Contents

About the Contributors vii
Preface xiii
Acknowledgements xv

Introduction 1
Jeff Adams, Matt Cochrane and Linda Dunne

Part I  New Voices: Beginning Researchers Apply Theory 11
1 Learning and Maintaining Professional Expertise Within a Multi-Professional Critical Care Team 15
   Jill Cochrane
2 The ‘Q’ Standards and Initial Teacher Training: The Discursive Formation of Teachers and their Trainers 31
   Paul Bartle
3 Power and Status Theories in Teachers’ Professional Development 47
   Karen Castle
4 The Process of Technology Learning: Applying Bruner’s Theory on Play, Discovery and Cultural Learning to the Acquisition of ICT Capability 61
   Paula Beer

Part II Emergent Voices: Accounts by Researchers Becoming Familiar with the Use of Theory 75
5 Teachers’ Professional Identity: Theoretical Perspectives on Workplace Learning in the Teaching Context 81
   Rob Foster
Children’s University Aspirations and the Effects of Cultural and Social Capital
Matt Cochrane

Finding Theory Through Collaborative Research
Clare Woolhouse

How Applying a Discourse-Based Approach to Investigate Inclusion Changed a Research Project and a Way of Thinking
Linda Dunne

Part III Voices of Experience: Accounts by Researchers Versed in the Use of Theory

Should I be Singing This, and if So, How High?: Theoretical Approaches to Boyhood and Masculinity
Martin Ashley

Theorizing from Bricolage: Researching Collaboration in Art and Design Education
Madeleine Sclater

Constructivism and the Pedagogy of Teacher Education: Reflections on Practice
Graham Rogers

Developing Professional Practice through Action Research: Theory-Generative Approaches in Practitioner Research
Mary McAteer

Art Practice as Education Research
Jeff Adams

Postscript
Jeff Adams, Matt Cochrane and Linda Dunne

Index