Index

A³daptive Profile Method® 273–281, 389–444, 685
advantages 420, 421
applications 422
assessment prior to implementation 396–400 assessors 398
company-wide support 400 facilities 398
management support 396–398
number of test requests 398 staff 398–400
assessor screening 400–405
case studies 428–440
audit and improvement process 432–440
body lotions and creams 428–431 constraints 422–426 attrition 426 budget constraints 422–424 lack of support 426
staff limitations 426
time constraints 425–426
disadvantages 420–421
existing programmes 396, 397 future directions 442–444
implementation 400–417
methodology 417–420
panel activities 417–418 pre-project activities 417, 418 product evaluations 419 reporting results 419–420
new programmes 391–396
panel maintenance 421
principles 389–390
statistical analysis 419, 426–428 complex project descriptive data 428 panel performance 427
routine project descriptive data 427 see also comparisons of methods; profile methods acoustic studies, cars 671–672 action standards 144
active ingredients, food and drink products 632–633 adaptation 64–65
flavour perception 367
gustatory 64–65
olfactory 64–65
sensory fatigue 472
Tragon QDA® methodology 298–299 see also A³daptive Profile Method® advertising
claims substantiation 314, 315, 348 for assessors 87
ageing 62
agency panels 83
air fresheners 667
malodour reduction case study 348, 349 alcohol-containing food and drinks 634 amplitude/arrangement test 250–251 analysis of variance (ANOVA) 9, 166–175
A³daptive Profile Method® 427
assumptions 174–175
comparison of means 170–171
flash profiling 520–521
mean square error (MSE) 128–130
models 168–170
multiple comparison tests 171–172 multivariate (MANOVA) 175, 186 panel variation 166–168 performance assessment 106–107, 120, 128–131 Procrustes analysis of variance (PANOVA) 502–503, 505–506
quantitative flavour profiling 368
ranking data 462
Spectrum™ Method validation 333
analysis of variance (ANOVA) (cont’d)
statistical significance 172–173
Tragon QDA® 302–303
visualizing sample differences 173–174
see also statistical analysis
androstenone sensitivity 61
ANOVA see analysis of variance (ANOVA) Anscombe’s Quartet 192
antiperspirants 659–660 applicability testing 588 application form for assessors 87 response assessment 88
aromas see odours/olfactory stimuli
assessors 18
check-all-that-apply studies 586
food and drink products 613–614
method comparisons 693–694
non-food products 653–654
performance, ranking studies 477–480 see also panel performance
polarized sensory positioning 565
profile methods 271
A5daptive Profile Method® 398
ranking methods 449
see also panels; recruitment; screening;
training
association effects 101
astringency 64–65, 92
attribute descriptions 100–101
association effects 101
attribute distinction 101
consolidation of attributes 102
attribute rating 103–104 frame of reference 103–104 quantitative rating scale 103
see also rating scales
audit process, A5daptive Profile Method® 432–440
automotive products 670–673 aversions to food products 88 balanced incomplete block (BIB) design 59
behavioural traits, assessors 94, 249 beverages see food and drink products bias
consensus methods 227–228
dumping effect 67
expectation bias 65
positional bias 67–68
sensory adaptation 64–65
see also error
bitterness 47, 65
sensitivity differences 61–62, 74, 91 sensitivity screening 91 body lotions and creams case study 428–431 bottled water off-flavour case study 640–641 brand marketing 314
see also marketing
build-up effects 64–65
see also adaptation
butter
cookie flavour case study 372–375 sample flavour case study 223 canonical variates analysis (CVA) 72, 159–160, 186–188 carry-over effect 472–473 cars 670–673
case studies
body lotions and creams 428–431
butter samples, consensus method 223 cheese 598–599
smoked fresh cheese 524–527 cheese cracker 273–281
cookie butter flavours 372–375
curry powder 539–541
dessert sweetness 484–488 dinner napkins 348, 350
extra virgin olive oils 309–312
hand lotion 306–307
ice cream 377–385
malodour reduction 348, 349 mascara attributes 349–351 meat-based snack products 599–602
mint candy 307–309
orange juice 547–551
perfumes 503–508
rank-rating study 487
ranking studies 475–488
complete block example 475–484 incomplete block example 484–486 salted snack rancidity/staleness 596–598 savoury product crispiness 475–483 vanilla flavour optimization 377–385
water off-flavour 640–641 wine, model system 527–529 yoghurt 570–572
category scales 51–52
central error 68
central location tests (CLT) 7, 310, 379, 475 check-all-that-apply (CATA) methods 16, 579, 581–589, 602–603, 683, 686
advantages 593
applications 595–596
assessors 586
contrast effect 68
complaint handling, food and drink products 628
data analysis see statistical analysis
