CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii
INTRODUCTION: From Breakdown to Breakthrough 1
Five Practices of Emotionally and Socially Engaged Ecoliteracy 12

SECTION ONE: STORIES FROM THE FIELD

PART ONE STANDING STRONG ON A COAL MOUNTAIN 21

1 Lessons from a Coal Miner’s Daughter 23
   Teri Blanton and Wendell Berry, Kentucky
   How to Mine a Mountain 25
   Deconstructing the Meaning of “Cheap” 26
   Why Can’t We Go Out and Play, Daddy? 30

2 Taking a Power Trip 35
   Spartanburg Day School, South Carolina
   Bringing “The Ecosphere” Down to Earth 36
   What’s My Connection? 40
   The Last Mountain 41

PART TWO FROM ANGER TO ACTION IN OIL COUNTRY 43

3 The Heart of the Caribou 45
   Sarah James, Arctic Village, Alaska
   Top Ten Oil Producers 48
   United States Is Number One in Oil Consumption 53

4 Beyond Whining 55
   Kids Rethink New Orleans Schools
   The World’s Most Important Energy Source 59
   Classroom Exercise: Where’s the Oil? 62
PART THREE  SHARED WATER: MOVING BEYOND BOUNDARIES  63

5  Water Wars and Peace  65
   Aaron Wolf, Mediator and Oregon State University Professor
   The Biggest (Hidden) Use of Water  67
   Ocean Water in a Glass?  68
   The Resilience of Water  71

6  From Restoration to Resilience  77
   Students and Teachers Restoring a Watershed, Northern California
   Freshwater Blues  81
   The Rise of Dead Zones  82
   The New Face of Water Pollution  84

PART FOUR  NOURISHING COMMUNITIES WITH FOOD  87

7  Changing a Food System, One Seed at a Time  89
   La Semilla Food Center, Anthony, New Mexico
   How to Feed Nine Billion  92
   Test Your “Food IQ”  94

8  Forging the Food Justice Path  99
   Tony Smith, Superintendent of Schools, Oakland, California
   The Rise of School Food Reform  100
   The Curriculum Connection  105
   Rethinking School Lunch  106

SECTION TWO: PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT STRATEGIES  111

9  Cultivating Ecoliterate Learning Communities  113
   Guidelines for Engaging Colleagues
   Using Circles to Cultivate Deep Listening  118
   Transformation in the Classroom  120

10  Reflection and Practice  123
   Conversation Strategies for Getting Started
   Going on a Virtual Dive  127
   Professional Development Sample Agendas  130

CONCLUSION: Hands-On Hope  133
Notes  135
Resources  155
Index  163
The Center for Ecoliteracy  171
The Authors  173

Contents
To Wendy Williams,
for her heartfelt insight and perseverance