Abernethy, D. B. (modern scholar), 56
Abydus (Greek city), 201, 206, 276, 277–8, 293 n. 84, 308
Acarnanian League (western Greece), allegedly asks Rome to mediate war with Aetolian League, 240s BC, 31; and breakup of Epirus, 34; alliance with Ardiaei (s.v.), 35; alliance with Macedon, 98, 104, 206; tries to stop Spartan alliance with Rome, 109–10; and Peace of Phoenice (s.v.), 113; execution of Acarnanians at Athens, 200 BC, 206–7; goes over to Antiochus III, 326
Achaean League (southern Greece), allied with Aetolian League against Ardiaei, 35, 37, 39; and Roman envoys, 229 and 228 BC, 41, 74; ally of Macedon, 61, 65, 88, 95; raided by Scerdilaidas and Demetrius of Pharos, 62, 65; victory over Sparta, 207 BC, 103 and n. 100; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; expansionism of, 136 n. 62, 284 n. 37, 288–9, 324, 348, 367; seeks to mediate war between Macedon and Rhodes, 200 BC, 201; treaty of alliance with Rome, 191 BC, 98–9, 287 n. 56, 332–3, 348; goes over to Rome 198 BC, 281, 285, 367; promised Corinth, 284 n. 37, 288–9, 292; war with Nabis of Sparta, 195 BC, 286; rescues Roman captives, 296; war with Nabis of Sparta, 192 BC, 323–4; ally in coalition against Antiochus III, 326, 329, 332; conquest of Sparta, 324, 348; conquest of Elis and Messene, 332–3, 348, 367; power increased, 333, 356, 362, 368; suppresses revolt of Messene, 348, 350, 351, 352, 380 n. 145; oppresses Sparta, 351, 378; Roman assertion of hierarchy over, 351–2, 360, cf. 380; Romans seek to moderate policies of, 348 and n. 23, 351–2, 360, 368, 380 n. 145; and Q. Marcius Philippus, 351, 352; and Eumenes II, 352 n. 41; alliance with Ptolemies, 359 and n. 68; continued hostility to Macedon, 362; political impact of Callicrates (s.v.), 369 and n. 104

M'. Acilius Glabrio (consul 191 bc), 329

Acrocorinth (fortress of Corinth), 291, 297, 333

Aegina (Greek polity), alleged Roman atrocities at, 109 and n. 123; and Aetolia, 109 and n. 123; sold to Attalus I, 109 and n. 123

Aegium (Achaean city), peace negotiations of 209 bc at, 95–6

P. Aelius Paetus (consul 201 bc), defeated by Gauls, 234; and Roman financial problems, 262 n. 106

Sex. Aelius Paetus (consul 198 bc), 280 and n. 25

M. Aemilius Lepidus, as alleged tutor regis of Ptolemy V, 205–6; envoy to Philip V and Antiochus III, 200 bc, 276; ultimatum to Philip V, 277–8, 290

L. Aemilius Paullus (consul 219 bc), 70

L. Aemilius Regillus (praetor 190 bc), accedes to Rhodians’ requests at Samos, 331; saved by Rhodians at Myonessus, 331

Aenus (Greek city in Thrace), Ptolemaic, seized by Philip V, 151, 164, 278 n. 16; economically important, 151 n. 130, 164, 321 n. 55, 345 n. 9; independent by Isthmian Declaration, 321; seized by Antiochus III, 321, 325; independent by Peace of Apamea (s.v.), 345 n. 9, 353; Philip seizes again, 345, 353; Pergamene claims on, 345, 353–4, 362 n. 80; freed by Rome again, 354 n. 45; back in Macedonian control by 171 bc, 354 n. 15

Aetolian League (northwest Greece), enemy of Macedon, 78 and n. 1, 88, 288; and alleged rejection of Roman mediation, 240s bc, 31; defeated by Ardiaei at Medion, 232 bc, 34; expansionism of, 34, 35, 40, 89, 288; allied with Achaea against Ardiaei, 35, 37, 39; gains Ambracia and Amphipolia, 39–40; Roman envoys to, 229 and 228 bc, 41, 74; and Social War of 220–217 bc, 61–2, 78, 98; raided by Demetrius of Pharos, 62, 65; hires Scerdilaidas (s.v.), 62, 65; treaty of alliance with Rome vs. Philip V, 211 bc, 48, 78, 82, 83, 90, 91; and mediation of 209 bc, 94–8; defeated by Philip, 206 bc, 104; separate peace, 104, 111, 112, 116, 123, 199, 211, 212, 236; and mediation of 207 bc, 107–10; and Aegina, 109 n. 123; hatred of Philip V over Cius, 191; alleged appeal to Rome (202 bc?), 211–17; refuses to join anti-Philip coalition, 212, 213, 214, 276, 278; joins war against Philip, 199 bc, 279, 285; and murder of Brachytes (s.v.), 284 n. 41; not in war with Nabis of Sparta, 195 bc, 286; dissatisfied with territorial gains under Isthmian Declaration, 288–9 and n. 61, 293, 297, 316, 320, 322, 337; as catalyst of war between Rome and Antiochus III, 320, 322–3, 325, 326, 327, 338, 346; attempt on Chalcis (s.v.), 323, 327; gains Demetrias (s.v.), 323, 327; attempted coup at Sparta, 324; invites Antiochus III to Aetolian League (cont’d)
Europe, 325, 327; loses war with Rome, 192–189 bc, 329, 334; treaty of peace, 334 and
nn. 103 and 104, 348 and
n. 20; left alone by Rome, 189–74 bc, 334, 348; key role at Cynoscephalae (s.v.), 349;
and Eumenes II, 354 n. 47 Agathocles (Ptolemaic prime minister), 144
Agelaus (Aetolian statesman), speech of, at Naupactus, 217 bc, 79–83, 117 ager publicus (Roman state-owned land), 261
Ager, S. (modern scholar), 98
Agron (king of the Ardiaei, 230s bc),
34, 35, 37, 40, 61 n. 140, 64,
72 n. 196
Alabanda (city in Caria), 166, 167 Alcaeus of Messene (poet, ca. 200 bc), and universal ambitions of Philip V, 81–2, 144–5, 282 n. 32; positive towards Flamininus (s.v.), 297; hostile to Antiochus III, 297
Alexander the Great, 21, 81, 82,
145, 337; model for Philip V,
149; model for Antiochus III,
179, 328; establishes League of Corinth, 286
Alexandria (capital of Egypt), 125,
140, 156, 157, 162, 164, 165,
173, 203; chaos in, 143, 144, 145, 146, 148, 149; goal of Philip V, 140, 142, 143, 144,
156, 157, 162, 164, 165, 173,
179, 197
Alexandria Troas (Greek town), appeals to Rome for protection, 312
Ambracia (Greek city), joins Aetolian League, 39–40, 42–3; alleged capture by Rome in 207 bc, 105, 106
amicitia (informal friendship between Rome and another state), with Ptolemies, 30, 200 and n. 7,
201, 202, 311; with Rhodes, 30, 332; with Seleucus II, 31; and philia, 43, 44, 45, 52, 55; with Teuta (s.v.), 43, cf. 82; amicitia et societas, 46–7; with Macedon after 196 bc, 49, 348; with Demetrios of Pharos, 47; with Parthini (s.v.) and Atintani
(s.v.), 53, 72; with Apollonia
(s.v.), 53; unstable, 57; with Syracuse, 57 n. 49; with Saguntum (s.v.), 63; with Dimallum (s.v.), 70, 72; with Pharos (s.v.), 47, 70; with Pinnes (s.v.), 70; with Ardiaei, 82; with Elis, 90, 122, 123; with Messene, 90, 122, 123, 236;
with Sparta, 90, 122, 123, 236;
with Pergamum, 90, 122, 123, 236; with Athens, 210; with Greek “friends” after 194 bc,
298, 300, 305, 335, 339, 349,
350; with Antiochus III, 311,
330, 348; with Eumenes II, 353 Amphilochia (region in western Greece), joins Aetolian League
c. 229 bc, 39–40, 42–3
Amyander (king of Athamania), 61 n. 140; ally of Aetolia, 62;
in-law of Scredilaidas (s.v.), 62;
mediator in First Macedonian War, 94, 95, 105, 115; ally of Philip V, 206 bc, 115; and Zacynthus (s.v.), 115; joins Rome against Philip V, 200 bc, 278 n. 17, 285, 326, cf. 276
n. 3; goes over to Antiochus III, 326, 334 n. 102; ambitions of,
326, 334 n. 102
Amyzon (Greek city in Caria), 154–5, 171
anarchy, Hellenistic, 3, 5, 8, 11–17, 19, 21, 27, 33, 34, 37, 38, 40, see also appeals by weak states to strong states; “functional differentiation” of states under hierarchy; “functional similarity” of states under anarchy; hierarchy of states

Andros (Greek polity), 196 n. 51, 278 n. 16

Annalists (Roman historical writers), and propaganda, 124, 212, 213, 251–2

Antigonus I the One-Eyed (king ca. 305 BC, ancestor of Philip V), 81, 150

Antigonus III (king in Macedon, ca. 225 BC), successes in Greece of, 62, 64, 78, 80, 81; ties to Demetrios of Pharos, 63–4; campaign of, in Caria, 81, 227; and Rhodes, 192; warned about Cleomenes III of Sparta, 250 n. 79; gains Corinth, 289

Antiochene or Syrian War (192–188 BC), Chapter 8, passim

Antiochus III (Seleucid ruler ca. 205 BC), expansionism of, 4, 22, 23, 24, 132, 139, 140, 143, 145, 152, 155, 179, 180, 183, 227, 229, 232, 244, 247, 252 and n. 75, 267, 302, 305, 306, 308, 312, 315, 338, 340; pact with Philip V against Ptolemies, 203/202 BC, 4, 7, 25, 118, and Chapter 4, passim; war with Rome-led coalition, and defeat, 26, 28, 49, 134, 274–5, 287, 308, 342, and Chapter 8, passim; conquests in Iran and Afghanistan, 125, 145, 314; attacks on Ptolemaic Coele Syria, Phoenicia, and Judaea from 202 BC, 125, 139, 141–50, 152, 170, 179, 227, 239, 267, 275, 309, 310; morally condemned by Polybius, 132, 134–5, 137, 138, 221, 268, 270 n. 127; murders his son, 137; revenge of Tyche (s.v.) on, 134–5, 137; intended division of Egypt with Philip V, 141–50; intended invasion of Egypt, 210 BC, 142; intended invasion of Egypt, 196 BC, 143, 309–10, 311; Ptolemaic fears of, 143; ambition for worldwide rule, 145, 224 and n. 157, 238, 306, 340; wears Cloak of Nebuchadnezzar, 145; takes title “the Great,” 145, 179, 314 and n. 26; and recovery of all Seleucid lands, 166; hegemony in Caria, 170; decentralized administration of, 172; and military cooperation with Philip V, 201 BC, 167, 168, 177–8, 184–5; no denial of pact with Philip, 177; takes title of “the Great King,” 179, 314 n. 26; Alexander as model for, 179, 328; possible war with Rhodes, 197 BC, 185–7; advances into Asia Minor, 186, 305, 310–11, 312, 338; modus vivendi with Rhodes, 187–95, 310; possible attack on Pergamum, 186 n. 14; and Roman embassy of 200 BC, 205, 206, 277, 307–10; failure to invade Egypt, 200 BC, Antiochus III (cont'd) 309–10, 311, 338; and the symphloke (s.v.), 225, 299 n. 119, 340; great power of, 240, 322, 328, 338; as possible sole hegemon over East, 218, 274, 340; and "freedom of the Greeks," 289, 322, cf. 300, 317;
sees Rome as threat, 291, 312;
crosses into Thrace, 301, 305,
311, 312, 318 and n. 40, 338;
Hannibal as his advisor, 301 and n. 128, 318 and n. 40, 321
n. 52, 338–9; ignores Roman warnings, 305; claims all of Asia Minor, 311; amicitia with Rome, 311, 338; “unstable bipolarity” with Rome, 311–27, 340, 341;
no concessions to Rome, 313,
no concessions to Ptolemy IV, 314, 315 n. 29; wide conquests in Thrace, 196–192 bc, 312,
313, 316, 317–18 and n. 42,
321, 322, 325, 338; and Roman withdrawal from Greece, 320–1;
and Aetolians, 322, 326; invades
Greece, 192 bc, 287, 325, 326–7, 338, 340, 341, 347;
hostility of Alcaeus (s.v.), 297;
wide gains in Greece, 325–6;
defeated at Thermopylae, 329;
defeated at Magnesia-ad-Sipylum, 329, 330, 332;
weakened by Peace of Apamea
(s.v.), 188 bc, 333–4

Antiochus IV (Seleucid ruler, ca.
170 bc), controversial, 132;
prevented by Rome and Tyche from seizing Egypt, 135, 137, 275, 309; aided by Pergamum to seize power, 354

Antisthenes (Rhodian writer), source for Polybius, 174; criticized by Polybius for bias and exaggeration, 174–6; and the Pact Between the Kings, 174–5

Aous River (Illyria), 53, 70, 72, 86;
peace conference at, 198 bc,
290 n. 70

Apollonia (Greek city in Illyria), contact with Rome, 260s bc, 30–1; expansionism of, 33 and
n. 17; appeals to Greeks for help against Ardiaei, 37 and n. 40, 39; in First Macedonian War,
48, 86; amicitia with Rome, 52–3; victim of Demetrius of Pharos, 60, 71; besieged by Philip V, 86; saved by Rome,
86; Roman base, 192 bc, 327

Apolonidas of Sicyon (Achaean statesman), on geopolitical situation in 180s bc, 359, 365 appeals by weak states to strong states, 37–8, 83, 86, 87, 219,

244–5, 246 and n. 51, 312,
320, 322, 326, 337, 351, 355, 368

appaeasement, 219, 220, 229, 268

Appian (historical writer), 55, 94, 103; errors in, 105, 106;
parallels to Polybius in, 105; on Athens and Rome, 113; on Pact
Between the Kings, 177, cf. 205

Aratus of Sicyon (Achaean statesman), enemy of Demetrius of Pharos, 59, 80; source for Polybius, 59, 80; opposes Philip V's turn to the west, 80;
opposes Philip’s betrayal of Messene, 80; allegedly poisoned by Philip, 148; hero to Polybius, 367; opposes pro-Macedonians
in Achaea ca. 220 bc, 367,
380 n. 143