complete block design 457–458, 475–484 Competusense® software 161
data collection 165–166
comparisons of methods 681–688
consumer panels
acceptability testing, chocolate bar 636–637
product benchmarking 630
consumer panels
competitive advantage, protection of 24 competitive assessment 649 data collection time 225–226 group decision 225
time sequence information 225
applications 221–222
case study 223
disadvantages 226–232
data comparison 230–232 individual variation 227 lack of statistical treatment 228–229 panel discussion and bias 227–228 panel size 230
time and cost 226–227
future developments 232–233
overview 215–221
profile methods 283
A®daptive Profile Method® 419
Spectrum™ Method 340–341
terminalogy development 261
training 215–217, 226–227
see also comparisons of methods
consistency 118, 121
evaluation 131–135
panel monitoring 145
consumer panels
acceptability testing, chocolate bar 636–637
product benchmarking 630
consumer panels
context effect 68
continuous scales 52, 103
continuous time–intensity (CTI) techniques 10 contrast effect 68
convergence effect 68
cookie butter flavour case study 372–375 correspondence analysis (CA)
polarized sensory positioning 568
sorting task 545
cosmetics, tactile properties 657–659 cross-modal interactions 66–67 cross-over effects 105
curry powder case study 539–541 customized 17
CV ANOVA 161
data analysis see statistical analysis
data collection 165–166
check-all-that-apply studies 586–587
consensus methods 225–226
flash profiling 519–520
food and drink studies 621–622
free choice profiling 496–497
method comparisons 700–702
panel monitoring 143–144
quantitative flavour profiling 367–368
degree of difference (DOD) scales
  polarized sensory positioning 562–563
  statistical analysis 566–568
Spectrum™ Method combination 341–342
deodorants 659–660
derivative profile methods see modified/derivative profile methods descriptive analysis 3–4 advantages and disadvantages 21–22
  applications 23–26
  marketing 25–26
  product development and design 23–24 quality assurance and control 24–25
  research 26
  as a tool 17–22 benefits of 20–21
  contributions of 26–29
    to industry 26–27
    to physico-chemistry 28
    to physiology 28
    to psychology 27–28
    to statistical analysis 29 customized modification 17 evolution of 4–7
  factors affecting results 61–69 physiological factors 61–65 psychological factors 65–69
  future developments 30, 73–75
  historical background 7–17
  reporting results 72–73
  descriptor generation 49–51 check-all-that-apply method 582 dessert sweetness case study 484–488 detergents 663–665
deviation from reference profiling 10 diagnostic descriptive analysis (DDA) 301 difference for control (DFC) method, Spectrum™ Method combination 341–342
difference from control profiling 10 difference testing 67, 230, 364 dilution flavour profile 8 dinner napkin case study 348, 350 discrimination, panel performance 118, 121–122
  evaluation 130–131
  monitoring 145
  see also stimulus discrimination ability dishwashing products 665–667 disposable razors 669
DISTATIS method 549–551
drinks see food and drink products dual-attribute time–intensity (DATI) studies 13
  dumping effect 67
dynamic flavour profile method 13 electronic tongue 674
  engagement 118
environmental considerations 367 food and drink products 618–619
  storage area 619
error 67
  central 68 expectation 65
  logical 66
  range-frequency effect 68 stimulus 66
  suggestion 65
  see also bias
evolution of descriptive analysis 4–7 expectation error 65
experimental design
  balanced incomplete block (BIB) design 59
  complete block design 457–458, 475–484
  incomplete block designs 59, 458–459, 484–488
  see also sample presentation external preference mapping 381 extra virgin olive oil case study 309–312 F test 172
fabric assessment 667–669
fabric care products 663–665 Farnsworth–Munsell 100 hue test 90 fast thinking 580–581 fatigue, sensory 136, 453, 471, 472, 552
feedback
  panel motivation 108–109, 372 panel quality management 117, 119
  quantitative flavour profiling 366–367
  training sessions 54–55 feedback calibration method (FCM) 161 FIZZ® software 139, 161
flash profiling 14, 497, 513–530, 686
  advantages and disadvantages 522–524 alternative approaches 517–519
  applications 524
  case studies 524–529
    one-shot analysis 524–527 small sensory differences 527–529
  future developments 530
  panel 516
  practical considerations 518–519 process 516–517
statistical analysis 519–522
theoretical framework 514–516 Flash table 70, 71 flavor profile method (FPM) 7–8, 237, 281–282, 283, 320–321, 684 historical perspective 238–239
methodology 247–266, 320–321
acuity screening 250–251, 256
pre-screening 247–250, 256
staff requirements 253–254
terminology development 261–262
training 255–264, 320–321
pharmaceuticals 674
principles 246
