CONTENTS

Contributors viii

Introduction: men's health in context 1
Alex Broom and Philip Tovey
Toward a new men's health 3
Outline of the book 5

1 Theorising masculinity and men's health 9
Will Courtenay
Introduction 9
Health and the social construction of gender 11
Theorising masculinity in the context of health 13
Conclusion 26

2 Positioning prostate cancer as the problematic third testicle 33
John L. Oliffe
Introduction 33
Moving into prostate cancer 36
Moving through prostate cancer 42
Moving out from prostate cancer 50
Conclusion 53

3 Men, masculinity and help-seeking behaviour 63
Paul M. Galdas
Introduction 63
Are men more reluctant to seek help than women, or is it just a myth? 64
Gender role socialisation and help-seeking behaviour 67
Help-seeking vis-à-vis the social construction of hegemonic masculinity 70
Masculinities, identity and help-seeking behaviour 73
Conclusion 77
4 Gender and psychosocial adaptation after a coronary event: a relational analysis 83
Don Sabo and Julia Hall
Introduction 83
Method 86
Living in denial 87
Coping with diagnosis, treatment and recovery 90
Reconstructing gender identity during extended recovery 91
Discussion 99
Conclusion 104

5 Spectacular risk, public health and the technological mediation of the sexual practices of gay men 107
Mark Davis
Introduction 107
Spectacular risk and public health 109
Measuring and explaining risky behaviour 112
Technologically mediated sexual cultures 114
Public health after ‘barebacking’? 116
Conclusion 120

6 Young men, masculinity and alcohol 126
Richard de Visser
Introduction 126
Young men’s alcohol consumption 126
Influences on young men’s drinking 128
The importance of masculinity 129
Recent qualitative research 132
Quantitative analysis: beliefs and behaviour 137
Conclusion 139

7 Men’s mental health 145
Elianne Riska
Introduction 145
Rates of mental disorders 146
The social-constructionist perspective 149
Gender portrayals in advertising of psychotropic drugs 151
Over- and underachievement as a male mental health syndrome 154
Men, warfare and mental health 156
Conclusion 158
8 Sport, health and steroids: paradox, contradiction or ethical self-formation? 163
   Helen Keane
   Introduction 163
   Sport and health as paradox 164
   From paradox to moral and ethical performance 167
   Bodybuilding as ethical practice and performance 169
   Physical growth and personal transformation in bodybuilding 171
   Dedication and the use of time 173
   Health as distinction 176
   Conclusion 178

9 Racialised masculinities and the health of immigrant and refugee men 182
   Bob Pease
   Introduction 182
   The new men’s health 183
   The health disparities literature in relation to race and ethnicity 186
   Marginalised masculinities and men’s health 188
   Immigrant and refugee men in Australia 190
   The social context of immigrant and refugee men’s health 192
   Gender issues facing immigrant and refugee men 194
   Conclusion 196

10 Future research agenda in men’s health 202
    Alan Petersen
    Introduction 202
    Some guiding assumptions in research 203
    Dualistic thought 204
    The dominance of biomedical conceptions of health 206
    Developing new perspectives on men’s health and illness 208

Index 215