Archat (Achaean statesman), ignores treaty of alliance with Rome, 170 bc, 98–9; policies and power of, 367, 369 and n. 104;
and Lycurgus (s.v.), 367

Ardiaei (Illyrian people), and First Illyrian War, 30–41;
extensionism of, 33, 35, 39,
43, 50, 51, 52, 53, 55, 57, 75; piracy of, 33–4, 35, 36, 40, 41, 52, 58, 59, 68; defeat Aetolians at Medion, 232 BC, 34, 63, 64; limited power of rulers of, 40 n. 41, 61 n. 140; and Demetrius II (s.v.), 63; amicitia with Rome, 82; attacked by Philip V, 216 BC, 82; territorial gains, 196 BC, 113; allied with Rome against Macedon, 200 BC, 229

Argos (Greek city), ally of Philip V, 148; Philip’s bad behavior at, 148; given by Philip to Sparta, 148, 285 n. 43

Aristaeus of Dyme (Achaean statesman), leads Achaea over Rome, 198 BC, 283–4, 295 n. 98; influence on Flamininus and “freedom of the Greeks,” 283, 289 n. 62, 290–1, 294; debate with Philopoemen (s.v.) on how to handle Rome, ca. 184 BC, 360–1, 376, 380 n. 146; and “honorable collaboration,” 367

Aron, R. (political scientist), 270

asymmetry of power (political science concept), natural, 375–6, 377; unstable, 376; not contradictory to sovereignty, 378–9 and n. 140, 380 and n. 149

see also hierarchy of states; influence

Athamania (region in western Greece), 61 n. 140, 62, 115, 276, 285

Athens, powerful in fifth century BC, 19–20, 38 n. 40, 48, 362; and appeal from Corcyra, 433 BC, 38 n. 40, 244; Roman embassy to, 228 BC, 41, 74, 210; and truce with Sparta, 424 BC, 48; mediator in First Macedonian War, 77, 94, 100 n. 89, 206, 207 n. 93, 210, 228, 248 n. 62; alleged adscriptus to Peace of Phoence, 113–14, 210–11, 248 n. 62; neutral post-229 BC, 206; and Ptolemies, 206, 207; liberation of, by Antigonids, 307 BC, 207; and tribes honoring them, 207–8; revolts from Macedon 289/288 and 229 BC, 207; and Chremonidean War (s.v.), 207; Ionians ask for aid against Persians, 494 BC, 244; and oppression of Potidaea, 433/432 BC, 244, 316 n. 36; execution of Acarnanians, 201 BC, 206–7, 208, 209, 210; Macedonian attacks on, 201 and 200 BC, 113 n. 145, 114, 201, 207, 209, 276; and the Pact Between the Kings, 183, 209, 220, 227; asks Rome for help, 206, 209–10, 220, 229, 230, 239, 245, 283 n. 35, 285; liberation of, by Antigonids, 307 BC, 207; tribes honoring Antigonids abolished, 207–8, 239; tribe honoring Ptolemies placed first, 201 BC, 207–8, 209, 210; and tribe honoring Antigons placed first, 198 BC, 201, 207; and Roman envoys of 200 BC, 276; urges Aetolians to join vs. Philip, 283; sides with Rome against Antiochus III, 326

A. Atilius Serranus (praetor 192 BC), 328

Atintani (Illyrian people), 35 n. 35, 52, 53, 60, 71; amicitia with Rome, 72; seized by Philip V, 87, 97; conceded by Rome to Philip, 99 n. 85, 112, 113

Atrax (town in Thessaly), Romans defeated at, 198 BC, 281, cf. 304

Attalus I (king of Pergamum), 79, 82; joins anti-Macedonian alliance, 210 BC, 89, 95, 195, 196 n. 52, 248; defeated by Philip V, 100, 101, 103, 114, Attalus I (cont’d)
122, 248; good relations with Aetolia, 103 and n. 98, 197; buys Aegina, 109 n. 123, 195; adscriptus to Peace of Phoenice, 113; helps Rome obtain Great Mother, 122–3, 248–9, 250; joins Rhodes in war vs. Philip V, 201 bc, 164, 173, 195, 196, 197–8, 200–1, 238–9; bad relations with Rhodes pre-201 bc, 164, 195, 197; almost killed at battle of Lade, 196; and Antigonus III, 196, 197; enmity with Prusias I (s.v.), 196; and Pact Between the Kings, 197–8, 200, 227, 238; failure at Abydus (s.v.), 201; honored with new tribe at Athens, 200 bc, 207; attempts to gain Aetolia as ally, 214, 217, 278 n. 17; asks Rome for help, 220, 238, 248–9, 250, cf. 277; honored in Achaea, 294 n. 91; death of, and changed balance of power in Asia Minor, 310

Attalus, brother of Eumenes II, warns Rome about Antiochus III, 321–2 and n. 59; courage in battle, 332

augurs (Roman priests), and honesty of the lottery for provinces at Rome, 255–6, 280 and n. 25

Aulon (Greek town in Illyria), 53 authority of strong states under anarchy, 56, 72, 75, 336 and n. 109, 352, 359; based on military might, 365, 378

see also hierarchy of states; influence

Badian, E. (modern scholar), 43, 58, 66, 69 n. 181, 71, 85, 130, 211, 212, 213, 315; and clientela (s.v.), 43, 44 n. 64, 45, 69 n. 181

Cn. Baebius (aedile, 200 bc), 216, 257–8, 269; and Plautus’ play Stichus, 216, 257, 269

L. Baebius (officer of Scipio Africanus), 258, 259

M. Baebius Tamphilus (consul 181 bc), 257, 327, 328

Q. Baebius (tribune, 200 bc), opposes Roman intervention in East, 216, 253, 255–6, 257, 269; influential family, 257–8, 259; alleged tie to Scipio Africanus, 258–9

Q. Baebius Tamphilus, diplomatic missions of, 257 balance of power (political science concept), in general, 25, 56, 197, 313; in western Mediterranean, 62–3, 235; in Illyria, 67, 68; in Greek East, 80, 117, 124, 125, 141, 142, 174, 178, 190, 193, 199, 200, 209, 218, 227, 240, 355 and n. 54, 381 and n. 149; instability of, 240, 315, 316 n. 33; Philip V vs. Antiochus III, 149; in Asia Minor after 213 bc, 195; after 197 bc, 310–11; after 188 bc, 333 n. 100; in Aegean, 203; and alleged limited aims of states, 205; “getting the better of the balance,” 313, 314; Rome vs. Antiochus III, 315, 316 n. 33; unstable, 315, 316 n. 33; Rome as “offshore” balancer, 363–4 balance of threat (political science concept), and formation of alliances, 218, 220, 283 n. 35, 363 n. 83

balancing against preponderance (political science concept), instinctive, 218–20, 229, 268, 307, 356, 370; failure to balance against US, 357; “internal balancing,” 358–9; failure to balance Rome among Greek states after 188 BC, 361–72

see also counterbalancing

“bandwagoning” with great powers (political science concept), 23, 219 and n. 144, 220, 229, 268; cf. “jackal-bandwagoning,” 23

Bargylia (Greek city in Caria),

Ptolemaic, seized by Philip V, 201 BC, 156, 161, 162, 163, 164, 167; friendly with Cnidus (s.v.), 162; Philip blockaded in, 162, 200–1; and Seleucids, 198; and Isthmian Declaration, 293 n. 84

Bargylia Inscription, and Pact Between the Kings, 156, 167, 177, 178 and n. 240, 179, 184–5, 189, 200; Rhodian document, 177, 184–5; and Rhodian-Pergamene alliance, 198 n. 58

Bengtson, H. (modern scholar), 171

Berthold, R. M. (modern scholar), 109, 152, 170, 199

Boeotian League (central Greece), and Philip V, 113; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; goes over to Rome, 197 BC, 284, 285; goes over to Antiochus III, 192 BC, 325

Bracchyles (Boeotian statesman), murdered, 284 and n. 41, 295 n. 94

Briscoe, J. (modern scholar), 165

Brundisium (Roman city), and eastern trade, 33, 35; Roman naval base, 83, 85

Bruttium (south Italy), 263

Burselis, K. (modern scholar), 235, 262

Burton, P. (modern scholar), 123

Bush, G. W. (US President), mistakes of, 357 and n. 60, cf. 361 n. 77

Buzan, B. (political scientist), 270

Byllis and Amantia (Illyrian towns), and Rome, 53

Byzantium (Greek city), mediator in First Macedonian War, 107, 108; war with Rhodes, 220 BC, 190, 195

Callicrates of Leontium (Achaean statesman), urges more Roman intervention in Greek affairs, 180 BC, 364 n. 87, 367–9, 380; harsh criticism of, by Polybius, 367–9, 380; political power in Achaea in 170s, 369; moderates Achaean policy towards Sparta and Messene, 369; and exile of Polybius, 369 n. 104; Polybius’ bias against, 369 n. 104

Calymnos (Aegean polity), union with Cos ca. 205 BC, 157–8 and n. 159; attacked by Philip V, 201 BC, 158–9, 161, 179; reintegration with Cos, ca. 200 BC, 158; ally of Ptolemies, 163, cf. 156, 158

Cannae (Roman defeat, 216 BC), 83, 240, 296

Capua (Italian city), impact of Roman victory at, 212 BC, 88; Hannibal’s harsh rule at, 202; Teanum asks help of, 245; asks Rome for help, 245; defection to Hannibal, 266 n. 119

Caria (region in southwest Asia Minor), 81, 163, 164, 165, 167, 170

Carthage, militarism of, 16, 232, cf. 236, 252; hegemony in western Sicily, 35, 245; looming war
Carthage, militarism of (cont’d) with Rome, 219 BC, 62, 315 n. 26; attempted coordination with Macedon in Hannibalic War, 92, 99–100, 101; and the Ptolemies, 201; defeat in First Punic War, 224; defeat in Hannibalic War, 224, 235, cf. 242; ceases to be a great power, 235; and creation of Roman provinces in West, 372
Carystus (Greek city), sacked by Romans, 281
Cassander (Macedonian dynast, ca. 300 BC), 64, 150, 207
Cato the Elder, see M. Porcius Cato (consul 195 BC)
Caunus (city in Caria), Ptolemaic, 163; and Philip V, 163, 164; seized by Rhodes, 188 n. 21
Celts of Asia Minor, war with Eumenes II, 180s BC (s.v.), 353
Celts (Gauls) of the Po Valley, threat to Rome in 230s and 220s BC, 38, 39, 58–9; invasion of Italy, 225 BC, 39, 42, 59, 67, 73, 273 and n. 13; unrest ca. 219 BC, 62; unrest ca. 201 BC, 121, 234–5, 262, 263, 268, 269; savagery of, 132; defeat P. Aelius Paetus (s.v.), 234; attack Roman colonies, 200 BC, 234; defeat Cn. Baebius (s.v.), 257–8, hold off Scipio Africanus, 194 BC, 259; brought under Roman control, 190 BC, 347
Cephallenia (Greek island-state), attacked by Philip V and Scerdilaidas (s.v.), 72, 73
Cephalus (Epirote statesman, 170s BC), seeks to avoid hegemony of either Rome or Macedon, 370; praised by Polybius, 370
Cephisodorus (Athenian diplomat), 209–10
Chalcedon (Greek city), seized by Philip V in violation of Aetolian peace of 206 BC, 148, 215
Chalcis (Greek city), Macedonian stronghold, 95, 278 n. 16, 323; freed by Isthmian Declaration, 228, 323; Roman garrison in, 196–194 BC, 291, 297; Aetolian attempt on, 192 BC, 323; surrenders to Antiochus III, 325
Chaonophres, and Egyptian revolt against Ptolemies, 124–5, 142; as Pharaoh, 124, 142, 144
Chariteles (Achaean politician), murdered by Philip V, 284 n. 41
Chios (Aegean polity), mediator in First Macedonian War, 77, 94, 105, 107, 108, 152; mediator in Social War, 98, 100 n. 89, 105, 162; attacked by Philip V, 201 BC, 152, 161, 162, 163, 213; ties to Ptolemies, 162; naval battle at, 201 BC, 164
Chremonidean War (260s BC), 207, cf. 190
Christensen, T. (political scientist), 227 and n. 168
Chyretiae (Greek town), interference in, by Flamininus (s.v.), 293 n. 86, cf. 294 n. 88
Cius (Greek city), populace enslaved by Philip V, 202 BC, 148, 191, 208–9, 215; reaction of Rhodes, Aetolia, Athens, 191–2, 208–9, 294; freed by Isthmian Declaration, 293, 294
Claudius (emperor), and Roman–Seleucid relations, 31 n. 6
Ap. Claudius Caudex (consul 264 BC), 242 n. 41
M. Claudius Marcellus (consul 222 BC), dedications in Greece, 42
M. Claudius Marcellus (consul 196 BC), fails to persuade Roman populace to continue war against Macedon, 260, 269

C. Claudius Nero (consul 207 BC), victor at battle of the Metaurus (s.v.), 276; envoy to Philip V and Antiochus III, 276

Cleomenes III (king of Sparta), defeated by Antigonus III, 59, cf. 250 n. 69; attempted coup at Alexandria, 220 BC, 142

“client states” (and clientelae), in Illyria, 43, 44 and n. 64, 51, 300–1, 305, 323, 330, 333, 334 n. 102, 345, 353

Cnidus (Aegean city), attacked by Philip V, 201 BC, 161–2, 163; ties with Ptolemies, 162; ties with Bargylia, 162, friend and ally of Cos, 162

Coele Syria, conquest by Antiochus III, 202–200 BC, 145, 149, 179, 309, 338; in dispute between Antiochus and Egypt, 219/218 BC, 314

“cognitive closure” (political science concept), 23 n. 65, 264 and n. 112

Cold War (1947–91), 315, 316 n. 33, cf. 22, 126 n. 22, 184, 235 n. 20, 357, 377

“compellence diplomacy” (political science concept), definition of, 12, 13, 14; widespread, 14–15, 40, 184, 242, 252 n. 77, 277–8, 290, 314 n. 26, 316 n. 36; at Rome, 14, 40, 69

see also rerum repetitio competition, interstate, ferocity of, 8–9, 15, 17, 20, 57, 75, 91, 246, 256, 265, 299, 300, 302, 303, 304, 314, 338, 342, 353, 357, 358, 362 contested periphery (political science concept), definition of, 312, 338; between Rome and Antiochus III, 31, 315, 338; war-prone situation, 312, 315 and n. 31