project work 264–266
statistical analysis 273
see also comparisons of methods; modified/derivative profile methods; profile methods
flavourists 355–356
see also quantitative flavour profiling (QFP)
flavours 355
creation of 355–356
see also flavor profile method (FPM); quantitative flavour profiling (QFP); taste food allergies 620
food and drink products 611–644
active ingredients 632–633 alcohol-containing products 634 aversions 88
case studies 636–643
chocolate bar 636–640 quality control testing 642–643
water off-flavour 640–641
changes during shelf-life 626–627
data collection 621–622
fresh produce 635
frozen products 634–635
future developments 644
hot served products 630–632 new product compliance 626–627 non-standard products 633–634 panel selection 613–616 screening 614, 615–616
training 614, 616
product development 623–626 development design 623–624
implementation 625
sensory specification development 625–626 purchasing choices 611–612
quality assurance and control 627–630, 642–643
competitive benchmarking 630 complaint handling 628 compliance with descriptive specifications 628
reporting results 622–623
sample treatment 617–618 test environment 618–619
storage area 619
test method identification 612–613 test objective 612
test protocols 619–621 forced choice CATA 588
formulations, pharmaceutical products 673–674 fragrance profile method, acuity screening 252
fragrances 663
luxury perfume case study 503–508
frame of reference 53–54, 103–104
A²daptive Profile Method® 392–396
audit and improvement process 437–438
qualitative 392–393, 413–415
quantitative 393–396, 415–417
method comparisons 699–700
Spectrum™ Method 323–326
qualitative 323–324
quantitative 325–326
free choice description (FCD) 579, 582, 602–603, 686
advantages 593
applications 595–596
case study 598–599
disadvantages 593–595
future developments 603
see also open-ended questioning free choice profiling (FCP) 11, 493–510, 515
applications 494, 499
case study 503–508
data gathered 496–497
future directions 510
historical background 48
methodology 499–503
notation 496
principle 493–494, 499
statistical analysis 497, 499–503
vocabulary 495
interpretation issues 495
free comment 590
fresh produce 635
Index

Friedman analysis 460, 462–463, 480 critical values 490
frozen foods 634–635
gender influence on sensitivities 62–63 generalized labelled magnitude scale (gLMS) 53 generalized Procrustes analysis (GPA) 6, 159, 497–498, 509–510
flash profiling 521–522
free choice description study 598–599 history 498
polarized sensory positioning 566–567
software packages 503 globalization 5
green tea lexicon 336–339 group behaviour, A’daptive Profile Method® 404–405 gustatory stimuli see flavours; taste hair care products 661–663
hair switches 662
hand lotion case study 306–307 handfeel evaluation 252
Happy Cow Dairy Company case study 223 hierarchical cluster analysis 159
quantitative flavour profiling 369–370
historical background 7–17
HITS profiling 15
honest significant difference (HSD) test 171–172, 368 hormonal influence on sensitivities 62–63 household products
air fresheners 667
malodour reduction case study 348, 349 claim substantiation 348 cleaning products 665–667
laundry products 663–665
Toilet cleaners 667
see also personal care products hunger influence on sensitivities 63–64 ice cream, vanilla flavour case study 377–385 ideal profile method (IPM) 9–10 identity profiles 221–222
incomplete block designs 59
ranking studies 458–459, 484–488
independent judgement test 251 individual vocabulary profiling 14, 517–518 intensity reference scales 239–240
A’daptive Profile Method® 403–404, 415–417
development 242
quantitative flavour profiling 365–366
see also rating scales
intensity variation descriptive method 11 internal preference mapping 381 interview for assessors 88–89 Ishihara Colour Vision Test 89–90 judge performance graph 136–140 labelled magnitude scale (LMS) 52–53
language
audit and improvement process 432–437
fabric assessment 668
fabric care products 664
fragrances 663
free choice profiling 495
household cleaning products 666, 667
method comparisons 696–699
personal care products 658, 660, 662–663 quantitative flavour profiling, Sense It® language 357, 358–362 vanilla flavour case study 377
Tragon QDA® 304–305
language development 49–51
A’daptive Profile Method® 392–393, 413–415
audit and improvement process 432–437
method comparisons 696–697
non-food products 654–656, 658
case study 655–657
profile methods 258–263
free choice profiling 495
quantitative flavour profiling 364–365
Sense It® language 360–362
Spectrum™ Method 323–324, 331, 334–340
Tragon QDA® 294–295
Latin square 457–458
laundry products 663–665
leader see panel leader least significant difference (LSD) 170–171 lexicon see language; language development line scales 51–52, 103
