Index

A
Administrator: as insightful observer, 37; involvement, and confusion about purpose of TDO, 37; role in TDO at Hamilton High School (Chandler, AZ), 128; role of, 36–37; shifting primary learning from, 34; and TDO, 103
After-school time, and TDO, 102
Allen, J., 46
Allocation of resources, 101–104; funding, 104; personnel, 103; time, 102–103
Argyris, C., 88
Art and science of teaching framework, 140
Art and Science of Teaching, The (Marzano), 46

B
Ball, D. L., 16, 22, 60
Ballantyne, K. G., 14, 23
Before-school time, and TDO, 102
Blind spots, 44
Bolton, F., 33–34
Buy-in, professional development (PD), lack of, 14–15

C
Casteel, C. J., 14, 15
City, E., 60, 88, 89
Claire, N., 17
Classroom: contexts, 15–16; doors, opening from the inside, 27–28; particulars, 16
Classroom-based professional development, 16
Classroom data, tracking, 67–68, 70
Classroom observation, data, compared to student assessment data, 28; and transformed teaching, 33
Clemens, T., 17
Cohen, D., 60
Cohen, D. K., 16, 22
Collaboration, 41, 144; leveraging, 113–114; and schoolwide model, 98–99
Commitment to enhancing student learning, 144
Common Core State Standards (CCSS) standards, 28, 29, 104, 107
Common planning time: finding, 52; and TDO, 102
Community groups, and TDO implementation, 104
Counting data collection methods, 65–67, 70, 152; ability to illustrate teaching/learning within a pattern, lack of, 66; examples of, 65

D
Darling-Hammond, L., 60
Data collection, 2, 4, 26; counting methods, 65–67, 70; determining who collects the data, 49–51; for improvement, 27–28; losing focus on, 72; making meaning, 73–74; methods of, 62–69, 70, 152; multiple methods, 69; scripting methods, 63–64, 70; selecting a method of, 47–49; student data vs. teacher data, 62–63; tracking methods, 67–68, 70
Data collection template, 55
Deliberate practice, 17
DePrez, F., 126–141
Diamond, L., 46
Dichter, A., 78, 88
Disposition of observed teacher, 4
DuFour, R., 23

E
Eaker, R., 23
Education Direction, 4
Educational support staff, and TDO, 103
Elmore, R., 16, 17, 60, 88, 89
English-language learners, addressing needs of, 29
Entry points, 94–95, 99, 154
Ericsson, K. A., 17

F
Facilitation: adopting the role of facilitator, 116; model, 115–116
Fiarman, E., 88, 89
Fiarman, S., 60
First observation, 1–4
Focus question, 43, 151; goal of, 44; identifying, 43–47; superficial, choosing, 56
Formative data, compared to summative data, 28
Frontier, T., 107, 140
Funding: allocation of, for TDO, 104; summoning more than available, 105

159
Index

G
Goal: of focus question, 44; improvement goals, and TDO, 104; of observation, 150; of TDO, 22
Gower, R., 46
Gutlohn, L., 46

H
Haley-Speca, M. A., 46
Hamilton High School (Chandler, AZ) case study, 125–141; administrator role in TDO, 128; building size, 126; focus, 128; implementation plan, 128–130; Marzano’s art and science of teaching framework, 140; plan structure, 128; planning, 126–130; principal, 126; school background, 126; snapshot of instruction, 133; student results after two years of TDO implementation, 139–141; students, number of, 126; TDO schedule, 129; teaching faculty, number of, 126; training in TDO, 128–129; tuning protocol, 132; year 1 evaluation data, 134; year 1 implementation, 130–131; year 1 TDO implementation calendar, 129; year 2 evaluation data, 137; year 2 implementation, 135–139; year 2 implementation calendar, 136
Higher grade level teachers, as peer observers, 50
Higher order thinking skills, development of, 29
Honig, B., 46
Hunter, M., 46

I
Implementation: communicating TDO as a task, 122; funds, and TDO implementation, 104; neglecting to leverage leadership, 122; planning for, 94–104; taking the lead, 121
Implementation: practiced in isolation, 17–18; refining/improving, 29
Improvement: data collection for, 27–28; failing to open yourself up to, 57
Improvement-oriented conversations: engaging in, 116–119; “land of nice,” leaving, 117–118; protocols, using, 119; roles, managing, 119; setting the tone, 117
Individual TDO model, 95–97, 100
Instruction: best way to examine, 60; examining the relationship between student learning and, 29; as mental capacity endeavor, 5
Instructional core, 60–61

