Part I Principles of Implementation of Change, 1

1 Implementation of change in healthcare: a complex problem, 3
Richard Grol, Michel Wensing
1.1. Introduction, 4
1.2. The implementation problem, 5
1.3. Various approaches to the implementation of improvements in patient care, 8
1.4. What is implementation?, 10
1.5. Which improvements are advisable?, 13
1.6. A systematic approach to “sustainable change”, 14
References, 15

2 Theories on implementation of change in healthcare, 18
Richard Grol, Michel Wensing, Marije Bosch, Marlies Hulscher, Martin Eccles
2.1. Introduction, 19
2.2. Theories on factors related to individual professionals, 21
2.3. Theories on factors related to social interaction and context, 23
2.4. Theories on factors related to the organizational context, 27
2.5. Theories on the influence of economic factors, 33
2.6. Conclusions, 33
References, 36

3 Effective implementation of change in healthcare: a systematic approach, 40
Richard Grol, Michel Wensing
3.1. Elements of effective implementation, 41
3.2. The “Implementation of Change Model”, 45
3.3. Developing a proposal and targets for change, 47
3.4. Assessment of performance, 48
3.5. Analysis of the target group and setting, 48
3.6. Development or selection of improvement strategies, 54
3.7. Development, testing, and execution of an implementation plan, 55
3.8. Sustainable change: integration of change into practice routines, 56
3.9. Evaluation and (possible) adaptations to the plan, 57
3.10. Planning of the implementation process, 58
3.11. Conclusions, 59
References, 60
4 Planning and organizing the change process, 64
   Richard Grol, Mariëlle Ouwens, Hub Wollersheim
   4.1. Introduction, 65
   4.2. A motivated team comprising all relevant expertise, 65
   4.3. Creating a context for change, 67
   4.4. Involving the target group in the plan, 71
   4.5. Leaders and key figures, 72
   4.6. Project management: time schedule and responsibilities, 73
   4.7. Resources and support, 74
   4.8. Conclusions, 74
   References, 74

Part II Guidelines and Innovations, 77

5 Characteristics of successful innovations, 79
   Richard Grol, Michel Wensing
   5.1. Introduction, 79
   5.2. Various types of improvements require various types of c   change proposals, 81
   5.3. Characteristics of innovations that promote implementation, 84
   5.4. Form and presentation, 87
   5.5. Involvement of the target group and local adaption, 88
   5.6. Conclusions, 88
   References, 89

6 Clinical practice guidelines as a tool for improving patient care, 91
   Jako Burgers, Mirrian Smolders, Trudy van der Weijden, David Davis, Richard Grol
   6.1. Introduction, 92
   6.2. Aims of guidelines, 92
   6.3. Potential benefits and limitations of guidelines, 93
   6.4. Development of effective guidelines, 95
   6.5. Quality of guidelines: criteria for effective guidelines, 107
   6.6. International collaboration in guideline development, 109
   6.7. Conclusion, 109
   References, 110

Part III Assessment of Performance, 115

7 Quality and safety of care: the role of indicators, 117
   Jozé Braspenning, Rosella Hermens, Hilly Calsbeek, Gert Westert, Stephen Campbell,
   Richard Grol
   7.1. Introduction, 118
   7.2. Indicators: typology and domains, 120
   7.3. Method to define a set of indicators, 122
   7.4. Selecting or developing a preliminary set of indicators, 122
   7.5. Finding consensus among target users, 123
   7.6. Testing the indicators empirically, 125
   7.7. Create a feedback report, 128
7.8. Use and effect of quality indicators, 129
7.9. Increased focus on outcome indicators, 130
7.10. Conclusion, 131
    References, 131
    Websites, 135

Part IV Problem Analysis, 137

8 Determinants of change, 139
  Michel Wensing, Marije Bosch, Richard Grol
  8.1. Introduction, 140
  8.2. Analysis of stakeholders, 140
  8.3. Determinants of change, 142
  8.4. Subgroups in the target population, 147
  8.5. Conclusions, 148
      References, 148

9 Methods to identify determinants of change in healthcare, 151
  Michel Wensing, Marije Bosch, Richard Grol
  9.1. Introduction, 152
  9.2. Interviews, 152
  9.3. Surveys, 154
  9.4. Observation, 156
  9.5. Data analysis, 158
  9.6. Goals for improvement, 160
  9.7. Conclusions, 162
      References, 162

Part V Strategies for Change, 165

10 Development and selection of strategies for improving patient care, 167
   Richard Grol, Marije Bosch, Michel Wensing
   10.1. Introduction, 168
   10.2. Development of methods to design implementation strategies, 169
   10.3. Selection of implementation strategies, 172
   10.4. Facilitating versus controlling methods, 175
   10.5. Implementation strategies in the different phases of change, 177
   10.6. Subgroups within the target group, 180
   10.7. The effectiveness of different strategies and interventions, 181
   10.8. Conclusions, 182
       References, 183

11 Dissemination of innovations, 185
   Richard Grol, Michel Wensing
   11.1. Introduction, 186
   11.2. Mass media approach, 187
   11.3. The “personal” approach, 190
   11.4. Conclusion, 194
       References, 194
12 Educational strategies, 197
   Michel Wensing, Cornelia Fluit, Richard Grol
   12.1. Introduction, 197
   12.2. Types of educational strategies, 198
   12.3. Effectiveness of education, 200
   12.4. Determinants of the effectiveness of education, 204
   12.5. Discussion and conclusions, 206
       References, 207