linear regression 192–199 logical error 66
luxury perfume case study 503–508
Lyon Clinical Olfactory Test (LCOT) 46–47 make-up, tactile properties 657–659
malodour reduction case study 348, 349
MAM model 208
management support, profile methods 270
A’daptive Profile Method® 396–398
market mapping 649
marketing 25–26
  profile data use 269
  Tragon QDA® applications 314
mascara case study 349–351 mean square error (MSE) 128–129
  p-MSE plot 136–138
  square root (RMSE) 129–130 meat-based snack product case study 599–602 memory, odour memorizing ability 48 methodologies
  choice of 43–44
  comparisons of 18
  see also specific methods mint candy case study 307–309 mint products 624
modelling 191–207
  mixed models 209–210
  multiple regression 200–202
  partial least squares regression 203–205
  principal component regression 202–203 simple linear regression 192–199
modified diagram method 8 modified/derivative profile methods 237, 271–273, 281–282
  case study 273–281
  definition and characteristics 244–246
  historical perspective 241–246
  methodology 242–243, 247–266
    acuity screening 251–252, 256
    pre-screening 247–250, 256
    staff requirements 253–254
    terminology development 262–263
    training 255–264
  principles 246–247
  project work 264–266
  statistical analysis 273
  see also profile methods
motivation 44, 108–109, 372
  long-term panellists 157–158
  multiple regression 200–202
multidimensional scaling (MDS) 6
  polarized sensory positioning 566
  sorting tasks 543–545, 548
multiple factor analysis (MFA)
  flash profiling 522
  polarized sensory positioning 566–567
  projective mapping 538, 541
multisensory perception 101
multivariate analysis 29, 42–44, 70–72, 158–160, 175–190
canonical variates analysis (CVA) 72, 159–160, 186–188
  cluster analysis of attributes 190–191
  cluster analysis of samples 188–190
  consensus methods 220, 233
  correlation 176–179, 192
  covariance 176
  flash profiling 521–522
  modelling relationships 191–207
    mixed models 209–210
    multiple regression 200–202
    partial least squares regression 203–205
    principal component regression 202–203
    simple linear regression 192–199
modified/derivative profile methods 237, 271–273, 281–282
  case study 273–281
  definition and characteristics 244–246
  historical perspective 241–246
  methodology 242–243, 247–266
    acuity screening 251–252, 256
    pre-screening 247–250, 256
    staff requirements 253–254
    terminology development 262–263
    training 255–264
  principles 246–247
  project work 264–266
  statistical analysis 273
  see also profile methods
motivation 44, 108–109, 372
  long-term panellists 157–158
  multiple regression 200–202
multidimensional scaling (MDS) 6
  polarized sensory positioning 566
  sorting tasks 543–545, 548
multiple factor analysis (MFA)
  flash profiling 522
  polarized sensory positioning 566–567
  projective mapping 538, 541
multisensory perception 101
multivariate analysis 29, 42–44, 70–72, 158–160, 175–190
Canonical variates analysis (CVA) 72, 159–160, 186–188
Cluster analysis of attributes 190–191
Cluster analysis of samples 188–190
Consensus methods 220, 233
Correlation 176–179, 192
Covariance 176
Flash profiling 521–522
Modelling relationships 191–207
  Mixed models 209–210
  Multiple regression 200–202
  Partial least squares regression 203–205
  Principal component regression 202–203
  Simple linear regression 192–199
Modified diagram method 8
Modified/derivative profile methods 237, 271–273, 281–282
  Case study 273–281
  Definition and characteristics 244–246
  Historical perspective 241–246
  Methodology 242–243, 247–266
    Acuity screening 251–252, 256
    Pre-screening 247–250, 256
    Staff requirements 253–254
    Terminology development 262–263
    Training 255–264
  Principles 246–247
  Project work 264–266
  Statistical analysis 273
  See also profile methods
Motivation 44, 108–109, 372
  Long-term panellists 157–158
  Multiple regression 200–202
Multidimensional scaling (MDS) 6
  Polarized sensory positioning 566
  Sorting tasks 543–545, 548
Multiple factor analysis (MFA)
  Flash profiling 522
  Polarized sensory positioning 566–567
  Projective mapping 538, 541
Multisensory perception 101
Multivariate analysis 29, 42–44, 70–72, 158–160, 175–190
Index 717
Napping® 13, 524, 537
New product development 23
  Compliance studies 626–627
Noise 581
Non-food products 647–648
  Air fresheners 667
  Assessment design 651–652
  Assessment protocol 650–651
  Automotive 670–673
  Cleaning products 665–667
  Fabric assessment 667–669
  Fragrances 663
  Future development 675
  Importance of descriptive analysis 648–649
  Language development 654–656
    Case study 655–657
  Laundry products 663–665
  Panellists 653–654
  Paper products 669–670
  Personal care products 657–663, 669
