Contents

Notes on Contributors ix
Series Editor’s Preface xiii

1 Introduction 1
   Johann P. Arnason

Part I Expansion and Transformation 37

2 From City-State to Empire: Rome in Comparative Perspective 39
   Kurt A. Raaflaub

3 The Transition from Republic to Principate: Loss of Legitimacy, Revolution, and Acceptance 67
   Egon Flaig

4 Strong and Weak Regimes: Comparing the Roman Principate and the Medieval Crown of Aragon 85
   D. A. Cohen and J. E. Lendon

Part II Late Antiquity: Division, Transformation, and Continuity 111

5 The Background to the Third-Century Crisis of the Roman Empire 113
   Adam Ziolkowski

6 The End of Sacrifice: Religious Mutations of Late Antiquity 134
   Guy G. Stroumsa

7 Contextualizing Late Antiquity: The First Millennium 148
   Garth Fowden

Part III Destinies of the Roman Legacy 177

8 The Franks: Rome’s Heirs in the West 179
   Matthias Becher
9 The End of Rome? The Transformation of the Eastern Empire in the Seventh and Eighth Centuries CE
  John Haldon

10 The First Islamic Empire
  Chase F. Robinson

Part IV Comparative Perspectives

11 From City-State to Empire: The Case of Assyria
  Mario Liverani

12 China’s Early Empires: The Authority and Means of Government
  Michael Loewe

13 The Legs of the Throne: Kings, Elites, and Subjects in Sasanian Iran
  Scott McDonough

14 The King of Kings: Universal Hegemony, Imperial Power, and a New Comparative History of Rome
  Peter Fibiger Bang

Part V Conceptual and Theoretical Reflections

15 The Roman Phenomenon: State, Empire, and Civilization
  Johann P. Arnason

16 Roman–European Continuities: Conceptual and Historical Questions
  Peter Wagner

General Index
Index of Sources (selective)