“control,” Roman, in Illyria, 46, 53, 55, 56 n. 119, 57, 58, 71; in interstate relations in general, 55, 90, 247; desire for, 264, 268; of Rome, in Spain, 285; of Rome, in Greece, 292–8, 341, 350 and n. 30, 355, 359–60 (contrasted with deference), 375 and nn. 124 and 126, 370, 380; intensities of, 349 and n. 26, 373–4, 375; and empire, 372–4; of external policies, 373–4, 379, 380; of internal policies, 373–4, 379

Coppola, A. (modern scholar), 64, 65, 67

Corcyra (Greek Adriatic polity), 33; captured by Ardiaei, 35; appeals for help to Greeks, 37 and n. 40, 39, 50; appeals for help vs. Corinth, 433 BC, 38 n. 43, 244; and Demetrius of Pharos, 41; amicitia with Rome, 71, 75 n. 207, cf. 52; fears Ardiaei, 71; possible attack by Philip V, 86; threatened by Punic fleet, 209 BC, 99

Corinth (Greek city), threatens Corcyra, 433 BC, 38 n. 43, 244; and truce with Athens, 424 BC, 48; asked for help by Potidaea, 244; asks Sparta for aid against Athens, 244; Macedonian control of, 284 n. 37, 289; given to Achaea by Isthmian Declaration, 284 n. 37, 288–9, 292, 333

L. Cornelius Scipio (consul 190 BC), and war against Antiochus III, 329

P. Cornelius Scipio (consul 205 BC), “Scipio Africanus,” defeats Hannibal at Zama, 224 n. 156, 258, cf. 249; envy of, at Rome,
P. Cornelius Scipio (cont’d)
264, cf. 256; alleged opposition to Roman intervention in East, 200 BC, 258–9, cf. 235; alleged ties to Baebii (s.v.), 258–9; opposes Roman withdrawal from Greece, 194 BC, 259, 299, 301, 315–16, 339; unsuccessful against Celts, 194 BC, 259; and Roman financial problems, 262 n. 106; in war against Antiochus III, 329, 330

Cos (Greek island-state), expansionism of, 16, 158 and n. 161; ties to Miletus, 155 n. 150; legal ally of Ptolemies, 156–7, 158, 163; in war with Crete, 157, 158; with Rhodes, in war with Crete, 157, 158, cf. 190; with Rhodes against Philip V, 157 and n. 158; a democracy, 158; union with Calymnos (s.v.), 157–8; under attack, 201 BC, 158–9, 161, 179; ties with Cnidus, 162 counterbalancing (political science concept), against a preponderant power, difficulties of, 361–2, 366; Greek habit of, 362–3; vs. Athens, 362; vs. Sparta, 362; vs. Macedon, 362–3; vs. Antiochus III, 363; lack of, regarding Rome, 361–5, 377, 380–1; and geographical proximity of dominant power, 363 and n. 84, 364–5; and self-restraint of dominant power, 364, 365, 366 and n. 97; and absence of peer competitor (s.v.), 364, 380–1; risks of, 366 and n. 97

Crete, secret pact with Philip V against Rhodes, 148; war with Rhodes, 157, 158 n. 159

Cynoscephalae, battle of, 197 BC, Roman victory over Philip V, 170, 187, 188, 189, 193, 282, 283, 286, 288, 289 n. 62, 291, 296, 304, 306; impact on Rhodes and Antiochus III, 187–8, 189, 193, 310; major Aetolian role in, 344

Damocritus (Aetolian statesman), insults Rome, 192 BC, 323 dangers of appearing (or being) weak, in Hellenistic anarchy, 32–8, 61–2, 79, 314–15

Dardanians (Illyrian people), periodic invasions of Macedon, 34, 35 n. 27, 100; with Rome vs. Philip V, 200 BC, 278, 279

Dassareti (Illyrian people), strategic location of, 53, left neutral by Rome, 228 BC, 53; left neutral by Rome, 219 BC, 70, 72; seized by Philip V, 83; possibly conceded by Rome to Philip V, 205 BC, 99 n. 85, 112, 113
deditio (absolute surrender to Rome), of Pharos, 50 n. 88; of Adriatic cities, 55; formal requirements for, 245 n. 48

Dell, H. J. (modern scholar), 68

Delphi (oracle), alleged early Roman contacts with, 31; Roman dedication at, for victory over Celts, 42; Roman envoys at, 205 BC, 122; conflict with Amphissa, 352 n. 41

Demetrias (Greek city), Macedonian stronghold, 49 n. 84, 291, 323; freed by Isthmian Declaration, 288, 323; Roman garrison in, 196–194 BC, 291, 297; Antiochus III lands at, 192 BC, 306, 325, 327; joins Aetolian League, 323, 325; and P. Villius (s.v.), 323; given to Philip V, 188 BC, 362 n. 79

Demetrius I the Besieger (Macedonian king, ca. 290 BC), vast ambitions of, 81; coalition of kings against, 150; ancestor of Philip V, 150; loses Macedon, 150; besieges Rhodes, 192; liberates Athens from Cassander (s.v.), 207; revolt of Athens against, 207
Demetrius II (king in Macedon ca. 235 bc), and the Ardiaei, 63, 64
Demetrius, son of Philip V, executed, 137
Demetrius of Phalerum (writer, ca. 300 bc), on Tyche (s.v.), 223–4
Demetrius of Pharos (Greek warlord), governor of Corcyra for Teuta, goes over to Rome, 229 bc, 41; given principality by Rome, 45, 47, 52, 58; amicitia with Rome, 47; lord of Pharos, 47; aggressions of, 55, 56, 57, 58–61, 67, 68, 87; as competitor of Rome in Illyria, 57, 75; marries Triteuta, 58; as regent of Ardiaei, 58, 61, 75; at battle of Sellasia (s.v.), 59, 63, 65; alleged recklessness, 59–60, 265 n. 119; and Messene, 60; raids Aegean, 220 bc, 61; “ingratitude” towards Rome, 62, 69; and Macedon, 62, 63–6; and Philip V, 65, 66, 70; urges Philip to turn west against Rome, 78–9; demanded from Philip by Rome, 82; strategic misperceptions of, 265 n. 119
Demosthenes (ca. 340 bc), on ferocity of interstate competition, 302 Derow, P. S. (modern scholar), 45, 47, 61 n. 143, 67 n. 160, 154, 232, 293, 335, 356 de Sanctis, G. (modern scholar), 247 Dicaearchus (agent of Philip V), 144, 148, cf. 193 dicio populi Romani (under command of Rome), and Illyrian cities, 48, 49, 50, 51; and former subjects of Philip V, 291
Dimallum (Illyrian town), 54 n. 104, 60, 69, 70, 71, 112
Diodorus son of Dioscurides, hero of revolt of Samos against Philip V, 152–3 Diophanes (Achaean statesman), and Achaean conquest of Elis and Messene, 191/190 bc, 333 diplomacy, ancient, primitive character of, 12–15, 22, 184, 242, 277–8, 307, 314 n. 26, 315 and n. 29, 316 n. 33 “dominion” (political science concept), definition of, 374; vs. empire (s.v.), 374; vs. sphere of influence (s.v.), 374; instability of, 376; and Rome in the East, 379
Donnelly, J. (political scientist), and interstate hierarchy, 373, 374, 378
Doyle, M. (political scientist), and “informal empire,” 373–4, 376, 377, 379
Egyptian rebellion against Ptolemies, 24, 124–5, 131, 142, 149, 203, 267, 309–10
Elateia (Greek city), 100, 281
Elis (Greek polity), enemy of Macedon, 88; joins anti-Philip alliance, ca. 210 bc, 88, 93; amicitia with Rome, 90, 122, 123; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; goes over to Antiochus III, 192/191 bc, 325–6; conquered by Achaean League, 332 empire, 8, 27, 46, 195, 275, 336, 342, 343, 376, 377, cf. 368 and n. 101; vs. unipolarity (s.v.), 349, 357; vs. deference, 359–60; legal definition of, 372, 375 n. 125; pragmatic definition of, 372–4 “empire by invitation” (political science concept), 291 n. 141, 246 and n. 53; and NATO, 246 n. 53; and Syracuse (s.v.), 246 n. 53; and Aetolian League, 326 n. 74

Ephesus (Greek city), 190 n. 30; base for Antiochus III, 318 n. 40, 329, 338

Epidamnus (Adriatic city), conquers indigenous people, 33; besieged by Ardiaei, 35; appeals for help, 37 and n. 40, 39; no treaty with Rome, 46, 52; and Demetrius of Pharos, 71

Epirus (Greek polity), collapse of, 233 BC, 34, 37; allied with Ardiaei, 35; appeals for help vs. Ardiaei, 37; member of Macedon’s Hellenic Symmachy ca. 220 BC, 88; mediator of Peace of Phoenice, 205 BC, 112, 115; adscriptus to Peace of Phoenice, 113; pro-Macedonian in 200 BC, 114, cf. 276; spared by Flamininus, 198 BC, 281

Eretria (Greek city), Macedonian stronghold, 250; P. Galba (s.v.), urges claims on by Pergamum 250, cf. 291; sacked by Romans, 281; freed from Macedon (and Pergamum) by Isthmian Declaration, 288, 291 and n. 76

Errington, R. M. (modern scholar), 31, 67, 129, 130, 131, 169, 170, 172, 173, 174, 175

“established expectation level” (political science concept), in diplomacy, 313 and n 23; Rome, with Antiochus III, 313, 314; Antiochus III, with Rome, 313, 314

Euboea (large Greek island), claimed by Pergamum, 196 n. 51, 250; Flamininus’ interference in cities on, 293, 294–5; Philip V’s interference in cities on, 295

Eudamas (Rhodian admiral), and victory at Myonessus, 190 BC, 331

Eumenes II (King of Pergamum), son of Attalus I, 310; dangers to, 310, 320; as catalyst of war between Rome and Antiochus III, 319–20; crucial cavalry charge at Magnesia (s.v.), 189 BC, 329, 330, 332, 344, cf. 354; influence on Rome, 331, 344 n. 6, 345; victor Cissus, 332; and grant to Tyriaion, 336 n. 109; and Aenus and Maronea, 345, 353–4; relations with Rhodes, 354; relations with Achaean League, 352 n. 41; victor in war vs. Prusias I, 353, 354; victor in war vs. Pharnaces I, 353, 379; victor in war vs. Celts, 353, 354; and Altar of Zeus, 354; and Athena-Bringer-of-Victory, 354, cf. 332; helps Antiochus IV to Seleucid throne, 354; as catalyst of Third Macedonian War, 365

Euromus (city in Caria), seized by Philip V, 170; treaty with Zeuxis (s.v.), 170, 172, 173; and with Antiochus III, 171, 188 and n. 22; Rhodian claims, 170–1; and Antigonus III, 227 BC, 192 n. 36; and Isthmian Declaration, 293 n. 84 expansionism, Achaean, 136 n. 62, 284 n. 37, 288–9, 324, 332, 333, 348, 367; Athamanian, 326; Carthaginian, 232, 252, cf. 236; Hellenistic in general, 9, 16, 142, 181, 229, 240, 256, 265, 277, cf. 237 (“the imperialism of routine”); Macedonian: see Philip V; of small ancient states, 9, 15 and n. 45, 57 n. 125, 237, 326; Pergamene, 195, 196 and n. 51, 354, cf. 229, 232; Rhodian, First Punic War (264–241 BC), 190, 202, impact of, 224

Flamininus, see T. Quinctius Flamininus

fragility of ancient states, 11–12, 24, cf. 34

“freedom of the Greeks” (political concept), at end of Second Macedonian War (s.v.), 283–302, 305, cf. 108; as modus vivendi between large and small Hellenistic states, 289; used by Rhodes, 170–1, 185, 188 and n. 21; used by Antiochus III, 290, 322; development at Rome, 290–1; and Greek cities of Asia, 290, 312; and Flamininus, 289, 291, 294–7, 315, 317; and Roman “control” of Greece, 292–8, 324, 350 n. 30

M. Fulvius Nobilior (consul 189 BC), and defeat of Aetolian League, 334

“functional differentiation” of states under hierarchy (political science concept), 342–3, 351, 353

“functional similarity” of states under anarchy (political science concept), 323 and n. 7, 243, 342

L. Furius Purpureo (Roman envoy, 199 BC), and Aetolians, 202, 213

Gaza, besieged by Antiochus III, 179, 271

Gelo (tyrant of Syracuse, 480 BC), and Greek appeal for help against Persia, 244, 246 n. 53

Gilpin, R. (political scientist), 270

Grainger, J. D. (modern scholar), 239, 309, 321, 324–5

Great Mother of Pessinus (goddess), Attalus I (s.v.) helps Rome to obtain, 122–3, 248–9; Roman gratitude, 249

Q. Fabius Pictor (Roman historical writer), 41, 59 and n. 132, 63

Ferrary, J.-L. (modern scholar), 45, 48, 49, 50, 286, 287, 291

fides (good faith), 43, 51, 52, 105, 323; and Second Macedonian War, 250–1; and Roman withdrawal from Greece, 194 BC, 299

Fifth Syrian War (202–199 BC), 179 n. 242, 309 n. 3

First Illyrian War (229–228 BC), 5, 30–41, 236, 285; impact of, 5, 32, 41–58, 285

First Macedonian War (214–205 BC), 5–6, 77, 162, 193, 199, 211, 236, and Chapter 3, passim; called “Aetolian War,” 77, 92, 102, 203; limited Roman goals in, 77, 89–90, 92, 93, 104–5, 106, 107, 115, 116, 117, 199, 203, 236, 285; causes of, 78–86; Roman financial debt from, 261; Philip V’s good military performance in, 282 n. 32, 309
Greek embassies of 201/200 BC to Rome, 77, 82, 92, 117, 123 n. 11, 197–8, 199, 205, 213, 217, 220–6, 229, 240, 302, 307, 365, and Chapter 6, passim; and Pact Between the Kings, 174, 175, 176, 201, 238, 239, 304–7, 308, and Chapter 6, passim; as catalyst for Roman decision of 200 BC to intervene in East, 225 n. 163, 226, 227, 232–3, 241, 250 n. 69, 260–1, 266–7, 274, 302, 306, 337; and the symploke (s.v.), 263, 270, 307, cf. 352