J
Jackson, R., 128
Juxtaposing TDO against existing observation and evaluation models, 30

K
Kickoff strategy, 110
Krampe, R. T., 17

L
Ladder of interference, climbing too quickly, 89
“Land of nice”: leaving, 117–118; staying in, 88–89
Lead teachers, 56–57, 95; and clarification of observers’ roles, 31; and entry, 105; and individual model, 95; role of, 34–35; setting the tone, 117; structuring opportunities for, 34; supporting in their pivotal role, 34
Learner disposition: behavior in teachers with, 109–110; defined, 109; helping teachers with, 108–109
Learning in the classroom, 12
Lesson context, presenting to observers, 42–43
Lemov, D., 46
Leveraging resources, 101–104
Livingston, D., 107, 140
Logistics, 154–155; common missteps, 105–106; entry, making too big a fuss with, 105; entry points, 94–95, 99, 154; implementation, planning for, 94–104; individual model, 95–97, 100; ironing out, 52; leaping before looking, 105–106; resource allocation, 101–104; schoolwide model, 98–99, 101; summoning more time/money than available, 105; team model, 97–98, 100
Lower grade level teachers, as peer observers, 50
Lunch time, and TDO, 102

M
Making meaning, 73–74, 87–88
Many, T., 23
Marzano, R., 46, 107, 140
Mastery Teaching (Hunter), 46
McDonald, E., 78, 88
McDonald, J., 78, 88
“Model classroom” observation process, mistake of approaching TDO as, 57
Model facilitation, 115–116
Modeling the process, as a strategy, 110–111
Mohr, N., 78, 88
Money, summoning more than available, 105

N
National Commission on Teaching and America’s Future, 12
New strategies: implementation, practiced in isolation, 17–18; lack of opportunities to practice/refine, 16–17
New teachers, as peer observers, 50
Objectivity, sacrificing to a personal lens, 73

Observation, 59–74, 152–153; context for preparing for, 33; and data collection, 2, 4; data collection methods of, 62–69; debriefing of, 3, 4; and disposition of observed teacher, 4; of implementation of a strategy, 3; instructional core, 60–61; main ingredient, 4; objectivity, sacrificing to a personal lens, 73; purpose of, 59–60

Observation period, 32

Observed teacher: and focus of the observation, 33; as leader of the observation, 27

Observers: as data collectors, 35, 59; role of, 35–36, 69–71

Parent groups, and TDO implementation, 104

Passive recipients, teachers’ role as, 13–14

Patterns, and tracking data collection methods, 68

Pedagogical knowledge, building, 119–120

Peers, inviting to collect data, 49–51

Personnel, allocation of, for TDO, 103

Planning: facilitating, 114–115; and TDO success, 56

PLCs, See Professional learning communities (PLCs)

Postobservation debriefing, 32, 75–90, 153–154; achieving the objectives of, 77; committing to specific instructional refinements, 85–87; common missteps, 88–90; components of, 81; discussing the data collected, 82–84; discussion without commitments to action, 89; focusing on the evidence, 78–79; ladder of interference, climbing too quickly, 89; “land of nice,” staying in, 88–89; leading, 77–80; making meaning of the data, 87–88; next steps, identifying, 80; observed teacher’s reflection on data collected, 84–85; observers who fail to understand their role, 35–36; protocol, 77–78, 80–88; purpose of, 76; relationship between teaching and learning, failure to discuss, 90; time, using effectively, 78–79

Preobservation meeting, 32, 41–57, 151–152; in action, 53–56; approaching TDO as model classroom observation process, 57; common missteps, 56–57; components of, 42–43; data collection template, 55; driving the TDO process, 56–57; focus question, 43–47, 56, 151; importance of, 42; neglecting to prepare for, 56; opening yourself up to feedback/learning, 57; preparing for, 43–52; protocol for, 53; purpose of, 42–43; superficial focus question, choosing, 56

Primary learning, shifting from administrator to observed teacher, 34

Primary learning value, for observed teacher, 33

Principals: collaboration, leveraging, 113–114; communicating TDO as a task, 122; cultivating a learner disposition among teachers, 108; implementing/sustaining TDO, 107–123, 155–156; improvement-oriented conversations, engaging in, 116–119; model facilitation, 115–116; neglecting to leverage leadership, 122; and observation, 36; pedagogical knowledge, building, 119–120; planning, facilitating, 114–115; and schoolwide entry point, 99; structuring opportunities for lead teachers, 34; taking the lead, 121; TDO success, 30; using data, 112–113

