (ILT) deconstructed using, 79; relationship-centered theories deconstruction using, 250–251; as tool of deconstruction, 44fig, 45–46

Women: authenticity as privileged concept and implications for, 285–286; connective leadership on inclusion and commodification issues of, 229; leader prototype on females as less “believable” leaders, 77; Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI) differences for, 93; post-industrial leadership among, 66

Work: adaptive challenge of avoidance of adaptive, 269–270; adaptive leadership on giving back to the group, 273–274; shared leadership on interdependence of, 173

Worker commodification: boomerang implications for leaders, 142; deconstruction of theories of production and effectiveness and, 141–143; neglects situational complexity, 142–143; workers are subject to leaders’ perceptions, 141–142

Worldviews: bridging differences between, 303; dominate systems, 40; grounded humanism, 298–299; influence on leadership outcomes by, 213; leadership theory delimited by, 11, 12t

Zombie theories, 140