Griffith, G. T. (modern scholar), 200, 239, 262

Gruen, E. S. (modern scholar), 5, 68, 72, 83, 122–3, 214, 311

Habicht, C. (modern scholar), 130

Halicarnassus (city in Caria), Ptolemaic in 201 BC, 156 n. 151; bypassed by Philip V, 163, 164; seized by Rhodes, 188 n. 21

Hammond, N. G. L. (modern scholar), 45, 71, 73

Hannibal, invasion of Italy, 218–203 BC, 20, 72, 81, 83, 91, 99, 109, 115, 121, 122, 123, 215, 240–1, 244, 248–9, 254, 304; rejects Roman demands and attacks Saguntum (s.v.), 63, 68, 69, 257; Roman victory over, 124, 132, 133, 224 n. 156, 233, 342; harsh rule of, in Capua, 202; and Polybius, 208 n. 99; boasts of destruction in Italy, 233; alliance with Philip V, 52, 54, 82, 83–4, 98, 107, 112 and n. 138, 336; and support in Bruttium and Apulia, 263; advisor to Antiochus III, 301 and n. 128, 318 and n. 40, 321 n. 53, 328, 338–9; defeated by Rhodians at Side, 190 BC, 331

Haronnphris, and Egyptian revolt against Ptolemies, 124–5, 142; as Pharaoh, 124, 142, 144

Harris, W. V. (modern scholar), 4–5, 36–7, 38, 46, 67, 130, 231, 254, 292

Hasdrubal (brother of Hannibal), invasion of Italy, 207 BC, 103, 105 n. 105; defeated at the Metaurus, 107, 276

“hegemonic war” (political science concept), definition of, 20–1, 182, 336–7; and power-transition crisis (s.v.), 20, 21, 22, 126, 128, 182, 184, 227, 273, 275; and wars of 202–188 BC, 25, 28, 182, 184, 227, 235–6, 275, 302, 305, 307, 315–16, 328, 329, 341, 380; and Antiochene War (s.v.) as, 306–7, and Chapter 8, passim

Hegemony, 8, 25, 26, 380 n. 143; of Rome in Illyria, 42–3, 45, 58, 74; of Carthage in Sicily, 55; of Macedon in Greece, 78, 286, 289; of Rome, over the Greek East, 131, 135, 180, 218, 291 and n. 81, 348 n. 23, 363; of Ptolemies, in southern Aegean ca. 200 BC, 140; of Macedon, possibly, over Egypt, 144; of Ptolemies at Amyzon (s.v.), 154, 159; of Seleucids at Amyzon, 154; of Rhodes in southern Aegean after 200 BC, 163; of Antiochus III in Caria, 170, 188; of Rhodes in Caria, 170, 188; of Macedon in Caria, 196; of Philip V and/or Antiochus III over the Greek East, 218, 274, 363; of Rome in Italy, 284; and Isthmian Declaration, 346; and Doyle’s definition of, 374, 376

Hellenic Symmachy (alliance-system of Antigonid Macedon), 61, 63, 65, 78, 88, 286 and n. 50, 287, 346; as possible model for Rome in Greece, 286–7, 346 and n. 13
Heraclea (town in central Greece), 100, 101
Heraclea-by-Latmus (Greek city in Caria), ties to Ptolemies, 154, 159; falls to Philip V, 159–61, 163, 179; accommodation with Antiochus, 159, 161, 171, 173, 188 and n. 22; ally of Miletus against Magnesia, late 180s BC, 161
Heracleides (admiral of Philip V), 153
Herodotus (historical writer), 38; and appeals of weak to the strong, 244 hierarchy of states (political science concept), 3; and multipolarity (s.v.), 8, 342; and Rome and the East after 188 BC, 3, 27, 128, 275, 342–3, 351, 352–3, 359, 380, 381, and Chapter 9, passim; and Rome in Italy, 29; and Rome in Illyria, 43; of strong states in interstate systems, 56, 128, 182; in Hellenistic system, 179, 181, 182; uncertainty of, 190s BC, 315; vs. anarchy, 342; coexistence with libertas (s.v.), 300–1, 355, 356, 359, 360, 361 n. 75, 372 n. 110; vs. empire, 373–4, 377–8; and ambiguity of power relations, 374; and asymmetry of power (s.v.), 375, 376, 377
Hieron II (King of Syracuse, ca. 230 BC), aid to Rome in Illyria, 33–4; friendly to Rome, 202; praised by Polybius for seeking to preserve independence, 371 n. 107
Hieronymus (King of Syracuse, 214 BC), 202 and n. 73
Histri (Adriatic people), Roman war against, 221 BC, 67, 68, 69
Holleaux, M. (modern scholar), 4, 5, 6–7, 92, 109, 114, 129, 139, 140, 151, 154, 155, 159, 211, 216 “honor” as motive of state conduct, 220, 229, 246, 287 n. 62, 297, 314, 315 n. 26, 352 n. 41, 360–1, 367 human decision-making as crucial (vs. structural factors), in crises, 22–3, 126, 184, 247, 268, 303; in Polybius, 225–6, 326, 376; as crucial in success of unipolarity, 357 n. 60; and tendency towards empire, 376
Iasus (Greek town), threatened by Olympichus (s.v.), 155 n. 149; and Antigonus III, 227 BC, 192 n. 36; freed by Isthmian Declaration, 243 n. 84; in Antiochene War, 331
Ilium (Greek town), 31 n. 6; alleged adscriptus to Peace of Phoenice, 113–14
Illyrians, 33, 34, 35, 36
see also Ardiaei
“imperialism,” see expansionism imperium (legal right to command), 372 influence (“sway”), vs. control (“rule”), 349 and n. 26, 350 and n. 30, 373, 374, 375, 377, 378 and n. 159, 379 see also asymmetry of power “informal empire” (political science concept), definition of, 373–4; criticism of, 373; contrasted to hierarchy (s.v.), 374 internal characteristics of states, and readiness for war, 10 and n. 22, 23, 67, 124, 126, 228–9, 231, 242, 247, 264, 265, 303, 315, 327; and pressures of anarchy, 229, 232, 242, 246, 248, 264, 265, 268, 303, 327 international law, absence of, 7–8, 11, 38, 127, 246, 349 and n. 24, 350 n. 30; and multipolarity, 8 Isocrates (Greek writer, ca. 380 bc), 64
isologia (right to speak as an equal), and Rome, 356, 368, 381
Issa (Adriatic state), and First Illyrian War, 36, 37 n. 38, 52; dependencies of, 56; after Second Illyrian War, 75 and n. 201
Isthmian Declaration, 196 bc, and Iasus, 243 n. 84, and “freedom of the Greeks,” 289, 291, 292–8, 305, 306, 337, 339; and alleged Roman “rule” in Greece, 292–8, 324; and cities in Asia Minor, 293; Greek influence on, 294; alleged Greek enthusiasm for, 295–6, 307; and Polybius, 295; and Livy, 295 n. 97; political weakness of, 298–300, 346; and Roman avoidance of entanglements in East, 299, 305; Antiochus III’s view of, 300; and Flamininus, 289, 291, 294, 295, 296–7, 305, 317, 339; a Roman strategic mistake, 316; and Aenus and Maronea, 321; and Demetrias, 323; system fails, 324–5, 339, 341, 346; and post-188 bc situation, 335
Judaea, Ptolemaic province, 249; conquered by Antiochus III, 149, 179, 309, 314, 338
Justin (historical writer, second century AD), on Pact Between the Kings, 177; epitome of historian Pompeius Trogus, 205; on the Ptolemaic embassy to Rome, 201 bc, 205–6; on M. Aemilius Lepidus (s.v.) as tutor regis for Ptolemy V, 205–6; on failure of Isthmian Declaration because of Roman withdrawal from Greece, 324
Lade, battle of, 201 bc, naval victory of Philip V, 157, 158, 159 n. 163, 160, 164, 173, 196, 200
Lake Trasimene, battle of, 217 bc, impact of defeat of Rome at, 78, 79
Lampela, A. (modern scholar), 203
Lampsacus (Greek city in Asia Minor), and Rome, 297, 312
Larissa (Greek city), and Flamininus (s.v.), 296
Larson, J. A. O. (modern scholar), 286, 298
League of Corinth (330s bc), and Macedonian hegemony in Greece, 286 Lebow, R. N. (political scientist), 238 legal independence of subordinated states, 56 and n. 114 libertas (interstate), 51 n. 90, 284 and n. 37, 300–1, 355; and Roman preponderance, 365–72, 380–1; and isologia, 356, 368, 381
Ligurians (people of northwest Italy), wars with Rome in 180s and 170s bc, 347
Lilybaeum (Sicilian city), and Roman oppression, 50; as Roman base, 83
Lissus (Illyrian coastal town), seized by Philip V, 212 BC, 87, cf. 99, 112 and n. 139
Lissus River, as boundary to the Ardiaei after 228 BC, 52, 61, 68, 72–3
Livy (Roman historical writer), uses Polybius for the East, 93, 212; interest in Greek affairs sporadic, 93; on peace talks of 208 BC, 102; on Roman motives for intervention in the East in 200 BC, 215, 241, 251–2; census figures in, 233; and historicity of speech of P. Sulpicius Galba (s.v.) urging war against Philip V, 254–5, 260; and Scipio Africanus, 259; positive view of Isthmian Declaration, 295 n. 97; evaluation of Greek politicians ca. 170 BC, 370–1
Locris (region in central Greece), conquered by Philip V from Aetolia, 208 BC, 288 n. 60; given back to Aetolia by Isthmian Declaration, 288 n. 60
Lychnis (Illyrian polity), goes over to Philip V after 205 BC, 113; given by Rome to Ardiaei, 196 BC, 113
Lycia (southwest Asia Minor), and Rome, 355; oppressed by Rhodes, 355, 362, 378
Lyciscus (Achaean statesman), anti-Roman speech at Sparta of, 210 BC, 109–10, 117
Lycortas (Achaean statesman), father of Polybius, 98; ignores Roman-Aetolian treaty of alliance, 98–9; opposes Roman interference in Achaean rule at Sparta, 345 n. 9; victor in war against Messene, 182–181 BC, 352; brutal tactics in, 352; deported to Italy, 366 n. 94; influence of in Achaea, 170s BC, 367, 369
Lysimacheia (Greek city in Thrace), ally of Aetolia, 148; conquered by Philip V contrary to peace of 206 BC with Aetolia, 148, 215; seized by Antiochus III, 196 BC, 311; failed conference at, 196 BC, 311, 321, 338; abandoned by Antiochus, 190 BC, 330
Lysimachus (Macedonian king, ca. 290 BC), invades and divides Macedon with Pyrrhus (s.v.), 288 BC, 150 and n. 126; drives Pyrrhus from Macedon, 285 BC, 150 n. 126; parallel to Pact Between the Kings, 150 n. 126
Ma, J. (modern scholar), 154, 161
Macedon, 3, 4, 21, 22, 25, 34, 39, 62, 125, 126, 128, 149, 150, 182, 190, 192, 193, 256, 277; and Illyria, 63–4, 80, 83; Roman destruction of, 168 BC, 80, 135, 137, 358, 380–1; no contact or problems with Rome before 217 BC, 63–6, 71; formidable, 256, 367; reduced in power post-196 BC, 288, 299, 306, 307, 356; some recovery post-192 BC, 288 n. 57; resources too small, 304; counterbalanced by Greek states, 362; as balancer and peer competitor (s.v.) of Rome, 170s BC, 370, cf. 364, 369
Machtpolitik (policy based on power calculations), 45, 51, 284
Magie, D. (modern scholar), 129, 152, 153, 163, 169, 177
Magnesia (region in central Greece), freed from Macedon by Isthmian Declaration, 288, 323
Magnesia-ad-Sipylum (town in western Asia Minor), Antiochus III defeated at, 189 BC, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 340, 344
Magnesia-on-the-Meander (Greek city in Caria), ally of Philip V, 153, 167; given Myus (s.v.) by Philip, 201 bc, 153; war with Miletus, 180s bc, 153 and n. 141, 161, 377 n. 132

Mamertines (rulers of Messana in Sicily), ask aid of Rome, 245

Mantinea (Greek city), in Peloponnesian League, 48; Achaean victory at, 207 bc, 103 n. 100

Q. Marcus Philippus (consul 186 bc), fails to stop Achaean war with Messene, 351, 352

Maronea (Greek city in Thrace), treaty of alliance with Rome, 160s bc, 46 n. 75; Ptolemaic in 200 bc, 151, 164; seized by Philip V, 151, 164, 278 n. 16; economic importance of, 151 n. 130, 164, 321 n. 55, 345 n. 9; independent by Isthmian Declaration, 321; seized by Antiochus III, 321, 325; Pergamene claims to, 345, 353–4, 363 n. 80; independent by Peace of Apamea, 345 n. 9, 353; seized by Philip V again, 345, 353; set free by Rome, 354 n. 45; Philip’s massacre at, 354 n. 45; back in Macedonian control, 171 bc, 354 n. 45

Meadows, A. R. (modern scholar), 154 mediation of disputes and wars, ancient, 92 n. 55; in First Macedonian War, 91–116; motives for, 94–5, 96–7; by Rome, 342–3, 351, 352, 353; by Greek states, 352 n. 41; no Greek mediation of Roman disputes, 353

Medion (Acarnanian city), defeat of Aetolians at, 232 bc, 34, 40, 63, 64–5

Megara (Greek city), 48, 316 n. 36; as mediator, 352 n. 41

Megalopolis (Greek city), 65 n. 157; warns Antigonus III (s.v.) about Sparta, 250 n. 69, 295 n. 98; close ties to Macedon, 295 n. 98; opposes Achaea going over to Rome, 198 bc, 295 n. 98; destroyed by Sparta, 223 bc, 295 n. 98

