Contents

Part I: Gaining a Knowledge Base about Reading and Learners

1. Examining Literacy in the Twenty-First Century
   OPENING VIGNETTE: Discovering What Makes a Good Reader and a Good Teacher of Readers
   THE GAP: LITERACY PRACTICES IN SCHOOL AND OUTSIDE OF SCHOOL
   PERSPECTIVES ON WHAT IT MEANS TO BE LITERATE
   MODELS OF SCHOOLING THAT IMPACT LITERACY DEVELOPMENT
   Learning Is about Skill Building: Industrial Model
   Investigating a Question: Inquiry Model
   Problematizing the Status Quo: Critical Model
   SIX GUIDING PRINCIPLES FOR TEACHING READING AND WRITING IN THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY
   Principle #1: Literacy Practices Are Socially and Culturally Constructed.
   Principle #2: Literacy Practices Are Purposeful.
   Principle #3: Literacy Practices Contain Ideologies and Values.
   - Autonomous model
   - Ideological model
   Principle #4: Literacy Practices Are Learned through Inquiry.
   Principle #5: Literacy Practices Invite Readers and Writers to Use Their Background Knowledge and Cultural Understandings to Make Sense of Texts.
   Principle #6 Literacy Practices Expand to Include Everyday Texts and Multimodal Texts.
   THE ROLE OF NO CHILD LEFT BEHIND IN LITERACY INSTRUCTION
   Scientifically Based Reading Instruction and the National Reading Panel
   Reading First Initiative
   CREATING A VISION FOR EFFECTIVE LITERACY INSTRUCTION
   IN CLOSING

2. Oral Language Learning in and Out of the Classroom
   OPENING VIGNETTE: My Heart be Beepin’: Ms. Adams Learns From Angie
   ORAL LANGUAGE DEVELOPMENT FROM A SOCIOCRITICAL PERSPECTIVE
   Language Practices Are Dialogic and Evolving
   Language Practices Are Culturally and Socially Situated
   Language Practices Reflect Power and Politics
   VARIATIONS IN ORAL LANGUAGE
   Increase of Multiple Languages in Classroom Settings
   Linguistic Variation within English: Is there a Standard?
   Register
   Dialects
   African American Vernacular or “Ebonics”
   Classroom approaches to issues of dialect
   Language Variation as a Resource, Not a Deficit
   Language Policies: Implications for Teaching Literacy
   CONDITIONS AND MODELS FOR ORAL LANGUAGE ACQUISITION
   Cambourne’s Model of Oral Language Development
   Cambourne’s conditions for oral language development
   Cambourne’s conditions for reading and writing
   Halliday’s Model of Language Acquisition
   Learning language
   Learning about language
Learning through language 48

LANGUAGE CUEING SYSTEMS THAT SUPPORT READING AND WRITING DEVELOPMENT 50

- Graphophonemic: Sounds and Symbols 50
  - Phonemes and phonemic awareness 50
  - Phonetics and phonics 52
- Semantics: The Meaning of Words 53
- Syntactics: The Structure of Language 54
- Pragmatics: Language in Use 55

IN CLOSING 56

3 Getting to Know Students: Developing Culturally Relevant Practices for Reading and Writing 58

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms. Garrity Learns from Bianca 58

EXAMINING CULTURAL DIVERSITY IN CLASSROOM SETTINGS 61

- The Divide between the Teacher’s Culture and Students’ Cultures 61
- Recognizing Differences within English Language Learners 62
- Learning about Home and Community Practices 63
  - Funds of knowledge 64
  - Virtual school bags 65

TEACHING FROM A CULTURALLY RELEVANT PERSPECTIVE 66

- Supporting Linguistically Diverse Learners in Reading and Writing 67
  - Connect students’ background knowledge and personal experiences to literacy events 68
  - Create opportunities for students to meaningfully and authentically apply oral language skills 69
- Encourage students’ primary language and/or code switching during literacy events 70
- Contextualize instruction of language through authentic literature 70
- Documenting students’ home and community literacy practices 72

- Establishing Culturally Relevant Interaction Patterns in Literacy Events 72
  - Read aloud from a teacher-centered perspective 73
  - Read aloud from a student-centered perspective 74

USING EARLY ASSESSMENT TO KNOW YOUR STUDENTS 76

LOOKING ACROSS THE FOUR READING MODELS 108

IN CLOSING 110

4 Theories of Literacy Development 84

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms. Young Herr Discovers the Role of Theory in Creating Curriculum 84