  Pharmaceuticals 673–674
  Sample number 652
  Test objective 650
  Textiles 667–669
Non-standard food and drink products 633–634
Number of assessors see panels
Number of samples 57–58, 618, 652
  Polarized sensory positioning 565
objectives
  food and drink studies 612
  non-food product studies 650 odours/olfactory stimuli 355
  cars 670–671
  memorizing ability 48
  odour recognition test 250, 251 olfactory acuity testing 46–47 profile assessors 250
  sensitivity variation 61
  ageing effect 62
  gender and hormonal influences 62–63 hunger influence 63–64
  sensory adaptation 64–65
olfactory acuity testing 46–47
  profile assessors 250, 402
  sensory impairment testing 90 olive oil case study 309–312 open-ended questioning 16–17, 590–592
  statistical analysis 591
  optimal sensory profile 383–384 optimized descriptive profile (ODP) 15–16 oral shape recognition test 92 orange juice case study 547–551 order of appearance 225 order of presentation 58
  positional bias 67–68
orientation see training
p-MSE plot 136–138
pairwise comparisons 170–172, 461–469, 481, 483, 487 palate cleansers 64–65, 620, 621 panel leader 83–85, 110
  A’daptive Profile Method® 399
  knowledge and skills 84
  method comparisons 694–695
  profile methods 253–254
  role 84–85
  Spectrum™ Method 329–330
panel maintenance 271
  A’daptive Profile Method® 421, 426
  quantitative flavour profiling 366–367
  Spectrum™ Method 332
panel monitoring 113, 117, 142–151
  action standards 144
  consistency 145
  data collection 143–144
  discrimination 145
  links to training and appraisals 151 long-standing panellist issues 157–158
  new panellist issues 156–157
ongoing project-based monitoring 146–147
repeatability 144–145
scheduled diagnostic checks 147–150
validity 146
panel performance 113, 118–142
  A’daptive Profile Method® 411, 427
  consistency 121, 131–135
  discrimination 121–122, 130–131
  future developments 111
  general data quality 122–127
  long-standing panellist issues 157–158
  new panellist issues 156–157
  repeatability 120, 127–130
  validity 122, 135–142
  poor performance management 109 proficiency testing 113, 152–154
  reproducibility 120–121
  results evaluation 106–108 panel quality management 113–114
  approaches 116–118
  comparing different panels 154–156 context and 115–116
  future developments 163
importance of 114
  see also panel monitoring; panel performance; proficiency testing panel training see training PanelCheck V1.4.0 software 161 panellist performance see panel performance panellist recruitment see recruitment panels
  engagement 118
  motivation 44, 108–109, 372
  new assessor integration 109–110 size 45–46, 86
    consensus methods 230
    types of 81–83
      agency panels 83
      dedicated assessors 83 employees 82–83
      virtual 7
    see also assessors; recruitment; training
  paper products 669–670
parametric analysis 460–461, 466–469, 483, 484
  partial least squares (PLS)
    regression 203–205
    path PLS modelling 207
particle size discrimination test 92
Index

path PLS modelling 207
Pearson's correlation coefficient 176–179 perception, multisensory 101
see also odours/olfactory stimuli; taste; touch performance see panel performance perfumes see luxury perfume case study 503–508 permutation test 504–505
personal care products
   cosmetics 657–659
   fragrances 663
   luxury perfume case study 503–508
hair care products 661–663
personal washing products 660
shaving products 669
tactile properties 657–659
underarm products 659–660
see also non-food products personality traits, assessors 94, 249
A²daptive Profile Method® 404
pharmaceuticals 673–674
phenylthiocarbamide (PTC) 62, 91 pick K/pick K from N 588 pilot studies, Tragon QDA® 296–297 Pivot Profile© 15, 574
polarized projective mapping (PPM) 15, 573–574 polarized sensory positioning (PSP) 14, 561–575, 687
advantages 570
applications 569
case study 570–572
data analysis 566–569
degree of difference scales 562, 566–568 disadvantages and limitations 570 extensions of 572–574
future developments 574–575
practical considerations 563–566
   assessors 565
   pole selection 563–565
   replication 566
   sample number 565
   triadic polarized sensory positioning 563, 568–569
positional bias 67–68
practice sessions see training preference mapping 6
   vanilla flavour case study 377–383
pregnancy influence on odour sensitivity 63
pre-screening
   profile methods assessors 247–250, 256
   Spectrum™ Method panellists 327–328 presentation see sample presentation principal component analysis (PCA) 70–72, 159, 176, 179–186
polarized sensory positioning 566
quantitative flavour profiling 369
principal component regression 202–203
Procrustes analysis of variance (PANOVA) 502–503, 505–506
product development 23–24
compliance studies 626–627