Messene (southwest Peloponnesian polity), joins anti-Macedonian alliance, 90, 93, 236; amicitia with Rome, 90, 122, 123, 236; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; betrayed by Philip V, 215 bc, 147–8; forced into Achaean League, 191/190 bc, 332; cf. 368, 369, 378; revolt vs. Achaeeans fails, 348, 350, 351 and n. 35

Metaurus, battle of, 207 bc, defeat of Hasdrubal’s attempt to reinforce Hannibal in Italy, 107, 276

Miletus (Greek city), surrenders to Philip V, 201 bc, 153, 160, 161, 163, 179; loses Myus (s.v.); close ties to Ptolemies, 153–5; ties to Cos (s.v.), 155 n. 150; ties to Heracleia-by-Latmus (s.v.), 161; isopoliteia with Mylasa (s.v.), 167; war with Magnesia-on-the-Meander, 180s bc, 153 and n. 141, 161, 377 n. 132 militarism, Achaean, 16, 103 n. 100, 333; Aetolian, 127; Carthaginian, 16, 127; Hellenistic (in general), 9, 16, 19, 126–7, 181, 184, 229, 232, 256, 265, 268, 343; Macedonian, 16–17, 127, 181, 256; of small Greek states, 9, 15 and n. 45, 16; Pergamene, 127, 232, 332, 354; Rhodian, 193, 232, cf. 190; Seleucid, 16, 127, 161; Roman, 9, 16, 19, 126–7, 229, 231–2, 264, 268, 302

Mommsen, T. (modern scholar), 4, 227, 316
“multipolarity” (political science concept), definition of, 8–9; as usual mode of interstate life, 8–9, 11, 26, 220, 235, 376, 377; Hellenistic, 20, 21, 25, 199, 219, 303, 342, 381
Mylasa (city in Caria), attacked by Philip V, 201 bc, 166; alleged ties to Seleucids, 166, 167; isopolitiea with Ptolemaic Miletus, 167; and Antigonus III, 227 bc, 192 n. 36
Myndus (town in Caria), Ptolemaic, seized by Rhodes, 188 n. 21
Myonessus, battle of, 190 bc, naval victory over Antiochus III, 330, 331, 332, 344; major Rhodian role in, 331, 344
Mytilene (Aegean city), mediator in First Macedonian War, 105, 107, 108; revolt from Athens, 427 bc, 242 n. 41
Myus (Greek polity), belongs to Miletus, 153; given by Philip V to Magnesia-on-the-Meander, 201 bc, 153; regained by war by Miletus, 180s bc, 113 and n. 141, 161
Nabis (king of Sparta), adscriptus to Peace of Phoenice, 113; ally of Philip V, 285 n. 43; war vs. Rome-led coalition, 195 bc, 286; war vs. Achaea, 192 bc, 323–4, 364 n. 87; expansionism of, 324; murdered by Aetolians, 324
Nicaea (Greek town), peace talks at, 198 bc, 191, 197
Nicanor (general of Philip V), and Roman envoys of 200 bc, 276, 290
Nicoratus (Lycian statesman), appeals to Rome vs. Rhodian oppression, 355
Nisyros (Aegean polity), attacked by Philip V, 201 bc, 163; political ties, 163
Olympichus of Alinda (Greek warlord), ally of Philip V, 154, 167; and Amyzon (s.v.), 154–5; and Iasus (s.v.), 155 n. 149; and Seleucus II, 167
Oreus (Greek city), plundered by Romans, 208 bc, 109 and n. 123; P. Sulpicius Galba wants to give to Pergamum, 196 bc, 250, cf. 291; wrecked by Romans, 200 bc, 278 n. 16; freed under Isthmian Declaration, 288, 291 and n. 76
Oricum (Greek town on Adriatic), no ties to Rome before 214 bc, 52–3; appeals to Rome vs. Philip V, 86; Roman naval base, 86, 87
Pact Between the Kings, see treaty of alliance between Antiochus III and Philip V, 203/202 bc “pacts of restraint” (political science concept), treaties of alliance as, between asymmetrical partners, 360
Panium, battle of, 200 bc, victory of Antiochus III over Ptolemies, 179, 226, 308, 309 and n. 3, 338; large size of armies at, 239–40; impact of, 145, 149, 179, 309, 338
Paros (Aegean polity), mother-city of Pharos (s.v.), 50; seized by Philip V, 162, 163; ties to Ptolemies, 162, 163
Parthini (Illyrian people), 52, 60, 70, 71; amicitia of, with Rome, 72; fall to Philip V, 87; in Peace of Phoenice, 112 n. 137
Parthus (Illyrian polity), goes over to Philip V after Peace of Phoenice, 113; given by Rome to the Ardiaei, 196 bc, 113
Passarini, A. (modern scholar), 122
Patare (Carian town), siege of, 331 patron-client relations (patrocinium), 43–5, 300–1, 305
see also client states
Peace of Apamea, see treaty of peace ending Antiochene War
Peace of Naupactus, see treaty of peace ending the Social War
Peace of Phoenice, see treaty of peace ending the First Macedonian War
Pédech, P. (modern scholar), 140
“peer competitor” (political science concept), 357, 364, 365, 377; Macedon as, for Rome, 170s bc, 370
Peloponnesian League (fifth century bc), 48–9
Pergamum (state in northwest Asia Minor), 82, 159 and n. 168, 197; and Peace of Apamea, 49; Roman amicitia with, 90, 122, 123, 236; helps Rome obtain Great Mother (s.v.), 122–3; and Pact Between the Kings, 129–30, 131, 178, 183, 210, 227; war vs. Philip V, 156, 163, 196; rivalry with Rhodes, before 201 bc, 164, 195, 197; alliance with Rhodes vs. Philip V, 201 bc, 164, 173, 195, 197–8, 200, 238–9, 362; claims Euboea (s.v.), 196 n. 51; gains Andros (s.v.), 196 n. 51; asks Rome for help vs. Philip V, 220, 230, 245, 277, 283 n. 35, 285; militarism of, 232; and P. Sulpicius Galba, 250; in Roman ultimatum to Philip V, 200 bc, 277; and war vs. Nabis, 195 bc, 291; possible attack by Antiochus III, 198 bc, 186 and n. 14; protected by Rome from Antiochus III, 316, 320; independence threatened by Antiochus III, 320 and n. 51, 366; joins with Rome vs. Antiochus III, 329; territorial gains of, from Peace of Apamea (s.v.), 333; as catalyst in Antiochene War (s.v.), 338; dispute with Philip V over Aenus and Maronea, 345; bad relations with Rhodes after 188 bc, 356, 362 and n. 80; benefits from links to Rome, 362; continued hostility to Macedon, 362
Pericles (Athenian statesman), on being tough, 316 n. 36
Perseus (king of Macedon, 179–168 bc), controversial, 132; defeated by Rome, 135; as “peer competitor” of Rome, 364, 370; diplomatic successes with Greeks, 369; and Rhodes, 371; and Third Macedonian War, 379, 380–1
Petzold, K.-E. (modern scholar), 45, 54, 67
Pharnaces I (king of Cappadocia), war with Pergamum, late 180s bc, 353, 379
Pharos (Adriatic polity), amicitia with Rome (no treaty of alliance) 45–8, cf. 74, 75 and n. 201; stronghold of Demetrius of Pharos, 47, 69, 74; Roman victory at, 219 bc, 70
Pharos Inscription (and alleged Roman treaties of alliance in Illyria), 45–8, 74 philia (Greek term for friendship between states), in Illyria, 43, 55; general usage, 44–5; Rome and Demetrius of Pharos, 69; Ptolemies and Carthage, 201
see also amicitia

Philinus (historical writer), criticized by Polybius, 137, 176

Philip II (King of Macedon, 340s BC), and Illyria, 63, 64; alleged ancestor of Antigonids, 81; conquest of Greece, 286; and League of Corinth, 286

Philip V (King of Macedon, 221–179 BC), expansionism of, 4, 22, 23, 25, 26, 48, 75, 80, 81, 129, 132, 137, 150, 168, 180, 183, 194, 215, 216, 217, 221, 227, 229, 232, 236, 240, 244, 247, 250, 252 and n. 75, 267, 277, 302; and Peace of Apamea (s.v.), 49; in Antiochene War, 49; and Aratus of Sicyon (s.v.), 59; successes against Aetolians in Social War, 61–2, 98; youth at accession to throne, 61–2, 78; and peace talks of 218 BC, 98; and Demetrius of Pharos and the turn to the west, 217 BC, 62, 65, 66, 70, 78–9; and Peace of Naupactus: see treaty of peace ending the Social War; attacks Cephalena (s.v.), 72; war with Scerdilaidas (s.v.), 73, 82; aggressor vs. Rome in First Macedonian War, 78–87, 121, 236; alleged desire for world rule, 78, 80, 85, 144–5, 224 and n. 157, 238, 304, 340; alleged desire to invade Italy, 78, 80, 236–7, cf. 240; reputation as military gambler, 81, 85, 87, 148, 282; Roman embassy to, 218 BC, 82; attacks Illyria, 83, 86, 87, 97, 236; treaty of alliance with Hannibal, 83–4; captures Lissus, 212 BC, 87, leading to Roman-Aetolian alliance, 87–8, 91; defeats Aetolians at Lamia, 209 BC, 93, 96, 97, 99; peace talks of 209 BC, 95–6; war-fleet of, 100 and n. 87, 115, 194; defeats Attalus I, 208 BC, 100, 101; other successful offensives, 100, 101; and mediation of 208 BC, 101–2, 103; and mediation of 207 BC, 110–11; victorious peace with Aetolia, 206 BC, 111, 116, cf. 104, 115, 123, 211, 216; allegedly aids Hannibal at Zama, 124, 251 n. 71; Peace of Phoenice with Rome: see treaty of peace ending the First Macedonian War; and Hellenic Symmachy, 286 n. 50; violates treaty of peace with Aetolians, 148, 191, 212 n. 114, 215; pact with Antiochus III vs. the Ptolemies, 4, 7, 25, 118; historicity of, 129–78, 221, 227; aim of, 146, 150, 178, 180, 267–8; morally condemned by Polybius, 132, 134–5, 137, 138, 147–8, 221, 223, 268, 270 n. 127; revenge of Tyche (s.v.) upon, 134–5, 137, 221, 223; negotiations to be father-in-law and protector of Ptolemy V (s.v.), 138, 143–4, 148, 203, 204–5, 227; campaign in southern Aegean, 201 BC, 139, 140, 150–68, 170, 186, 194, 209, 227; intends attack on Egypt itself, 139–50, 179; betrayals of friends and allies, 147–9, cf. 153; “change for the worse,” 147; secret plots against Rhodes, 148, 193; betrays Cius (s.v.), 148, cf. 194, 208–9, 315; seizes Aenus and Maronea from Ptolemies, 151; and Samos, 151–3, 161; and Miletus, 153, Philip V (cont’d)

161; and Myus, 153; and Magnesia-on-the-Meander, 153, 161; and Bargylia and Theangela, 156, 161, cf. 164, 200–1; raids Pergamum, 201 BC, 156, 162, 163, 168, 200, 251; and Cos and Calymnos, 159–60, 163; and Heracleia-by-Latmus, 159–61; seizes Ptolemaic holdings in northern Aegean, 200 BC, 158–65, 191, 194, 209, 260, 267, 275; and Stratoniciaia, 165–6; and Alabanda, 166; and Mylasa, 166–7; military cooperation with Antiochus III, 167, 168, 177–8, 184–6, 188, 189, cf. 156; and Zeuxis (s.v.), 168–78; no denial of pact with Antiochus, 177; and war vs. Rhodes, 191, 192, 193, cf. 150–68, and with Attalus I, 196–8, cf. 156, 162, 163, 168, 200, 251; and Abydus, 201 and n. 66; and Lysimacheia and Chalcedon, 214; fears about Aetolians, and Greek embassies to Rome, 214 n. 123, 223; as potential sole hegemon in East, 218, 274; murder of Chariteles (s.v.), 284 n. 41; defeated in Second Macedonian War, 134, 221, 223; rejects Roman embassy, 200 BC, 205, 276–7, 308; ignores the symplokē, 225, 340, cf. 266 n. 119; military success vs. P. Sulpicius Galba, 199 BC, 256–7 and n. 90; and “habit of command,” 277 and n. 13, 278; brutality of, 278 n. 16, 281, 282, 284; defeats Flamininus at Atrax, 198 BC, 281; believes Macedonian soldiers superior to Roman, 281; defeated by Flamininus at Cynoscephalae, 197 BC: see Cynoscephalae; joins war vs. Nabis of Sparta, 286 n. 49; amicitia with Rome after 196 BC, 287 n. 56; strengthens Macedon after 196 BC, 288 and n. 57, 358–9; on the difficult situation of Eumenes II, 320; sides with Rome in Antiochene War, 329, 332; forced to give up gains, 333–4, 360, 362; anger at Rome, 334 n. 102, cf. 362; and Aenus and Maronea, 345, 353, 354 n. 45; large conquests in Thrace, 180 s. BC, 350; protests of small states against, 352, 360; and “internal balancing” (s.v.) of Rome, 358–9

Philopoemen (Achaean statesman), reforms Achaean army, 103, 367; victor over Sparta at Mantinea, 207 BC, 103 n. 100; contrasted with Flamininus by Plutarch, 279; captures Sparta, 192 BC, 324; debate with Aristaenus (s.v.) on how to handle Rome, ca. 184 BC, 360–1, 376, 380 n. 146

Phlegon of Tralles (second century AD), and hostility to Roman hegemony, 357 n. 62

Phoci (region in central Greece), defects from Aetolians, 225 BC, 288 n. 60; given by Rome to Aetolians, 196 BC, 288 n. 60

Phoence (capital of Epirus), seized by Ardiaei, 231 BC, 34–5, 36; site of peace talks, 205 BC, 112

Phoenicia (Lebanon), conquered by Antiochus III from Ptolemies, 202 BC, 145, 179, 308, 313