WHAT DOES THEORY HAVE TO DO WITH CURRICULUM BUILDING? 87

- Uncovering your Beliefs about Teaching and Instruction 87

FOUR CLASSROOM PORTRAITS AND FOUR THEORIES OF LITERACY DEVELOPMENT 88

- Robyn Teal’s Classroom: Learning to Read Means Focusing on Skills 88
  - Bottom-up theory of literacy development 91
  - Skills model 91
  - Another glimpse into Ms. Teal’s classroom 92
- Ms. Sharonda Battle’s Classroom: Learning to Read Means Understanding the Meaning of Words 92
  - Top-down theory of literacy development 96
  - Whole language model of literacy development 96
  - Another glimpse into Ms. Battle’s classroom 97
- Mr. Thomas Ruby’s Classroom: Learning to Read Means Learning How to Respond to Text 98
  - Transactional theory of reading 99
  - Reader response model 101
  - Another glimpse into Mr. Ruby’s classroom 102
- Ms. Pauline Fuller’s Classroom: Learning How to Read Means Critically Examining the Text 103
  - Critical theories and critical literacy 104
  - Four-resource model 105
  - Halliday + 107
  - Another glimpse into Ms. Fuller’s classroom 107

LOOKING ACROSS THE FOUR READING MODELS 108

IN CLOSING 110

5 Literacy Programs and Approaches 112

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms. Binns Rethinks Sustained, Silent Reading Time 112

FOUR DECADES OF CHANGE IN READING AND WRITING CURRICULUM 115
Part II: Understanding the Reading Process in Classrooms

6 Entering into the Literacy Landscape: Emergent Readers and Writers 144

OPENING VIGNETTE: Kadin Reads at Home 144

HISTORICAL BEGINNINGS OF EMERGENT LITERACY 146
Reading Readiness 147
Emergent Literacy 148

ORAL LANGUAGE LEARNING: WHAT IT MEANS FOR EMERGENT READING AND WRITING PRACTICES 150
Conditions for Developing Oral Language Skills 150
Conditions to Support Young English Language Learners in Preschool Settings 152
Dimensions of Emergent Literacy 153
Concepts of Texts 154
Concepts of Words 156
Concepts of Letters and Sounds 157
Alphabet knowledge 157
Phonemic awareness 158
Assessing the Dimensions of Emergent Literacy 160

EMERGENT WRITING 161
Inventing and Refining Written Language Forms 161
Emergent Spelling 162
Random marks 162
Prephonemic 163
Early phonemic 163
Letter-naming 163
Transitional 164
Emergent Writing and Meaning Making 165

LITERACY AND TECHNOLOGY IN EARLY LITERACY SETTINGS 166
Concepts of Screen 167
Electronic/Talking Books 168

LITERACY EVENTS AND PRACTICES: PROMOTING EMERGENT READING AND WRITING 169
Noticing Environmental Print 169
Writing Centers 170
Storybook Reading 170
Storybook Reading as a Cultural Practice 171
Sociodramatic Play Settings 172
Language Experience Approach Stories (LEA) and Digital Language Experience Approach (D-LEA) 172

IN CLOSING 176

7 Beginning Readers and Writers 178

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms. Simon's Class Reads
There Was an Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly 178
WHO IS INTERESTED IN ASSESSMENT?
HIGH STAKES FOR PARENTS, TEACHERS, AND SCHOOLS  261

TRADITIONAL ASSESSMENT  262
Standardized and Multiple Choice Tests  262
Informal Reading Inventory and Qualitative Reading Inventory  264

ALTERNATIVE ASSESSMENT PRACTICES  265
Characteristics of Alternative Assessments  265

TYPES OF ALTERNATIVE ASSESSMENT PRACTICES  266
Documentary/Observation  266
  Miscue analysis  267
  Retrospective miscue analysis  267
  Running records  271
  Checklists  272
  Classroom observations and anecdotal records  274
Responsive Listening Assessments  275
  Retellings  276
  Group discussions  276
  Reading and writing conferences  277

GATHERING INFORMATION TO USE IN ASSESSING READERS’ AND WRITERS’ GROWTH IN LITERACY DEVELOPMENT  277
Portfolio Systems  278
  Writing portfolios  278
  Reading portfolios  279

ASSESSMENT PRACTICES ALIGN WITH CODE BREAKING, TEXT MEANING, TEXT USE, AND CRITICAL PRACTICES  279
Code Breaking Assessments  280
Text Participant Assessments  283
Text Use Assessments  286
Critical Practices Assessments  286