food and drink products 623–626 Tragon QDA® applications 313
product optimization 24 proficiency testing 113, 152–154 profile attribute analysis (PAA) 8, 241
profile methods 237–283
advantages 266–267
applications 268–269
case study 273–281
disadvantages 267–268
future directions 282–283
historical perspective 238–246
methodology 247–266
management support 270
modifications 271–273
project work 264–266
screening 247–252
staff requirements 253–254, 270–271
training 255–264, 271
principles 246–247
statistical analysis 273
see also flash profiling; flavor profile method (FPM); free choice profiling (FCP); modified/derivative profile methods; quantitative flavour profiling (QFP); texture profile method (TPM) profile trainer 253, 270
A²daptive Profile Method® 398–399
progressive profiling 13
projective mapping 12–13, 535–536, 537–541, 687
advantages and disadvantages 551–553
applications 539
   case example 539–541
data analysis 538
future developments 553
methodology 537–538
propylthiouracil (PROP) 62, 91 purchasing choices, food products 611–612 QDA see quantitative descriptive analysis

quality assurance and control 24–25
   food and drink products 627–630
   non-food products 649
panel quality management see panels profile data use 269
Tragon QDA® applications 313–314
quality rating assignment, Spectrum™ Method 342–343 quantitative descriptive analysis (QDA) 8–9, 237, 304, 683, 685 chocolate bar case study 637–640 consensus method 221
criticism of 305
see also comparisons of methods;
   Tragon QDA®
quantitative flavour profiling (QFP) 12, 355–387, 684
applications 370–371
case studies 372–385
cookie butter flavours 372–375
vanilla flavour optimization 377–385
data collection 367–368
future development 386–387
panel maintenance 366–367
panel training 362–367
   special projects 364–366 product and sample preparation 367–368
Sense It® language 357, 358–362
   language selection on project 362 sensory testing environment 367
statistical analysis 368–370
theory 356–358
see also comparisons of methods; flavor profile method (FPM) quantitative frame of reference 53–54, 103–104
method comparisons 699–700
questionnaire
   for check-all-that-apply method 583–586 for ranking task 453, 454
R-Index analysis 460, 463–466, 480–483, 484
rancidity/staleness case study 596–598
range-frequency effect 68
rank descriptive data (RDA) 14 rank-rating 448, 683, 685
   case study 487
choice of methodology 473–475
data analysis 469–470
methodology 454–457
see also comparisons of methods
ranking 447, 683, 685 aim of 448
applications 470–475
   not well-suited test situations 472–473 well-suited test situations 470–472 assessment protocol 453–454
attribute selection 451
case studies 475–488
choice of methodology 473–475
experimental design 457–460
   complete block design 457–458, 475–484
   incomplete block design 458–459, 484–488 study size and replication 459–460
future directions 489
historical background 447–449
methodology 449–457
   assessor selection 449 product presentation 452 product selection 451–452 ranking direction 453
statistical analysis 460–469
   Friedman analysis 460, 462–463, 480
   parametric analysis 460–461, 466–469, 483, 484 R-Index analysis 460, 463–466, 480–483, 484
ties 453
training 450–451
see also comparisons of methods
ranking descriptive analysis (RDA) 518 rapid techniques 17–18, 41–42 rate-all-that-apply (RATA) method 588 see also check-all-that-apply (CATA) methods rating scales 103, 239–240, 580 A3aptive Profile Method® 393–395, 415–417 consistency in scale use 121 development 242
idiosyncratic scale use 69 intensity rating 239–240, 242 issues with 580–581
quantitative flavour profiling 365–366
rank-rating method 455–457
Spectrum™ Method 322–323, 322–326
   training 330–331
texture profile 239–240 see also degree of difference (DOD) scales razors, disposable 669 recruitment 44–48, 86–87
   advertising for assessors 87 application form 87
  response assessment 88
non-food product studies 653
numbers 86
offer of employment 97–98
quantitative flavour profiling 363–364
Spectrum™ Method 326–328
Tragon QDA® 294, 300–301
  see also screening: specific methods
regression
  multiple 200–202
  partial least squares (PLS) 203–205 principal component 202–203 simple linear 192–199
repeatability 118, 120
  evaluation 127–129
  panel monitoring 144–145
repertory grid method 495, 514
replicates 60–61
  food and drink studies 621
  polarized sensory positioning 566
  ranking study 460
reporting results 72–73
  A’daptive Profile Method® 419–420
reproducibility 118, 120–121
research 26, 649
  profile data use 268–269
response scales 51–54
  category scales 51–52
  continuous scales 52
  labelled magnitude scale (LMS) 52–53
  line scales 51–52
  quantitative frame of reference 53–54, 103–104