Phthiotic Achaia (region in central Greece), Aetolian wish for, blocked by Flamininus, 288
Pinnes (king of Ardiaei, 229–218 BC), 40, 43 n. 63, 52, 70, 72 (disappears), 73, 82, 83
Placentia (Roman colony in Po Valley), destroyed by Celts, 200 BC, 234, 262 n. 105
Plautus (Roman playwright), and the Stichus as evidence of Aetolian embassy asking Rome for help vs. Philip V, 215–16; as evidence of Roman exhaustion in 200 BC, 215, 234
Pleuratus (king of Ardiaei, ca. 210 BC), 48, 97; son of Scerdilaidas (s.v.), 61 n. 140, 278; joins Rome in First Macedonian War, 89; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; joins Rome in Second Macedonian War, 278, 279
Polybius (Greek historical writer), establishes basic issues about Roman expansion in East, 3, 32; deported to Italy from Achaia, 167 BC, 366 n. 94; friend of Cato the Elder, 371 and n. 109; policy as hipparch of Achaean League, 169 BC, 371 n. 107; and the Hellenistic power-transition crisis (s.v.), 25–6, 129, 227, and Chapter 4, passim; and the symplokê (s.v.), 26, 32, 79–83, 116, 118, 122, 224–5, 268, 270, 275, 307, 340, 367; and Tyche, 26 n. 72, 134–5, 221–4, 270 n. 127; causation in, 135–7; wide experience and sophistication of, 226; on the strong answering appeals from the weak, 245–6; on piety of the Roman populace and aristocracy, 249; shocked by brutal military tactics of Lycortas (s.v.), 352; as Realist analyst, 371 n. 109; on causes of First Illyrian War, 33–4, 35; interest in Illyria, 50; and treaty ending the First Punic War, 54; and Macedonian-Punic treaty of alliance, 215 BC, 54; and Peace of Phoenice (s.v.), 112; sees Demetrius of Pharos as villain, 59, 61, 74; use of Fabius Pictor (s.v.), 59 and n. 132, 63 n. 148; sees Aratus of Sicyon as hero, 59, 367; and speech of Agelaus, 217 BC, 79–83; and Greek mediation of First Macedonian War, 93, 104; dislike of Aetolia, 97; inclusion of anti-Roman speeches, 117; and the Pact Between the Kings (s.v.), 129, 131, 132–50, 168, 169, 170, 179, 189, 221–6, 250 n. 69, 251, 266–7, and Chapter 4, passim; moral condemnation of Philip V and Antiochus III, 132, 134–5, 137, 138, 147–8, 176, 221, 223, 268, 270 n. 127; use of Rhodian sources for this period, 174, 185; use of multiple sources, 175, 226; criticism of Rhodian writers Antisthenes and Zeno, 174–6, cf. 226; use of Macedonian sources for this period, 176–7; on Athenians and the Ptolemies, 208 and n. 99; criticizes Athenian action in 201 BC, 208 and n. 99; and Greek embassies to Rome, 201/200 BC, 220–6, 231–40, 243–4, 252 n. 73, 266–7; on Roman decision to intervene in East, 200 BC, 220–6, 238–9; and prediction of Demetrius of Phalerum (s.v.), 223–4; on expansionist Roman ambitions, 224, 252; on Punic, Antigonid, and Seleucid ambitions, 224, 252; on ambitions of Philip V, 79, 80, 81, 144–5, 341; sees large historical patterns, 224–5; and Polybius (cont’d)
impact of human decision-making, 225–6; praise of Abydus (s.v.), 278; and Corinth given to Achaea by Rome, 284 n. 37; on Aristaenus and the “freedom of the Greeks,” 283, 290–1, 294 and n. 90, cf. 295 and n. 98; positive view of Isthmian Declaration, 295–6; on ambitions of Antiochus III, 145, 306, 341; on Roman embassy to Antiochus III, 200 bc, 308; criticizes Roman ruthlessness and duplicity, 296 and n. 99; criticizes increasing Roman sternness towards Greeks after 180 bc, 296, 366, 379; and dating of the beginning of Roman “rule” in the East, 335; on Rome and Greek freedom before the Third Macedonian War, 344–5, 350, 351 and n. 35, 358–9, 369–71, 381 n. 147; praises Philip V for increasing power of Macedon after 196 bc, 358–9; praises Greek desire to maintain independence from Rome, 360–1, 367, 370, 371, 376, 380 n. 146; sees Callicrates (s.v.) as villain, 367–9, 380; bias against Callicrates, 369 n. 146; and Third Macedonian War as “tipping point” for Roman power in East, 358, 381; praises Cephalus (s.v.) for independence from Rome, 370
M. Porcius Cato (consul 195 bc), speech in defense of Rhodians, 167 bc, 252 n. 74, 371, 381 n. 147; and moralizing arguments, 252 n. 74, 371, 381 n. 147; and “defensive war” at Rome, 252 n. 74, 371, 381 n. 147; and speech of P. Sulpicius Galba in Livy, 255 and n. 84; at battle of Thermopylae, 191 bc, 329; on libertas in Greek East before 167 bc, 355, 371, 381 and n. 147; friend of Polybius, 371 and n. 109; as Realist analyst, 371 and n. 109
Potidaea (Greek city), 244, 316 n. 36 power-maximizing behavior of all states under anarchy (political science concept), 8–9, 15, 40, 57 n. 125, 181, 227, 229, 237, 240, 247–8, 265 power-transition crises (political science concept), definition of, 20–1, 181–2, 336–7; characteristics of, 21–2, 125–6, 127, 227, 265–8, 303–4; the small number of, 23–4; and origins of World War I, 21, 128; in Illyria, 233–228 bc, 34 n. 21; and end of the Cold War, 22, 126 n. 22, 184, cf. 235 n. 20, 315, 316 n. 33; and origins of World War II, 128; and crisis of ca. 207–188 bc in Mediterranean, 4, 24–5, 26, 28, 125–6, 180, 181, 183–4, 206, 215–16, 227–8, 235, 238–9, 248, 268–9, 273, 299, 302, 335, 336, 337, 340, and Chapters 4, 5, and 6, passim; historicity of, 129–80, 227–8, 243, 260, 267–9 preemptive war (political science concept), 253 n. 78 preventive war (political science concept), 253 and n. 78, 258, 260, cf. 269; the Second Macedonian War as, 253 and n. 78, 258, 260, cf. 269
Primat der Aussenpolitik (primacy of external, systemic pressures in foreign relations), 229
Primat der Innenpolitik (primacy of internal pressures in foreign relations), 229, 321

“protectorate” (foreign relations concept), definition of, 51; alleged Roman, in Illyria, 43, 45, 51–2, 54, 74–5

provinciae (Roman spheres of action, or administrative districts), 285, 346, 347 and nn. 15 and 17, 348, 372; definition of, 347 n. 15

Prusias I (king of Bithynia, ca. 200 BC), in-law and ally of Philip V, 103, 113, 195 n. 48, 213, 248; adscriptus to Peace of Phoenice, 113; given Cius (s.v.) by Philip V, 148, 293; enemy of Pergamum, 195 n. 48, 196, 320, cf. 353; friendly to Rhodes, 195 n. 48; forced by Rome to give up Cius, 196 BC, 293, 294; war with Eumenes II (s.v.), 353

Ptolemaic empire, and power-transition crisis after ca. 207 BC, 4, 6–7, 12, 21–2, 24–5, 28, 124–9, 199, 200, 211, 217, 227, 237, 243, 267, 302, 306, and Chapter 4, passim; amicitia with Rome, 30, 201, 202; mediator in First Macedonian War, 77, 115 and n. 152, 203, 228, 248 n. 62; and Pact Between the Kings, 118, 129–50, 183, 178, 210, 211, 220, 238; and Hellenistic balance of power, 126, 141, 199, 200, 209, 227; philia with Carthage, 201; asks Rome for help against Philip V, 201 BC, 220, 230, 239, 245, 283 n. 35, cf. 205–6; in Roman ultimatum to Philip, 277; permanent loss of Phoenicia, Coele Syria, and Judaea, 309; weakness, 188–168 BC, 335, 358 n. 66; no contact with Rome, 200–173 BC, 355, 379; ties to Achaean League, 359 and n. 68

Ptolemaic towns in northern Aegean seized by Philip V, 200 BC (Callipolis, etc.), 164, 165; freed by Rome, 196 BC, 288

Ptolemais (Athenian tribe honoring Ptolemies), 207, 209, 210

Ptolemy IV, premature death of, 204 BC, 24, 125, 131, 134, 142, 143, 183, 267; mediator in First Macedonian War, 94, 100, 105, 108, 115 and n. 152, 203, 206, 210; duplicity of Philip V towards, 143, 203; and Amyzon (s.v.), 154–5; and Cnidus, 162; and Paros, 163; and Sestus, 165; and Syracuse, 202; neutral during Second Punic War, 202; sells grain to Rome, 210 BC, 202 and n. 74; and failure of talks with Antiochus III, 219/218 BC, 314, 315 n. 29; victor over Antiochus III at Raphia, 217 BC, 142

Ptolemy V, a child, and weak government of, 24, 125, 131, 134, 142–3, 183, 204, 221, 223, 267, 268, 310; threatened with destruction by Philip V and Antiochus III, 142–3 and Chapter 4, passim; his government’s attempts to win support of Philip, 143–4, 148, 149 and n. 124, 203, 204; and Greek mercenaries, 142–3, 204; and pleas for help to Rome: see Ptolemaic empire; alleged request for a tutor regis, 205–6; rumors of his death lead to Antiochus III sailing for Egypt, 196 BC, 143, 309, 310, 311; temporary gains vs. Egyptian rebels after 200 BC, 311 n. 14
Pylos (Greek city), sacked by Ardiaei, 220 BC, 61; member of Achaean League, 65 and n. 157

Pyrrhus (king of Epirus), invasion of Italy, 280–275 BC, 6, 29–30, 121, 236, 240; divides Macedon with Lysimachus (s.v.), 288 BC, 150; expelled from Macedon by Lysimachus, 285 BC, 150; a parallel to Pact Between the Kings, 150; loots Temple of Persephone at Locri, 249–50; fleet destroyed, 249–50

Quillin, J. M. (modern scholar), 254–5

L. Quinctius Flamininus (consul 192 BC), brother of Titus (s.v.), 281; successful diplomacy with Achaean League, 198 BC, 281, 284 n. 37; promises Corinth to Achaens, 284, n. 37

T. Quinctius Flamininus (consul 198 BC), early career, 279–80; no “Eastern expert”, 279–80; influential friends of, 280; and lottery for provinciae in 198 BC, 280; military offensive, and defeat at Atrax by Philip V, 198 BC, 281, cf. 304; unpopular with Greeks because of brutal tactics, 198 BC, 281, 283, 284, 295 n. 94; great victory over Philip at Cynoscephalae, 197 BC: see Cynoscephalae; influence on peace treaty of 196 BC, 283; and murder of Brachyles (s.v.), 284 and n. 41; gold coinage of, 284–5, 295 n. 94; war vs. Nabis of Sparta, 195 BC, 286; and Hellenic Symmachy (s.v.), 286–7; saves Philip V’s rule in Macedon, 288; encourages Greek leagues, 288, and Isthmian Declaration, 289, 291, 294, 295, 296–7, 305; blocks territorial gains in Greece for Pergamum, 250; blocks territorial gains for Aetolians, 288 n. 60; bad relations with Aetolians, 289 n. 62, 320; good relations with Achaens, 289 n. 62, 320; interferes in internal politics of Greek states, 293 and n. 86, 294 n. 88; and Aristaenus (s.v.), 289 n. 62, 294; honored in Greek states, 296; dedicates shield at Delphi, 296; and Roman “sphere of interest” in Greece, 297–8; and Roman withdrawal from Greece, 194 BC, 298–300; strategic error of, 299–300, 301, 316–17; farewell speech to Greeks, 300–1, 317; and the “freedom of the Greeks,” 289, 291, 294, 295, 296–7, 305, 316–17, 346; and demands made on Antiochus III, 193 BC, 320–1; protests behavior of Aetolian League (fails), 192 BC, 323; protests behavior of Achaean League (fails), 323–4; and Amynander, 326 and n. 71; brings Achaean into war against Antiochus III, 332; objects to Achaean conquest of Peloponnese (fails), 332; mediation of war between Eumenes II and Prusias I, and visit to Syria 183 BC, 355 and n. 51

Raphia, battle of, 217 BC, Ptolemaic victory, 142; large size of armies at, 239

Realism (political science theory), 7–17, 27; criticisms of, 10–11; universal historical claims of, 11; usefulness of, 267; and Thucydides, cf. 358 and n. 64 see also system-oriented analysis rerum repetitio (Roman diplomatic complaints), and “compellence diplomacy” (s.v.), 69, 252 n. 77
Rhegium (Greek city in Italy), 50, 242 n. 41
Rhodes (Greek polity), alleged long-term Roman friendship with, 30, 42 n. 58; mediator in First Macedonian War, 77, 94, 108–10, 192, 199, 203, 228, 248 n. 62; mediator in Social War, 94, 98, 100, 108, 192, 195, 199; mediates Aetolian-Macedonian peace, 206 bc, 111, 116, 193, 198–9, 228; anti-Roman stance, 207 and 206 bc, 108–10, 193, 228, 248 n. 62; expansionism of, 188, 190, 194; as traditional balancer among the great powers, 190–1; and war vs. Crete, 204 bc, 190, 193; and Chremonidean War (s.v.), 190 and n. 50; and war vs. Byzantium, 220 bc, 190, 195; and great earthquake of 228 bc, 192, 195; good relations with Macedon before 204 bc, 192–3; good relations with Prusias I (s.v.), 195 n. 48, 196; and Pact Between the Kings, 117, 129–30, 131, 172, 174, 177–8, 184–95, 200, 227, 238; alleged plots against, by Philip V, 148, cf. 193; and the Bargylia Inscription (s.v.), 156, 167, 177, 184–5, 200; ties to Cos, 157; ties to Ptolemies, 157; war vs. Philip V, 157, 164, 173, 185, 190–3, 227, 362; causes of, 191–5; bad relations with Pergamum before 201 bc, 164, 194–6, 197, 200; as champion of the “freedom of the Greeks,” 170–1, 185, 188 and n. 21; and Euromus (s.v.), 170–1, 188; spreads news of Pact Between the Kings, 174, 184, 194, 205, 210, 238; alliance with Pergamum vs. Philip, 195, 197–8, 200–1, 238–9, 362, cf. 164, 173; with Pergamum, blockades Philip in Bargylia, 200–1, cf. 164; seeks to involve Rome in war with Philip (embassies to Rome), 174, 187, 199, 200, 220, 228, 230, 238, 239, 245, 283 n. 35, 285; Rhodian historians as source for Polybius, 174; sure knowledge of military cooperation between Philip and Antiochus III in Caria, 177, 178, 184–5, 186, 189, 190, 194, 200, 220; defeated by Philip at Lade, 200; unable to save Abydus (s.v.) from Philip, 200 bc, 201; unable to protect Athens from Philip, 201; tempted to make peace with Philip, 200 bc, 201; attempts to gain Aetolians as ally vs. Philip, 201 and 200 bc, 214, 278 n. 17; in Roman ultimatum to Philip, 200 bc, 277; not in war vs. Nabis (s.v.), 195 bc, 286; role in freeing of Cius, 196 bc, 294; positive view of Isthmian Declaration, 297 n. 107; informal friendship with Antiochus III before 197 bc, 185; withdraws fleet from Aegean to confront Antiochus, 197 bc, 187; ready for war vs. Antiochus, 185–7, 189–90; and impact of Cynoscephalae, 187–8, 189, 193; and modus vivendi with Antiochus after 197 bc, 187–95, 301 and n. 12, cf. 178; seizes Ptolemaic towns, 188 and n. 21; Roman interest in protecting, 316; joins Rome-led war against Antiochus, 328; major role and full partner in Rhodes (cont’d)
war vs. Antiochus, 329, 330–1; and L. Aemilius Regillus, 331; defeats Hannibal at Side, 190 BC, 331; key role at battle of Myonessus, 331, 344; and Winged Victory of Samothrace, 332; large territorial gains from Peace of Apamea, 333, 356, 362 cf. 345; on bad terms with Pergamum post-188 BC, 345, 362 and n. 80; as an arbitrator of interstate disputes, 170s BC, 352 n. 41; control of Lycia, 355, 362; ignores Rome over Lycia, 355, 378, 379; and libertas (s.v.)
before 167 BC, 355, 371, 381 and n. 147; benefits of link to Rome clear to, 362

