CONTENTS

Foreword    Mark Gerzon    xi
Introduction    xv

PART ONE: CONFLICT RESOLUTION EDUCATION: THE NEED AND THE POTENTIAL    1

1    Kids and Conflict in Schools: What’s It Really Like?    3
Randy Compton, School Mediation Center

2    An Introduction to Conflict Resolution Education    17
Tricia S. Jones, Temple University

3    The Building Blocks of Conflict Resolution Education: Direct Instruction, Adult Modeling, and Core Practices    35
Carol Miller Lieber, Educators for Social Responsibility
PART TWO: WHAT WORKS: SUCCESS STORIES IN CONFLICT RESOLUTION EDUCATION   61

4  The Heart of the Matter: Social and Emotional Learning as a Foundation for Conflict Resolution Education   63
   Rachael Kessler, PassageWays Institute

   In Their Own Words: “I Know That I Have Grown a Lot Emotionally”   76

5  “We Can Handle This Ourselves”: Learning to Negotiate Conflicts   89
   Jennifer K. Druliner and Heather E. Prichard, Association for Conflict Resolution

   In Their Own Words: “I’ve Changed After the PYN Training”   98

6  Students Helping Students: Peer Mediation   109
   Richard Cohen, School Mediation Associates

   In Their Own Words: “Peer Mediation Makes the World Better”   120

7  “We Can Do It Too!”: Peer Mediation for Special Education Students   129
   Paul I. Kaplan, Hannah More School

   In Their Own Words: “Every School Should Have It”   139

8  Express Yourself! Expressive Arts and Conflict Discovery   147
   Sarah Pirtle, Discovery Center

   In Their Own Words: “A Powerful Healing Tool and a Powerful Communication Tool”   162

9  Making Meaningful Connections: Curriculum Infusion   173
   Rachel A. Poliner, Educational Consultant

   In Their Own Words: “Infusion Lets You Do Lots More with Less Time”   188
10 Making Things Right: Restorative Justice for School Communities 199
   Alice Ierley and David Claassen-Wilson, School Mediation Center

   In Their Own Words: “People Actually Learn to Be Better People” 210

11 School Bullying: Prevention and Intervention 221
   Beverly B. Title, Teaching Peace

   In Their Own Words: “It Has Really Helped How Safe We Feel” 236

12 R.E.S.P.E.C.T.: Appreciating and Welcoming Differences 251
   Priscilla Prutzman, Creative Response to Conflict

   In Their Own Words: “It Made Me Speak Up for Myself and My Culture” 265

13 School’s Out: Time for Fun, Relaxation, and Peaceful Conflict Resolution Education 275
   Sandy Tsubokawa Whittall, Educators for Social Responsibility

   In Their Own Words: “When the Kids Are Playing, They Are Working as a Team” 282

14 Reflections on Stories of Success 291
   Tricia S. Jones, Temple University, and Randy Compton, School Mediation Center

   Postscript: The Importance of Supporting Conflict Resolution Education 309
   Amalia G. Cuervo

Notes 311

Appendix A: Books, Publications, and Websites 319

Appendix B: Organizations and Programs 325

About the Editors 349

About the Contributors 351

Name Index 355

Subject Index 359