Contents

Acknowledgments  ix

Introduction  1

1 A Philosophical Mind
   1.1 A Brief Biography  9
   1.2 Lewis as a Philosopher  18
   1.3 Lewis and Common Sense  21
   1.4 Reading Lewis  24
   1.5 What Is to Come  25

2 The Thinking, Reasoning, and Sensing Soul
   2.1 The Aboutness of Thought  27
   2.2 Reasoning and the Falsity of Naturalism  30
   2.3 A Possible Quibble  43
   2.4 Caveat: Bulverism  44
   2.5 First- and Third-Person Points of View  46
   2.6 The Soul  48
   2.7 Thought, Image, and the Immaterial  53
   2.8 Pleasurable Reason  55

3 The Meaning of Life
   3.1 Setting the Stage  60
   3.2 The Purpose of Life  64
   3.3 What Makes Life Worth Living  67
   3.4 Pain, Pleasure, and Happiness  68
   3.5 An Alternative Rejected  69
   3.6 Space, Time, and Meaning  72
   3.7 Another Alternative Rejected  76
   3.8 Joy or Sehnsucht  78
   3.9 Things Making Sense  84

4 Morality
   4.1 More Than Morality  88
   4.2 Morality, Pleasure, and Happiness  90
4.3 Pride 95
4.4 Moral Value and Purpose for Acting 98
4.5 Euthyphro's Dilemma 102
4.6 Natural Law 104
4.7 Heaven Without Morality 109
4.8 Naturalism and Morality 111
4.9 Naturalism and Making Sense of Things 115
4.10 Naturalism, Science, and Certitude 117

5 Free Choice and Miracles 120
5.1 Lewis the Supernaturalist 120
5.2 Choice 122
5.3 The Nature of Freedom 124
5.4 The "Ifyness" of Nature 125
5.5 Arguments Against Mental-to-Physical Causation 127
5.6 The Relevance of the Subnatural 136
5.7 Lewis as a Causal Interactionist 137
5.8 "Miracles" and Miracles 140

6 The Grand Miracle, Death to Self, and Myth 143
6.1 Incarnation 143
6.2 The Seed Must Die 146
6.3 The Paradox of Hedonism 148
6.4 Pleasure and Passion 153
6.5 Myth 154

7 Belief in God 159
7.1 Reason and Religion 159
7.2 Supernaturalism versus Theistic Supernaturalism 160
7.3 From Self to God 161
7.4 Further Considerations 168
7.5 The Argument from Desire 172

8 The Problem of Evil 180
8.1 Statement of the Problem 180
8.2 Human Beings and Evil 182
8.3 The Irrelevance of Possible Worlds 185
8.4 Lewis's View of the Fall 188
8.5 Imaginative Metaphysics and Evolution 189
8.6 Evil Before the Existence of Human Beings 192
8.7 Evil and Beasts 192
8.8 Hell 196

9 An Enduring Mind 199

Bibliography 202
Index 210