Rich, J. W. (modern scholar), 92, 97, 101, 110
Richardson, J. S. (modern scholar), 347
Robert, J. and L. (modern scholars), 160, 171

Roman Peace, beginnings of, under the Republic, 350 and n. 343, 351–3, 358, 376

Roman Senate, complex politics of, 18, 237; often-disorganized decision-making of, 237, cf. 11;
strategic mistakes of, 69, 75, 259, 266 n. 119, 299, 301, 306, 316–17, 318–19, 339; in favor of expansion, and “habit of command,” 232, 247; fails to understand the symplekē (s.v.), 299 n. 119; and limited aims in East in 190s BC, 319; disinterest in affairs in East after 188 BC, 336, 350; in favor of almost any status quo, 350 n. 52, 351, 355, 365, 366 n. 95; desire for deference from Greeks, 359; growing preference for sycophants among Greeks after 180 BC, 368; pushes intervention in East, 200 BC, 23, 26, 114
n. 147, 124, 129, 130, 205, 213, 223, 225–6, 229, 236–7, 252, 260, 277, 302; reluctant to intervene in Illyria, 34 n. 19, 37, 67; and Demetrius of Pharos, 34 n. 19, 37, 67; and embassy to Philip V and Antiochus III, 200 BC, 205–6, 216, 230, 252, 263–4, 276–8, 302, 307; allegedly rejects Aetolian appeal for help vs. Philip V, 202 BC, 211–17; rejects appeal from Tunis for help vs. Carthage, 240 BC, 245; opposition in, to Eastern intervention, 200 BC, 226, 257–8, 268, 269; and withdrawal from Greece, 194 BC, 259; sees serious danger in East, 260–4; and financial sacrifice for Second Macedonian War, 262, 268; establishes permanent provinciae in Spain, 285; decrees serious defensive measures vs. Antiochus III, 192 BC, 328–9; ignores conquests of Philip V in Thrace, 180s BC, 340 n. 33, 351; conciliatory towards Achaea in 181 BC, 352; persuasion, scolding, intimidation of Greeks, 378; sometimes fails to get its way with Greeks, 378–9

Roman senatorial aristocracy, allegedly exceptionally warlike, 17–18, 67, 124, 126, 231, 232, 234, 246 n. 88; and ambitions for gloria, 17–18, 231–2, 256; warrior ethos of, 231–2; and socialization to harsh interstate environment, 243 and n. 43, 244; majority pious, 249; foregoes “peace dividend” in 200 BC, 262 and n. 105

Rome, few contacts with Greeks before 230 bc, 29–30; and "defensive" war, 18, 69, 252 and n. 74, 253–4, 260, 263, 269; and iustum bellum ("just war"), 252 n. 77; as protector of victims of others' aggressions, 250–2, 277, 308–9, 312, 316, 344; and propaganda of Annalists (s.v.), 250–2; many defeats in battle, 356 and n. 89; populace exhausted by Hannibalic War, 115, 215–16, 233–5, 237, 253, 258, 263, 268, 269; religiosity in, 18, 123, 230, 235, 248–9 (decision of 200 bc), cf. 255–6; populace of, unhappy with Second Macedonian War, 260; self-perception as civilized state, 41, 42; as "barbarian" entity, 109–10, 193; as exceptionally warlike and aggressive, 4–5, 36–7, 38, 46, 67, 124, 193, 229, 231, 237 n. 24, 245, 247, 260, 313–14 and n. 26, 315 n. 31, 318, 328 n. 82; as "pathological," 8, 16, 67, 126, 127, 231, 232 and n. 4; and ambition to rule the world, 224, 252, cf. 312, 341; as "war machine," 231, 260; allegedly warlike and greedy populace, 231–2; Greek accusations of aggression against, 49–50, 106, 108–10, 117, 193, 212, 213, 218, 278, 281, 284, 296 (Polybius), cf. 357 n. 62, 364 and n. 87 (not intrusive enough!); expansionism of: see expansionism, Roman; exceptionalism of, in skills of conciliation and alliance-management, 19–20, 282, 304; as leader of alliance-system in Italy, 231, 304; as leader of coalition of Greek states, 26, 285, 294 and n. 92, 304, 307–8, 330–4, 337, 343, 344 and nn. 4 and 6, 345, 363, 367; a great diplomatic achievement, 344; as counter-hegemonic power, 344; hesitation about entanglements in East, 26, 28, 30, 34 n. 19, 37, 58, 66, 67, 71, 73, 74, 89, 90, 114, 121, 128, 212, 216, 235, 258, 260, 285, 299, 301, 302, 305, 336, 338–9, 343, 346–7, 364; hesitation about intervention at Saguntum (s.v.), 241; hesitation of Army Assembly at, regarding intervention in 200 bc, 19, 23, 216, 235, 253–5, 257, 258, 259–60, 267–8, 269; increased by still limited interests after 196 bc, 316; increased but still limited interests even after 188 bc, 350 n. 33, 353, 364, 366, 380; consequence of distance, 353, 363 and n. 85, 364 n. 90; of large responsibilities in West, 350, 355, 364; of manpower problems, 128 and n. 30, 230, 235, 250 n. 65, 329; confrontation with Antiochus III, 196–192 bc, no willingness to compromise, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 317, 318–19, 320–1 and n. 43, 338; and "unstable bipolarity," 311–12, 318–19; sends "mixed messages," 319, 324, 327; and see Chapter 8, passim; as preponderant power in East, after 188 bc, 342, 343,
Rome (cont’d)
344, 356, 358, 359, 361, 373, 377; and peace: see Roman Peace; and “offshore balancing,” 363–4, 366; not proactive, 363–4, 366 n. 95, 368; as provider of systemic “goods,” 365 and n. 92, 366; self-restraint, 364, 365, 366 and n. 96, 371; and libertas, 355, 365–72; and weight of power, 367, 377, cf. 282; and “functional differentiation” (s.v.), 342–3, 351, 352, 354, 359; and failures at mediation, 379; preponderance vs. empire, 372–6, and see Chapter 9, passim

Saguntum (city in Spain), attacked by Hannibal, 63, 69, 208 n. 99, 257; Roman indecisiveness over, 241, 254; war with Torboletae, 245
Samnites (Italic people), threaten Teanum (s.v.) and Capua, 245
Samos (Aegean polity), Ptolemaic, 201 bc, 151; seized by Philip V, 151–3, 161, 163, 165, 179, 198, 239; strategic location of, 152 n. 133; revolt vs. Philip, 152–3; restoration of Ptolemaic alliance, 152–3, 158 and n. 162; Philip’s garrison in, 161; and Rhodes, 188 n. 21; and Antigonus III, 227 bc, 192 n. 36; goes over to Antiochus III, 330; besieged by Rome-led coalition, 330
Sardinia, seized by Rome, 238/237 bc, 209 n. 99; as cause of Second Punic War, 209 n. 99; criticism of Rome by Polybius over, 295 Scerdilaidas (Illyrian warlord), raids with Demetrius of Pharos, 60–1, cf. 72 and n. 196; brother of Agron (s.v.), 61 and n. 140; father of Pleuratus (s.v.), 61 and n. 140; in-law of Amyander (s.v.), 61 and n. 140; alliance with Philip V, 66, 72, 73; left alone by Rome, 219 bc, 70, 72; becomes king of Ardiaei, 217 bc, 72, 83; breaches treaty of 228 bc with Rome, 72; invades Macedon vs. Philip V, 217 bc, 73, 80, 81, 82, 83; Roman embassy to, 217 bc, 82; appeals to Rome for help vs. Philip, 83; joins anti-Philip alliance of 211 bc, 89, 97
Schmitt, H. H. (modern historian), 92, 99, 101, 109, 116, 140, 146, 147, 149, 175
Schumpeter, J. (sociologist), 81 n. 52
Scopas (Aetolian mercenary general), attempted coup in Egypt, 196 bc, 142–3
Second Macedonian War (200–196 bc), 118, 124, 337; Roman victory in, 136, 177, 220, 337; course of events in, 278–82; always controversial at Rome, 260, 282 n. 32, cf. 260
Second Illyrian War (219 bc), 5, 236; causes of, 60–9
Second Punic War (218–201 bc), 190, 202, 216, 233, 237; impact of Roman victory in, 224, 235; damage to Rome in, 233–4; Roman financial problems as result of, 261; Roman aristocrats’ self-sacrifice in, 263 and n. 108
see also Hannibal
Segre, M. (modern scholar), 159
Seleucid empire, 3, 4, 16, 21, 22, 25, 125, 126, 128, 182; left alone by Rome after 188 BC, 335, 379; power lessened but not destroyed after 188 BC, 334–5, 356, 358 n. 66
Seleucus I (Macedonian dynast, ca. 300 BC), founder of Seleucid empire, 150, 322; vast power exceeded by Antiochus III, 322
Seleucus II (king, ca. 245 BC), alleged friendship with Rome, 240s BC, 31; and Olympichus (s.v.), 167 self-help behavior of polities under anarchy, 9, 35, 45, 51, 61–2, 78–9, 85, 90; and violation of treaties, 98; and making peace, 205 BC, 111, 112; and Amynander, 115, 326; and Ptolemies, 117, 203; and Rhodes, 188, 190, 193, 238–9, 331; and second-tier states, 183–4, 218–20, 229; and Pergamum, 238–9; and Hellenistic states in general, 240; and Rome, 247, 250, 260; and Athens, Achaean, and Philip V in 192/191 BC, 326; and Rhodes, Pergamum, Athens, and Achaean in power-transition crisis of ca. 207–188 BC, 335
Sellasia, battle of, 222 BC, Macedonian victory over Sparta, 59; Demetrios of Pharos present at, 59; establishes new Macedonian hegemony in Greece, 59
P. Sempronius Tuditanus (consul 204 BC), Roman commander in Greece, 205 BC, 104, 105 and n. 105, 111; anger at Aetolians for making peace with Philip V, 111; negotiates peace with Philip (Peace of Phoenice), 112; envoy to Philip V and Antiochus III, 200 BC, 276; and Amynander (s.v.), 176 n. 8; and Epirotes, 176 n. 8
Sestus (Greek city), seized by Philip, 200 BC, 164; probably Ptolemaic, 164–5
Sherwin-White, S. (modern scholar), 162
Side, battle of, 190 BC, Rhodian victory over Hannibal at, 331
Siebert, J. (modern scholar), 263
Sinope (Greek city on Black Sea), and Cos and Rhodes, 157 slave-owning, cultural impact of, 89 n. 47, 270
Sibylline Books (prophesies at Rome), 122 n. 4
Sidon (Phoenician city), captured by Antiochus III from Ptolemies, 310
Smyrna (Aegean city), appeals to Rome for protection, 312
Social War (fought between Greek alliance-systems, 220–217 BC), 61–2, 78, 88, 162 socialization of elites to harsh nature of interstate life, 19 n. 58, 23 n. 65, 87, 229, 236–7, 240–1, 243 and n. 43, 244, 253, 255, 264, 268, 303, 304, 314, 328
Sosibius (prime minister of Ptolemy IV), 162; honored at Cnidus (s.v.), 162
Sparta (Greek polity), Ionians appeal to, for help against Persia, 499 BC, 244; deadlocked peace talks with Athens (“compellence diplomacy”, s.v.), 432/431 BC, 314 n. 26, 316 n. 36; truce with Athens, 424 BC, 48; Corinth appeals to, for help against Athens, 432 BC, 244; hegemonic power in fifth century BC, 362; defeated by Macedon at Sellasia, 222 BC, 59, 62, 80; joins anti-Macedonian alliance, 210 BC, 88–9, 90, 93, 109–10, 236;
Sparta (cont’d)
defeated by Achaeans under Philopoemen, 207 BC, 103 and n. 100; amicitia with Rome, 122, 123, 236; receives Argos from Philip V, 197 BC, 148; war with Rome-led coalition, 195 BC, 286; destroys Megalopolis, 223 BC, 295 n. 98; forced into Achaean League, 192 BC, 324, 332, 348, 351, 368; Achaean oppression at, 345 n. 9; appeals to Rome about, 351, 368; championed by Callicrates (s.v.) at Rome, 367–9 sphere of influence (political science concept), definition of, 54, 57, 298 n. 112, cf. 374, 376; of Rome in Illyria, 54–5, 57, 75, 121; of Ptolemies in southeast Aegean, 162, 167, 179; of Seleucids in western Asia Minor, 167; of Rome in European Greece after 196 BC, 297–8, 307, 317, 338, 339, 378, 379; of Rome in Aegean after 188 BC, 336; not a euphemism for empire, 379 and n. 141 status and reputation for power, importance of in Hellenistic anarchy, 89, 90, 173, 174, 246, 313, 314–15, 336 n. 109, 337, 339–40, 353 n. 41, 353 and n. 43, 354, 359–60 and 380 (Roman concern for)