Professional development (PD): failure of, 13; funds, and TDO implementation, 104; lack of buy-in, 14–15; new strategies, lack of opportunities to practice/refine, 16–17; and passive recipients, 14; for professional learning, 11–24; removed from the classroom, 16; shift in focus, 14; state of, 13–18; and transparent teacher, 4–5

Professional learning communities (PLCs), 23–24; collaboration/collective inquiry, 156; collaboratively examining/refining implementation of identified interventions, 29, commonalities between TDO and, 145; creating to implement TDO, 147; grouping differently for TDO, 145–146; improving by implementing TDO, 145; improving the functioning of, 146; premise of, 23; scenarios, 145–147; and TDO, 143–147, 156

Protocol: postobservation debriefing, 77–78, 80–88; structure of, 78; using in improvement-oriented conversations, 119

Purpose, need for, 26

Reinforcements, 60

Research-based teaching and learning strategies, resources for, 46

Resource allocation, 101–104; funding, 104; personnel, 103; time, 102–103

Richardson, M. O., 27

Saphier, J., 46

Scheduling, 52

School background, Hamilton High School, 126

School improvement plan funds, and TDO implementation, 104

Schoolwide TDO model, 98–99, 101

Scripting data collection methods, 63–64, 70, 152; challenges presented by, 64; examples of, 64

Seating charts, as source of data, 68
Index

Skillful Teacher, The (Saphier/Haley-Speca/Gower), 46
Student data vs. teacher data, 62–63
Student-observer interactions, 71
Substitute teachers, and TDO, 103
Summative data, compared to formative data, 28
Sykes, G., 60

T
Taking charge, 5
Teacher-driven observation (TDO), See Teacher-driven observation (TDO)
Teach Like a Champion (Lemov), 46
Teacher data vs. student data, 62–63
Teacher-driven observation (TDO), 5, 18–20, 19, 32, 149–150; beneficial nature of, 51; collaborative opportunities to practice/refine strategies, 20; common observation models vs., 19; communicating the purpose of, 30–33; communication in the early stages of, 30–31; culmination of learning within, 85; cultural change, 22–24; data collection, 26; defined, 18–20, 41–42, 150; differences between other observation models and, 19–20; end goal of, 22; enhancing existing work using, 29; implementation of, 20–21, 107–123; initiating, 24; learning from your peers through, 51; lining with other professional development opportunities, 111–112; models for, 98–101; observation period, 32; new teacher evaluation model, 29; postobservation debriefing, 32; preobservation meeting, 32; preparing for, 25–37, 150–151; primary learning value for the observed teacher, 19–21; process, 31–33; as process for leading learning, 20; and professional learning communities (PLCs), 23–24; and professional learning in the classroom context, 20; purpose of, 26–30; resource allocation, 101–104; roles, 33–37; success of, 56; sustaining, 107–123; taking charge of professional learning through data collection, 22
Teachers: lead, 105, 117; and learner disposition, 108–110; role as passive recipients, 13–14; and student achievement, 12; substitute, and TDO, 103
Teaching Reading Sourcebook (Honig/Diamond/Gutlohn), 46
Team TDO model, 97–98, 100
Teitel, L., 60, 88, 89
Time: allocation of, for TDO, 102–103; summoning more than available, 105
Title I, and TDO implementation, 104
Tools for Teaching Content Literacy (Allen), 46
Tracking data collection methods, 67–68, 70, 152; examples of, 67–68; and patterns, 68
Transcriptions, 63–64
Transfer from training to the classroom, 15–16
Transparent teacher, See also Observation;
Teacher-driven observation (TDO): becoming through TDO, 19; clarification of purpose/process/roles of TDO, 26, 43; and professional development, 6
Transparent teachers, as peer observers, 51

U
Understanding, and capability, 30

V
Veteran teachers, as peer observers, 50–51

W
Wagner, A., 14, 15
Workshops, and professional development, 17

Y
Year 1 evaluation data (Hamilton High School), 134
Year 1 implementation (Hamilton High School), 130–131
Year 1 TDO implementation calendar (Hamilton High School), 129
Year 2 evaluation data (Hamilton High School), 137
Year 2 implementation calendar (Hamilton High School), 136
Year 2 implementation (Hamilton High School), 135–139