Contents

Dedication vii
About the Editors ix
Contributors xi
Preface xv

Part I: Introduction

1 Introduction to critical perspectives in occupational science 3
   Clare Hocking and Gail E. Whiteford

2 What would Paulo Freire think of occupational science? 8
   Lilian Magalhães

Part II: Understanding occupation

3 Transactionalism: Occupational science and the pragmatic attitude 23
   Malcolm P. Cutchin and Virginia A. Dickie

4 Understanding the discursive development of occupation: Historico-political perspectives 38
   Sarah Kantartzis and Matthew Molineux

5 Occupations through the looking glass: Reflecting on occupational scientists’ ontological assumptions 54
   Clare Hocking
Part III: Ways of knowing occupation

6  Knowledge paradigms in occupational science: Pluralistic perspectives
   Elizabeth Anne Kinsella
   69

7  Occupation and ideology
   Ben Sellar
   86

8  Governing through occupation: Shaping expectations and possibilities
   Debbie Laliberte Rudman
   100

9  When occupation goes ‘wrong’: A critical reflection on risk discourses and their relevance in shaping occupation
   Silke Dennhardt and Debbie Laliberte Rudman
   117

Part IV: Ways of doing in occupational science

10  The case for multiple research methodologies
    Valerie A. Wright-St Clair
    137

11  Occupational choice: The significance of socio-economic and political factors
    Roshan Galvaan
    152

12  The International Society for Occupational Science: A critique of its role in facilitating the development of occupational science through international networks and intercultural dialogue
    Alison Wicks
    163

Part V: Visioning a way forward

13  Occupation, inclusion and participation
    Gail E. Whiteford and Robert B. Pereira
    187

Index
209