response surface methodology (RSM) 6 ring-testing 152–153 safety, pharmaceutical testing 673–674 saliva flow measurement 92 salted snack rancidity/staleness case study 596–598 sample preparation, food and drink studies 617–618 sample presentation 56–57 check-all-that-apply study 586
  food and drink studies 618
incomplete block designs 59
number of samples 57–58, 618, 652
  polarized sensory positioning 565
  order of presentation 58
  positional bias 67–68
  replicates 60–61
  sequence effects 68
simultaneous versus sequential presentation 57
  see also experimental design savoury product crispiness case study 475–483 scales see rating scales scatter plots 140–141
scheduled diagnostic checks 147–150
screening 89–97
  behavioural traits 94
  food and drink assessors 614, 615–616
  initial screening 87–89 application form responses 88 interview 88–89
  method comparisons 693
  number and length of sessions 95
  profile assessors 247–252, 256
  A’daptive Profile Method® 400–405
  acuity screening 250–252, 402–403
  pre-screening 247–250, 256
  quantitative flavour profiling 363–364 scoring screening exercises 252 programme and timetable planning 94
  ranking methods 449
  selection criteria and mark scheme 95–97 sensory impairment 89–94 sight 89–90
    smell 90
    taste 90–91
    touch 91–94
  Spectrum™ Method panellists 328
tests 89
  Tragon QDA® 293–294
  see also recruitment selection of food 50
  see also panels; screening SENPAQ software 107–108, 161
Sense It® language 357, 358–362
  development 360–362
  language selection on project 362
  see also quantitative flavour profiling (QFP)
sensitivity, individual differences 61–62 sensitivity cards 384 sensory acuity testing 46–47 sensory adaptation see adaptation sensory booths 367
sensory claims substantiation 314, 315
sensory fatigue 136, 453, 471, 472, 552 sensory impairment assessment 89–94
  sight 89–90
  smell 90
  taste 90–91
  touch 91–94
sensory map 74
sensory panel see panels sensory perception measurement 291–292
see also quantitative descriptive analysis (QDA)
see also odours/olfactory stimuli; taste; touch sensory profile 41 sensory profiling 73
future developments 73–75
see also descriptive analysis sensory specification generation 625–626 sequential profiling 15 shampoo 661–663
shaving products 669
shelf-life evaluation 626–627 shower gel 660 similarity measurement 536
simple linear regression 192–199
size of panels see panels skin cream
case study 428–431
language development 655–657
tactile properties 657–659
skinfeel evaluation 252 slow thinking 580–581
smell see odours/olfactory stimuli; olfactory acuity testing smoked fresh cheese case study 524–527 soap 660
sorting task 11–12, 535–536, 541–551, 686
advantages and disadvantages 551–553 application 546–547
case example 547–551
data analysis 543–545
DISTATIS method 549–551
future developments 553
methodology 542–543
sound studies, cars 671–672 Spearman’s correlation 521
Spectrum™ Method 9, 43, 50, 54, 319–351, 684
case studies 348–351
consensus method 221
historical background 320–321
independent versus consensus ratings 340–341 lexicon development 323–324, 331, 334–340 new developments 341–346 combination with DOD/DFC rating 341–342 data analysis from large numbers of samples 344–345 in sequence mapping 345–346 predictive use of descriptive data 345 product grouping/sorting 343–344 quality rating assignment 342–343
panel leader 329–330
qualifications 329
roles 329–330
panel maintenance 332
panel validation 332–334 panellist selection 326–328
pre-screening 327–328
screening 328
source of pool 327
qualitative references 323–324 quantitative references 325–326
statistical analysis 346–347
training 330–331
universal scale 322–323
see also comparisons of methods
spirits, lexicon example 335–340 spray cleaning products 665–667 standard error of mean 170 standards
panel performance 158
vocabulary development 50 star diagram 173–174
staticized decisions 214–215 STATIS method 538
statistical analysis 29, 69–72
A*Adaptive Profile Method® 419, 426–428
check-all-that-apply studies 587–588
consensus methods 228–229, 230–232
future developments 208
method comparisons 702–703
multivariate analysis 70–72, 158–160, 175–191
canonical variates analysis (CVA) 72, 159–160, 186–188
cluster analysis of attributes 190–191
cluster analysis of samples 188–190
correlation 176–179, 192
covariance 176
modeling relationships between variables 191–207
open-ended questioning 591
panel performance 158–162
polarized sensory positioning 566–569 preliminary analysis 166
principal component analysis (PCA) 70–72, 159, 176, 179–186 product differences 69–72
Index

profile methods 273
    flash profiling 519–522
    free choice profiling 497, 499–503
    projective mapping 538
    quantitative flavour profiling 368–370 rank-rating data 469–470
    ranking data 460–469
