Contents

About the Author xi
Acknowledgements xii

1 Introduction: How Should We Treat Offenders and What Can We Learn from the Past?  1
   Personal Experience  3
   From Professional to Technical Skills  7
   Fast-Track Punishment  8
   What Works?  9
   The Future of Professional Practice  10
   Structure and Contents  11

2 The Early History of Punishing Offenders: Punishments and Help Offered to Those Incarcerated  15
   The Role of Religion and Offenders  16
   Techniques for Gaining Control of the Population  17
   The Threat of the Destitute  19
   The Growth of the Prison System  20
   The Export of Offenders  20
   Positive Custody?  22
   Circumventing the Gallows  22
   Ensuring Punishment  25
   Dealing with the Children: Reformatories  27
   Dealing with Adults: Prison and Punishment  28
   Summary  31

3 The Probation Service from its Inception until 1984: From Rescuing the Fallen to a Centrally Managed Organization  33
   From a Primitive to an Industrial Society  33
   Making Offenders Productive  34
Issues of Power: From Control of the Body to Control of the Mind 35
The Early History of the Probation Service 37
From the Mission to Social Work with Offenders 41
The Middle Period of Probation 43
The Incompatibility of Breaching Orders with Traditional Notions of Casework 44
From the Pessimism of 'Nothing Works' to 'What Works?' 46
The Professional Identity of Probation Officers 47
The Home Office and Probation: Turning the Screw 49
'Just Deserts' and the Increase in Compulsory Supervision 51
Summary 53

4 The Probation Service after 1984: From Social Work to Social Control and Punishment 54
The Probation Task and 'Taylorism' 54
Punishment in the Community 55
Control Over Probation: The Role of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Probation and Themed Inspections 58
The Work of Prison Probation Departments Report 59
Exercising Constant Vigilance: The Role of the Probation Service in Protecting the Public from Sex Offenders, Report (1998) 60
Towards Race Equality (2000) 61
The Growth of Managerialism 62
From Casework to Corrections 63
Changes to the Influence of Probation in the Court Setting 65
Probation and New Labour 68
Just Deserts 70
Probation and the Punitive Tendency 71
Social Exclusion 72
Summary 83

5 Deconstructing National Standards for the Supervision of Offenders in the Community 84
Background to the Analysis 85
Context 87
The typographical layout of NS 1992 and NS 1995 88
The discursive levels of NS 1992 and NS 1995 88
Textual Cohesion in NS 1992 and NS 1995 93
Surface grammatical structure of NS 1992 and NS 1995 94
The narrative level of NS 1992 and NS 1995 96
The semiotic square of NS 1992 and NS 1995 97
Commentary 99
National Standards 2000 100
Contents

National Standards 2002 (A Revised Version of NS 2000) 101
  Discursive level 101
  Lexical fields in NS 2002 (Home Office, 2002) 102
  The semiotic square of NS 2002 102
National Standards 2005 103
National Standards 2007 103
  Lexical fields in NS 2007 105
  The semiotic square of NS 2007 106
  Discrimination and the semiotic square 107
Summary 108

6 Views of Front-Line Staff 111
  Setting the Context: The Opinion of Probation Service Professionals 111
  What Happens During a Period of Change? The Early 1990s 111
  On the Cusp of Change: Life Before and After National Standards 1995 114
  Changes in the bureaucratic tasks of the Probation Service 114
  Processing offenders 115
  Taking offenders back to court (breaching) 117
  Coping with the changes 118
  Recording contact with offenders 119
  Contact with prisoners 122
Understanding the World of the Offender 123
Discrimination and Offenders 125
Discrimination and Staff 126
‘Advise, Assist and Befriend’ 127
Changes in the Skills Base of Probation Officers 128
Probation Officers: Case Managers, not Case Workers? 130
Engaging with a Different Type of Offender 132
The Organizational Response 134
Morale and Issues of Control 137
Where did this Leave the Probation Service? 138
  Bureaucratic tasks 138
  Control, therapeutic work and the value base 138
  Changes in probation practice, and its skills base 140
Responses to the Changing Offender Profile and ‘Effective Practice’ Initiatives 140
Why Staff Believed the Changes were Taking Place 141
Transitions and Change in Probation Practice 142

7 After-Care and Resettlement in the Inner London Probation Service (1965–1990) 147
  The Professionalization of the ACU 151
    Records 151
    Finances 151
    Clothing – WRVS 152