13 Feedback and reminders, 210
   Trudy van der Weijden, Michel Wensing, Martin Eccles, Richard Grol
   13.1. Introduction, 211
   13.2. Definitions of feedback and reminders, 213
   13.3. Research into the effects of feedback and reminders, 216
   13.4. Determinants of the effects of feedback and reminders, 216
   13.5. Conclusions, 221
       References, 221

14 Patient-focused strategies, 224
   Marjan Faber, Trudy van der Weijden, Glyn Elwyn, Michel Wensing, Richard Grol
   14.1. Introduction, 225
   14.2. Care seeking behavior, 225
   14.3. Provider selection, 228
   14.4. Active participation, 229
   14.5. Feedback on professional performance and care delivery, 234
   14.6. Conclusions, 235
       References, 236

15 Organizational implementation strategies for change, 240
   Michel Wensing, Miranda Laurant, Mariëlle Ouwens, Hub Wollersheim
   15.1. Introduction, 240
   15.2. Revision of professional roles, 241
   15.3. Enhanced patient care teams, 243
   15.4. Knowledge management (use of information technology), 243
   15.5. Quality management, 245
   15.6. Integrated care, 248
   15.7. Conclusions, 248
       References, 250

16 Patient safety and risk prevention, 254
   Maricke Zegers, Hub Wollersheim, Michel Wensing, Charles Vincent, Richard Grol
   16.1. Introduction, 254
   16.2. Causes of incidents, 256
   16.3. Measuring and analyzing incidents, 256
   16.4. Development and selection of safety interventions, 260
   16.5. Effective interventions to improve safety, 261
   16.6. Conclusions, 265
       References, 265

17 Economic and policy strategies for implementation of change, 269
  Michel Wensing, Martin Eccles, Richard Grol
  17.1. Introduction, 270
  17.2. Financial reimbursement of healthcare providers, 270
  17.3. Pay for performance, 272
  17.4. Financial risk for patients, 273
  17.5. Enhanced transparency of healthcare quality, 274
  17.6. Enhanced competition, 274
  17.7. National policies, 275
  17.8. Conclusions, 276
  References, 276

18 Multifaceted strategies for improvement, 278
  Marlies Hulscher, Michel Wensing, Richard Grol
  18.1. Introduction, 279
  18.2. What is a multifaceted strategy for improvement?, 279
  18.3. Multifaceted strategies: what do they combine?, 279
  18.4. Multifaceted strategies: what works?, 279
  18.5. Multifaceted strategies: does “tailoring” work better?, 282
  18.6. Multifaceted strategies: does “more” work better?, 283
  18.7. Multifaceted strategies: which composition of strategies is effective?, 284
  18.8. Conclusions, 286
  References, 286

Part VI Organization and Evaluation, 289

19 Planning of change implementation, 291
  Richard Grol, Mariëlle Ouwens
  19.1. Introduction, 292
  19.2. Development of the plan according to phases in the change process, 293
  19.3. Planning of activities for different levels of care, 295
  19.4. Planning of activities over time, 296
  19.5. Incorporating the implementation plan into existing activities, 297
  19.6. Testing of the implementation strategies, 298
  19.7. Setting goals for evaluation, 299
  19.8. Integration and embedding of new practice into routines and organization, 300
  19.9. Conclusions, 301
  References, 302

20 Impact of implementation strategies: controlled studies, 304
  Trudy van der Weijden, Martin Eccles, Jeremy Grimshaw, Marion Campbell, Craig Ramsay, Richard Grol
  20.1. Introduction, 305
  20.2. A framework for evaluating implementation strategies, 308
  20.3. Randomized designs, 309
  20.4. Non-randomized designs, 319
  20.5. Conclusions, 321
  References, 321
21 Observational evaluation of implementation strategies, 324
   Michel Wensing, Richard Grol
   21.1. Introduction, 325
   21.2. Designs for observational evaluations, 325
   21.3. Studies with a few large clusters, 326
   21.4. Cohort studies with reference group, 327
   21.5. Cohort studies without reference group, 327
   21.6. Cross-sectional studies, 328
   21.7. Case studies, 329
   21.8. Developmental research, 330
   21.9. Data analysis, 331
   21.10. Conclusions, 331
   References, 331

22 Process evaluation of implementation strategies, 333
   Marlies Hulscher, Miranda Laurant, Richard Grol
   22.1. Introduction, 334
   22.2. Strategy fidelity and effectiveness, 335
   22.3. Process evaluation and implementation strategies, 335
   22.4. What to measure?, 338
   22.5. How to measure?, 344
   22.6. Conclusions, 348
   References, 348

23 Economic evaluation of implementation strategies, 350
   Johan L. Severens, Ties Hoomans, Eddy Adang, Michel Wensing
   23.1. Introduction, 351
   23.2. The basics of economic evaluation, 351
   23.3. Types of economic evaluation, 352
   23.4. Policy cost-effectiveness, 354
   23.5. Framing economic evaluations, 356
   23.6. Cost analysis, 357
   23.7. Sensitivity analysis, modeling, and budget impact, 361
   23.8. Conclusions, 362