    Friedman analysis 460, 462–463, 480
    parametric analysis 460–461, 466–469, 483, 484
    R-Index analysis 460, 463–466, 480–483, 484 software developments 160–162
sorting task 543–545
Spectrum™ Method 346–347
Spectrum™ Method, with large numbers of samples 344–345
Tragon QDA® 302–304
univariate analyses 69–70
see also analysis of variance
statistical significance 172–173
stimulus discrimination ability 47
    evaluation 55–56, 130–131
    see also discrimination stimulus error 66
structural equation modelling 206–207 substantiation of advertising claims 314, 315, 348 suggestion error 65
supertasters 91
sweetness, dessert case study 484–488 tape plot 173–174
taste 355
    acuity measurement 47
    profile assessors 250, 402
    sensory impairment testing 90–91
    adaptation 367
    pharmaceutical palatability 673–674 sensitivity variation 62 hormonal influence 62–63
    hunger influence 64
    sensory adaptation 64–65
    see also flavours
TDS see temporal dominance of sensations tea lexicon 336–339 technician, profile methods 254
    A5daptive Profile Method® 400
temporal check-all-that-apply (TCATA) studies 16, 589 temporal dominance of sensations (TDS) 15, 589 temporal order of sensations (TOS) 15 terminology see language; language development textiles 667–669
    fabric care products 663–665
texture perception testing 92–94, 403 texture profile method (TPM) 8, 237, 281–282, 283, 321, 684
    applications 243
    contributions of 240–241
    historical perspective 239–241
    methodology 247–266, 321
    acuity screening 251, 256
    pre-screening 247–250, 256
    staff requirements 253–254
    terminology development 262
    training 255–264, 321
    principles 247
    project work 264–266
    statistical analysis 273
    see also comparisons of methods; modified/derivative profile methods; profile methods tick-all-that-apply methods see check-all-that-apply (CATA) methods time sequence information 225
time-intensity (TI) techniques 10–11 see also individual techniques
toilet cleaners 667
tongue, electronic 674
TOS see temporal order of sensations
touch
    acuity testing 403
    sensory impairment testing 91–94
Tragon QDA® 8–9, 287–317, 683
    advantages 304–305
    applications 312–315
    marketing 314
    procurement team 315
    product development 313
    quality control 313–314 sensory claims substantiation for advertising 314, 315
case studies 306–312
    extra virgin olive oils 309–312
    hand lotion 306–307
    mint candy 307–309
central thesis 291–292
criticism of 305
cross-functional collaboration 301–302
future development 316–317
    historical background 287–291
    methodology 292–297
Tragon QDA® (cont’d)

adding products to the test 299–300
language development 294–295
managing sensory attributes 299 multiple category testing 300 pilot test and validation 296–297 reference use 297
scale usage 296
screening 293–294
situational adaptations 298–299 subjects 292–293
over-recruiting 300–301 resource constraints 301
statistical analysis 302–304
see also comparisons of methods;
quantitative descriptive analysis (QDA)
aids 102
aims of 99
attribute descriptions 100–101
association effects 101
attribute distinction 101
consolidation of attributes 102 attribute rating stage 103–104
frame of reference 103–104 quantitative rating scale 103
consensus methods 215–217
frame of reference 103–104 quantitative rating scale 103
time and cost 226–227
feedback 54–55
food and drink assessors 614, 616 links to panel monitoring 151
method comparisons 695–696
multisensory perception 101
non-food product studies 653–654
panel quality management 117
performance measurement 104–108
profile methods 255–264, 320–321
modified/derivative methods 244 practice sessions 263
profile trainer 253, 270, 398–399
quantitative flavour profiling 362–367
terminology/lexicon development 258–263 training materials 271
training sessions 255–258
validation 263–264
rank-rating 456–457
ranking methods 450–451
Spectrum™ Method 330–331
training period 108
triadic descriptor elicitation 582
triadic polarized sensory positioning 563
statistical analysis 568–569 Tukey HSD test 171–172, 368 ultra-flash profiling 524
underarm products 659–660
univariate analyses 69–70
flash profiling 520–521
see also statistical analysis
University of Pennsylvania Smell Identification Test (UPSIT) 90
validation
A5daptive Profile Method® 411–412
quantitative flavour profiling case study 375–376
Spectrum™ Method 332–334
Tragon QDA® 296–297
validity 118, 122
evaluation 135–142
panel monitoring 146
vanilla flavour case study 377–385
vehicles 670–673 verbally based qualitative methods 579 rationale 580–581
virtual descriptive panels 7
washing powders 663–664 water off-flavour case study 640–641 Williams Latin square 457–458 wine case study 527–529 yoghurt case study 570–572