IN CLOSING  288

Part III: Refining Effective Instruction

10 Facilitating Meaningful Literature Discussions  290

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms. Wilson’s Fourth Grade Students Talk about The Mouse and the Motorcycle  290

AN INSIDE LOOK: TWO VERY DIFFERENT LITERATURE DISCUSSION GROUPS  292

GOALS FOR LITERATURE DISCUSSIONS  294

HOW READERS MAKE MEANING FROM A TEXT: READER RESPONSE THEORY  295
Readers Bring Their Sociocultural Backgrounds to the Text  295
Readers Transact with the Text  296
  Ms. Hammel’s first and second grade students discuss Tomas and the Library Lady  296
Stance: A Reader’s Attitude and Purpose  298
  The Strategic/Literary Dimension: Is the Text for Information or Enjoyment?  298
  Contextual dimension: Where does the discussion occur?  302
  Ideological dimension: What beliefs does the reader have?  302
Making Stance Visible in Literature Discussions  304

INTERPRETIVE AUTHORITY: HOW STUDENTS REACT TO EACH OTHER’S COMMENTS  308
Teacher-led Discussions  310
Student-led Discussions  310
  The evaluator role in student-led discussions  311
Teacher-led, Student-centered Discussions  312
  Ms. Reiner’s fifth grade students discuss Tomás and the Library Lady  314
Encouraging Readers to Share Interpretive Authority during Literature Discussions  315

SUPPORTING THE READER IN HAVING A FLEXIBLE VIEW OF THE TEXT  317

IN CLOSING  318

11 Reading to Learn: Using Nonfiction and Electronic Media to Support Literacy Development  320

OPENING VIGNETTE: Ms Gallagher and Ms Reiner Invite their Students to Inquire  320

USING INQUIRY-BASED LEARNING ACROSS THE CURRICULUM  322
Key Principles of an Inquiry-based Curriculum  325
Problem Posing  326
Topic Choice  327
Integrating Reading and Writing Strategies  327
Sources of Knowledge and the Teacher’s Role 328

THE ROLE OF NONFICTION IN DEVELOPING READERS AND WRITERS 329
Why Nonfiction Matters 330
Inviting Children to Use Nonfiction for Inquiry-based and Content-area Learning 331
Evaluating Nonfiction Texts 332
Categories of nonfiction texts 333
Concept 333
Identification 333
Procedural 333
Biography 334
Informational storybooks 334

INCORPORATING NONFICTION INTO A READING AND WRITING CURRICULUM 334
Read Informational Texts Aloud 335
Provide Time to Read in Content Areas 336
Pairing Nonfiction with Fiction 337

READING STRATEGIES FOR NONFICTION AND CONTENT AREA READING MATERIAL 337
Code Breaking Strategies for Nonfiction Text 337
Text Participant Strategies for Nonfiction Texts 340
Text Use Strategies for Nonfiction Texts 340
Critical Practices Strategies for Nonfiction Texts 343

NONFICTION TEXTS IN MULTIMODAL ENVIRONMENTS 344
Dimensions of Multimodal Literacy 346
Integrating Electronic Media into Literacy Instruction 346
Linking Electronic Media with Informational Literacy 348
Scaffolding Reading and Writing Strategies with Electronic Media 349

IN CLOSING 350

12 Working With Struggling Readers and Writers 352
OPENING VIGNETTE: Mrs. Laughlin Supports Rakwaun as a Reader and Writer 352

FACTORS THAT CONTRIBUTE TO STRUGGLING READING AND WRITING 355
Cognitive Processing 355
Motivation and Engagement 355
Teacher Beliefs and Attitudes 357

IDENTIFYING STRUGGLING READERS AND WRITERS DURING LITERACY EVENTS 358

INSTRUCTIONAL PRACTICES FOR STRUGGLING READERS AND WRITERS 359
Interest and Background 360
Read Alouds to Extend Comprehension 361
Independent Reading Time 361
Scheduling Easy Reading time to Gain Confidence 363
Scaffolding 364
Comprehension Monitoring Strategies 365

LITERACY REFORM EFFORTS FOR STRUGGLING SCHOOLS 368
Reading Recovery 368
Literacy Collaborative 369
Four Blocks 370
Success for All 371
America’s Choice 372

TEACHING ALL CHILDREN TO LEAD LITERATE LIVES IN THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY 373

IN CLOSING 375

APPENDICES 378
GLOSSARY 398
REFERENCES 403
CHILDREN’S LITERATURE REFERENCES 417
TEXT AND ILLUSTRATION CREDITS 420
PHOTO CREDITS 423
INDEX 425