Contents

About the authors xi

1 Mentoring and supervision and other facilitative relationships 1
   Ian Scott and Jenny Spouse
   Introduction 1
   Exploring the role of the practitioner teacher
      Mentor 1
      Supervisor 2
      Coach 3
   Apprenticeship and its relationship to mentorship and supervision 4
   Why learning facilitators are important 9
   What about the learner perspective? 12
   Attributes and knowledge for the learning and teaching role
      The workplace and learning 13
   Summary 16

2 Personal and professional aspects of supervising others 17
   Jenny Spouse
   Introduction 17
   Creating a learning partnership: ways in which relationships between learner and facilitator enhance learning 17
      Being a newcomer 17
      Establishing the relationship 19
   Professional boundaries including duty of care, professional accountability and educational responsibility 20
      Duty of care 20
      Educational responsibility 24
      Professional accountability 28
   Learners’ perspective on supportive relationships 30
   Models of mentoring/supervision
      One-to-one mentoring 31
      Team mentoring 32
      Peer mentorship 33
Supporting learners with sensory impairment 90
Supporting learners with mental-health needs 92
Summary 94

6 Facilitating professional development 96
Jenny Spouse

Introduction 96
What learners want to know 97
Learning to relate to patients and their carers 98
Developing technical knowledge 100
  Explaining and exploring using the Model of Practical Skill Performance 103
  Legitimate peripheral participation 104
  Explaining and exploring social theories of learning 106
Learning to bundle practice activities together 110
Developing craft knowledge 113
Managing personal feelings 114
Developing the essence of professional practice: therapeutic action – caring comportment 116
Working in a community of practice 117
  Exploring and explaining the value of being welcomed to an unfamiliar social environment 120
Summary 122

7 Reporting on progress: assessing performance and keeping evidence 123
Ian Scott

Introduction 123
Assessing and assessment 123
Types of assessment 124
  Formative assessment 124
  Summative assessment 125
Informal and formal assessment 126
Continuous assessment 126
Some assessment principles 127
Learning outcome 133
Doing the assessing 134
  Pre-practice assessment: assessment through simulation 136
  Pre-practice assessment: using reflection and analysis 138
  Pre-practice assessment: discussion of practice prior to practice 139
  Pre-practice assessment: case studies 140
  Pre-practice assessment: challenge scenarios 141
  Pre-practice assessment: witness testimonials 142
Assessments during practice: direct observation 143
Using an assessment tool 143
Keeping records 146
  Assessment during practice: by patients, users and clients 147
  Assessments during practice: direct observation of group activities 148
  Assessments during practice: discussion of practice as it occurs 148
  Assessment after practice: reflective analyses or commentaries 149
  Assessment after practice debrief with mentor 150
  Self-assessment 151
Role of an assessment strategy 153
  Failing learners 154
  Improving your assessment skills 155
Summary 156

8 Giving feedback and documenting progress 157
    Ian Scott

  Introduction 157
  Feedback: some basics from theory 158
    Feedback and systems 158
  Feedback in practice 160
  Responses to your feedback 163
    Giving feedback some general guidance 163
    Suggestions for successful feedback: some dos and don’ts 164
    Models for giving feedback 165
  Documents 171
    Professional implications of documented records 172
  Improving your feedback 173
  Summary 174

9 Inquiring into personal professional practice 175
    Ian Scott

  Introduction 175
  Inquiring into personal professional practice 175
  What is action inquiry? 176
    Using action inquiry in everyday practice 177
  Role of reflection in action inquiry 178
    What is reflection? 178
  Using other models of reflective practice 183
  Role of empirical evidence in action inquiry 186
    Sources of empirical data 186
  Group approaches to action inquiry 190
    Action learning sets 191
    Appreciative inquiry 192
  Summary 193
10 Personal and professional development planning 194
Ian Scott

Introduction 194
Personal and professional development planning 194
Defining professional development 195
Professional development planning and appraisal systems 195
Differences in purpose 196
Goal setting 196
Finding a vision of you 197
Other visioning techniques 198
Importance of values 200
Where are you now? 200
Goal setting 201
Professional recognition as a clinical educator 202
Becoming a mentor, facilitator or supervisor 203
Priority setting 204
Importance 204
Challenging the barriers 206
Recording your goals 207
Professional development opportunities 208
Recording your achievements 210
Closing the circle: finding your own mentor/facilitator 212
Questions to use when choosing a mentor/facilitator 212
Summary 213

References 214
Index 223