Strato and Poseidonius (pro-Macedonian historical writers), possible sources of Polybius, 177 n. 232

Stratonicia (city in Caria), seized by Philip V, 201 BC, 165–6 and n. 191; alleged ties to Seleucids, 166; controlled by Rhodes, 201 BC, 166; Rhodians failure to recapture it, 197 BC, 166; Rhodes regains with help of

Antiochus III, 166, 188 and n. 21

P. Sulpicius Galba (consul 211 BC), Roman commander in Greece, 210–207 BC, 101, 102 n. 96; sabotages peace talks, 207 BC, 106, 117; alleged atrocity on Aegina, 109 n. 123, cf. 196 n. 51; delay in leaving for Greece as consul, 200 BC: for religious reasons, 230, 235, 249–50; because of difficulties in the draft, 230, 235, 250 n. 65, 261 n. 103; advocates Roman intervention in East, 200 BC, 250, 254–5, 259–60, 269; for turning over Euboea to Pergamum, 250 and n. 68; historicity of speech for war in Livy, 254–5; and the lottery for provinces, 200 BC, 255–6, 280 n. 25; ambition of, 256; lack of great success against Philip V, 210–207 BC, 256; lack of success against Philip V, 200 and 199 BC, 256–7, 278–9, 282, 304; reputation for brutality, 278, 281; seeks Greek allies, 278–9; and mutiny of Roman army, 279; on senatorial commission to formalize peace, 196 BC, 283 n. 33, 311 n. 14; and Roman demands on Antiochus III, 193 BC, 320–1

Ser. Sulpicius Galba, envoy to obtain the Great Mother, 205 BC, 250; and Pergamum, 250; relative of consul of 200 BC, 250

by Philip V and Antiochus III, 136, and cf. Roman Senate, 299 n. 119

Syracuse (Sicilian polity), friendship with Rome, 57 n. 122, 300 n. 123; defects to Hannibal, 214 BC, 87, 202; allegedly appeals to Philip V for help vs. Rome, 87; captured by Rome, 211 BC, 88; ties to Ptolemies, 202; threatens Mamertines (s.v.), 244; misperception of strategic situation in 214 BC of, 266 n. 119 system-oriented analysis (Realism), examples of, 7, 10, 27, 37, 38, 73, 118, 124, 125–8, 131, 136 n. 63, 180, 184, 198, 200, 219, 225, 227–9, 231, 235, 241–6, 264, 268–9, 303, 349; usefulness of, 267

Syrian War, see Antiochene War (192–188 BC)

Taliaferro, J. (political scientist), 313

Tarentum (Greek city in southern Italy), 29, 30, 50, 83, 85, 86; defects to Hannibal, 213 BC, 87, cf. 86; and invasion of Italy by Pyrrhus, 29–30, 121, 244; pillaged by Rome, 209 BC, 280 n. 24; and Flamininus, 280 n. 24

Taurus Mountains (between Syria and Asia Minor), Antiochus advances across, 197 BC, 145; boundary of Seleucid empire after 188 BC, 333; Pergamene troops advance to, 354 n. 48

Teanum Sidicinum (Campanian town), asks Capua for help vs. Samnites, 245

Tempe Conference, 197 BC (Flamininus and Greek allies), 294 n. 92, cf. 291

Teos (Aegean coast city), subordinated to Antiochus III, 145 and n. 106, 160 n. 168

Teuta (ruler of Ardiaei), succeeds Agron (s.v.) 40; regent for Pinnes (s.v.), 40; and Ardiaean piracy, 40; quarrel with Roman envoys, 40; loses war with Rome (First Illyrian War), 229 BC, 41, 236; and peace treaty of 228 BC, 41, 51–2; amicitia with Rome, 43; strategic mistakes of, 266 n. 119

Thebes (Greek city), great power in fourth century BC, 362; goes over to Rome from Macedonian alliance, 197 BC, 284, 285

Thasos (island polity), atrocity of Philip V at, 148, 208–9; freed from Macedon by Isthmian Declaration, 288

Theangela (town in Caria), Ptolemaic, and seized by Philip V, 201 BC, 156, 161, 167, 174; given by Philip to forces of Antiochus III, 156, 167, 177, 178

Thessaly (region in central Greece), subordinated to Macedon, 113, 295; and Peace of Phoenice, 113; freed from Macedon by Isthmian Declaration, 288; Flamininus’ interference in internal affairs of towns in, 293, 294–5; and worship of Zeus Eleutherios, 206; goes over to Antiochus III, winter 192/191 BC, 325

Thermopylae Pass, 100, 102, 329

Third Macedonian War (171–168 BC), 364, 365, 366, 367, 370, 379; great impact of, 380–1

Thoas (Aetolian statesman), invites Antiochus III to Greece, 193/192 BC, 322 and n. 59
Thodasa (town in Caria), Ptolemaic, seized by Seleucid forces, 201 BC, 156, 177
Thrasylcrates (Rhodian diplomat), anti-Roman speech of, 207 BC, 107–10, 116, 117, 193, 199, 203 threat perception in crises (political science concept), 265–7
“Three Fetters of Greece,” the (Corinth, Chalcis, Demetrias), 95, 288, 291, 297, 323
Thucydides (Greek historical writer, ca. 415 BC), 10, 11 and n. 28, 12 (Melian Dialogue), 24, 38, 48; and phenomenon of appeal of weaker states to stronger, 244–5, 320; on interstate competition as natural, 302; as founder of international systems theory, 358 and n. 64
Timaeus (Greek historical writer), 29 n. 1; criticized by Polybius, 174 n. 225
“tipping point” towards hegemony (political science concept), 357
Tlepolemus (prime minister of Ptolemy V), accused of treason and overthrown, 202 BC, 142, 144 Torboletae (Spanish tribe), appeal to Hannibal for help vs. Saguntum (s.v.), 245 treaty of alliance between Achaea and the Ptolemaic regime, 359 and n. 68 treaty of alliance between Antiochus III and Euromus (s.v.), 193 BC, 171 treaty of alliance between Antiochus III and Heracleia-by-Latmus, mid-190s BC, 171 treaty of alliance between Antiochus III and Philip V ("Pact Between the Kings"), winter 203/202 BC, 4, 7, 25, 118; historicity of, 129–80, 181, 189, 238, 274 n. 3, and Chapter 4, passim; and Polybius, 129, 131, 132–50, 168, 169, 170–9, 189, 221–6, 238; central to his historical thought, 138; aim of, 146, 150, 179, 182, 306; alleged mistake for “treaty” of Philip V and Zeuxis (s.v.), 168–78; military cooperation in, 168–9; systemic origins of, 182; as alleged Rhodian propaganda, 174, 175, 184, 189, cf. 130, 187; systemic impact of, 128, 182, 198, 200, 220, 227–9, 243, 267–8, 274, 304, 306–7, 362 and Chapters 4–6, passim; and creation of Rhodian-Pergamene alliance, 195–8, 227, 267; and Ptolemaic appeal to Rome for help, 205, 220, 228; and Roman decision of 200 BC to intervene in the East, 217, 220–6, 277, 302, 304, and Chapter 6, passim; crippled by defeat of Philip V, 285, cf. 334 n. 102; counterbalanced by Greeks, 362
see also Bargylia Inscription treaty of alliance between Antiochus IV and Pergamum, ca. 175 BC, 354 treaty of alliance between Philip V and Hannibal, 215 BC, 52, 54, 82, 83–4, 107, 236; violated by Philip, 98, 112 and n. 138 treaty of alliance between Rome and the Achaean League (191 BC), ignored by Archon (s.v.) and Lycortas (s.v.), 170 BC, 98–9; date of, 332–3; maintenance of Achaean rights under, 360–1; as “pact of restraint” on Rome, 360 treaty of alliance between Rome and the Aetolian League (211 BC), 48–9, 88–9 (terms), 90, 91, 236; violated by Aetolians, 98, 111, 112; delay of ratification of, in Rome, 91, 99; termed “shameful” by Thrasyocrates (s.v.), 108–9 treaty of alliance between Rome and Maronea (s.v.), 160s BC, 46 n. 75 treaty of friendship between Euromus (s.v.) and Zeuxis, 197 BC, 170 treaty of peace between Antiochus III and Ptolemies, after Raphia (s.v.), 217 BC, 204; Ptolemaic attempts to renew, 204/203 BC, 204 treaty of peace between Rome and the Ardiaean kingdom, 228 BC, 41, 51, 52, 58, 61, 68, 72, 75

treaty of peace between Rome and Carthage, 241 BC, 54 treaty of peace ending Antiochene War (“Peace of Apamea”), 188 BC, 3, 26, 28, 49, 275, 308, 333–4, 348, 376, 377, 378; and alleged beginning of Roman “rule” in East, 335; influence of Greek allies on, 344 n. 6

treaty of peace ending the First Macedonian War (“Peace of Phoenice”), 205 BC, 72, 112–15, 117, 121, 236; violated by Philip in Illyria, 113; adscripti to, 113–14

treaty of peace ending Second Macedonian War, 196 BC, 283, 287, 348 treaty of peace ending the Social War (“Peace of Naupactus”), 79–83, 90, 91, 116

tripolarity (political science concept), definition of, 21; Hellenistic, 21, 25, 126, 128, 179, 181, 182, 183, 200, 209, 227, 267, 273, 274, 337, 340; artificially restored by Rome, 274–5, 340, 355; instability of, as Hellenistic interstate structure, 275, 337 (and passim)

Triteuta, mother of Pinnes (s.v.), 58

Tunis (Punic city), appeal to Rome for aid vs. Carthage rejected, 245

Tyche (Fortune), 26 n. 72; importance in Polybius, 134–7, 221–4, 270 n. 127; as avenger of Justice vs. Philip V and Antiochus III, 134–5, 137, 221, 223; and fall of Macedonian power, 223–4; as patroness of rise of Roman power, 224

“uncertainty principle” (political science concept), 242 and n. 39; and war, 242, 265–6 and n. 118; Hellenistic intensity of, 242–3; and “worst-case scenario” (s.v.), 243 n. 43, 244; and Second Macedonian War (s.v.), 243–4, 282 n. 32, 304; and Antiochene War, 327 and n. 77 unequal friendship (and Roman society), 44, 51, 54, 69, 300, 301–2, 305, 330 unequal influence of great states, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377; vs. empire, 377, 381 see also asymmetry of power; hierarchy of states unipolarity (political science concept), 8, 23, 26, 27, 128, 182, 275, 307, 308, 340, 341, unipolarity (cont’d)

342, 357, 375, 376, 377, 378; reversibility of, 336 and n. 110, 343, 356, 357 and nn. 61 and 62, 361 n. 77, cf. the “unipolar moment,” 356 n. 57; and creation of relative peace, 350 and n. 34, 358 and n. 66; maintenance dependent on human decision-making, 357 n. 60; and goal of stability, 361; and avoiding counterbalancing (s.v.), 361–5; and “offshore balancing,” 363–4, 366; and unipolar state’s freedom of action, 364 and n. 89; geographical proximity as a factor in, 364 and n. 90; self-restraint as a factor in, 363–4, 366 nn. 96 and 97; ambiguities of, 367, 368, 380, 381, and Chapter 9, passim; contrasted with hegemony, dominion, and/or empire, 349, 375; not a euphemism for empire, 379; Roman, after 188 bc, 336, 340–1, 342, 361, 378, and Chapter 9, passim; Roman achievement in maintenance of, 357, 361 and n. 77; and Greek libertas, 370–1; post-Cold War American, 357 and n. 60, cf. 361 n. 77

P. Valerius Flaccus, commander in Adriatic, 215 bc, 85

M. Valerius Laevinus (consul 210), commander in Adriatic after 215 bc, 85, 87, 263 n. 107; defeats Philip V, 214 bc, 86; and treaty of alliance with Aetolians, 88, 91, 263 n. 107; and limited Roman goals in First Macedonian War, 115; commander in Adriatic, 201 bc, 262–3

Veyne, P. (modern scholar), 237, 247

P. Villius Tappulus (consul 199 bc), commander in Greece, late 199 bc, 279; faces mutiny, 279; on commission from Senate to formalize peace in Greece, 196 bc, 283 n. 33, 311 n. 14; fears power of Antiochus III, 381 and n. 42; and Roman demands on Antiochus III, 193 bc, 320–1; fails to keep Demetrias (s.v.) from the Aetolians, 192 bc, 323

Walbank, F. W. (modern scholar), 81, 133, 239, 140, 152, 192, 222

Walt, S. (political scientist), and formation of alliances, 218, 220

Waltz, K. (political scientist), 9, 17, 25, 127, 219, 265, 269, 340, 342, 352, 356, 357

war as “normal” under anarchy, 9–10, 19, 20, 127

Warrior, V. (modern scholar), 130

Watson, A. (political scientist), 374, 376, 379

Wiemer, H.-U. (modern scholar), 191

Will, E. (modern scholar), 153

Wohlfforth, W. (political scientist), 197, 358

Wörre, M. (modern scholar), 161
“worst-case scenario” (political science concept), 13–14, 241–2, 264

Zacynthus (Greek island polity), given to Amynander (s.v.) by Philip V, 115

Zama, battle of, 202 BC, Hannibal defeated by Scipio Africanus at, 124, 153, 224 n. 156; Macedonian troops allegedly at, 124, 251 n. 71

Zeno (Rhodian historical writer), source for Polybius, 174; criticized by Polybius for bias and exaggeration, 174–6; and Pact Between the Kings, 174–5

Zeuxis (Seleucid general), viceroy in Asia Minor for Antiochus III, 129, 168, 171–2; and the Pact Between the Kings, 129–30, 168–78; seizes Amyzon (s.v.), 154–5; and supplies for armies of Philip V, 168, 178; and Euromus (s.v.), 170–1, 173; and Heracleia-by-Latmus (s.v.), 171, 173; freedom in decision-making of, 171, 173